Mid-August Session on Neutrality Threatened

24 Senate Votes Claimed by Bloc Demanding Strict Arms Embargo

By the Associated Press.

Senate opponents of neutrality law revision claimed yesterday to have support of at least 24 Senators and said they would serve notice on the Administration that if it insisted on repeal of the arms embargo there would be a fight certain to prolong the session at least until mid-August.

A member of the group said this word would be carried to President Roosevelt early this week by a Senator who thus far has taken no active part in the neutrality controversy. The Chief Executive is to return tonight from his trip to Hyde Park and West Point.

There were indications, meantime, that the Administration was conducting its own private check of Senate sentiment on the proposal of Secretary of State Hull that the neutrality act be revised in favor of a system of Presidential control of wartime shipping.

Nothing New on Quitting

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, Senate Democratic leader, said however, that he thought Congressional advisers would have little more information to give the President tomorrow about a prospective adjournment date than last week, when they were understood to have told him in effect that all legislation except neutrality could be cleaned up by July 15.

Both Senate and House Foreign Affairs committees may consider neutrality legislation this week.

Chairman Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, said he would ask the Senate committee Wednesday to set a date to take up pending measures. None of the measures before this committee fulfills Hull's suggestions exactly, but Pittman has a bill which includes repeal of the present law's mandatory embargo on arms sales to nations at war.

Royal Visit May Help

The House committee will continue to work on a bill by its acting chairman, Representative Bloom (Democrat), New York, which embodies the Hull program.

There was some discussion in senatorial circles of the possible effect of the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth on the neutrality controversy. Opponents have said the Hull proposals would be of direct benefit to England, in event of war in Europe, because her control of the seas likely would enable her to obtain munitions here while cutting off the shipping of her opponent.

Senator Connally (Democrat), Texas, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he believed the visit had "softened" some of the Congressional criticism of Great Britain's policies.

"A lot of these members who came to scoff at the Capitol reception for the King and Queen went away with a different attitude," Connally declared.

Security Hearing Today

On the other hand, Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, who has been a consistent critic of Great Britain's course, indicated clearly his ideas had not been changed by his contact with the sovereigns of that nation.

With neutrality apparently the only issue threatening major controversy, Congress will hasten this week to clear its docket of other legislation.

The Senate Finance Committee is to take up today, with Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer of the Social Security Board as its first witness, amendments to the social security

Wood, Nelson Shoot 68s, Tie in Open

Shute Eliminated By 76; Another Playoff Today

By Bill Boni,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Philadelphia, June 11.—Craig Wood, the Blond Bomber from Mamaroneck, N. Y., who has been dogged by varying kinds of misfortune through most of his golfing career, stood on the eighteenth tee of the Philadelphia Country Club's Spring Mill course today with the forty-third National Open golf championship virtually tucked in his pocket.

WOOD

The 37-year-old veteran had played 17 holes, in the face of a stiff breeze, in one under par. He had a one-stroke lead over Byron Nelson, who was still jittery after three-putting the seventeenth, and Denny Shute already was too far behind to figure further in this three-way play-off for the game's biggest prize.

NELSON

But before Wood had finished playing the 558-yard home hole—the one on which Sam Snead took his tragic eight blows yesterday—Craig had hit a screaming brassie second shot that felled a spectator; Nelson had chipped stiff 7 feet from the pin and holed his putt for a birdie 4. And Wood, a good foot inside Nelson with his chip, had left his winning putt 8 inches short of the can. He finished with a 5 for a one-under-par 66, and sent the title into another 18 hole play-off.

Play Again Today

The second round, with Shute out of it after taking a 76, will start at 8:30 a. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow.

If that booming brassie of Wood's had been a good one, the fact that it struck one of the 5,000 galleryites might have been the accident that cost Craig the championship. Actually, it may have saved him another shot at it, for Wood, one of the game's longest hitters, apparently had made a mistake in judgment of distance and the ball was headed for trouble.

Dramatic Finish

Instead, it hit Bob Mossman, a driving range operator from nearby Ardmoure, Pa., above the right temple and dropped him into an unconscious heap, with blood flowing from the wound. Wood's ball caromed a good 40 feet into the middle of the fairway, 15 yards short of the green.

Nelson already had played his second, a sweet shot that was on the collar of the green. But before either of them could chip up, a stretcher was rushed up the hill from the club house and Mossman, after quick medical care, was carried across the corner of the green,

Danzig Nazis Hold Polish Official as Spy, London Hears

London, June 11 (INS).—The Nazi authorities of the Free City of Danzig arrested a Polish customs inspector on suspicion of espionage, it was reported late tonight in London.

This news gave rise to fear of a new incident to rekindle the controversy between Germany and Poland over Adolf Hitler's demand for the return of Danzig to the Reich. It was expected Poland would serve a demand on the Danzig Nazis to release the customs inspector.

Chamberlain Accused of Weakening

Opposition Parties Fear He Is Again Appeasing Axis, Call For Cabinet Changes

By the Associated Press.

London, June 11.—Britain's efforts to bring Soviet Russia into the British-French front were overshadowed today by a barrage of criticism growing out of what opponents of the government called "appeasement" gestures toward Germany and Italy.

The new attacks, added to increasing demands for a cabinet shakeup, created an important political problem for Prime Minister Chamberlain in view of reports that the date for a general election was set this week-end for the first week in October.

The prime minister will be asked in Parliament tomorrow to explain the purpose of conciliatory statements made to Parliament Thursday both by himself and his foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax.

Fear Talks With Axis

Despite denials in official circles of any intention to return to an "appeasement" policy, opposition leaders and a large section of the press viewed with suspicion their offers to discuss Rome-Berlin axis "aspirations."

Arthur Greenwood, acting labor party leader, said in a speech last night that the government "declares itself favorable to pacts of mutual assistance but it is not at all clear that it would not crawl back to the discredited plan of appeasement if even a shadow of an opportunity presented itself."

Greenwood already has served nofice he would ask Chamberlain tomorrow whether the government has any intention of trying to negotiate German and Italian claims for colonies and economic "living space."

Speech Stirs Suspicions

Even the progovernment Times acknowledged that Lord Halifax's speech had raised suspicions "in not a few quarters both at home and abroad" that the government might be turning back toward "appeasement." But, it said, the only aim was to offset German charges of "encirclement."

The foreign secretary told the House of Lords Thursday that "provided that the independence of nations is recognized," Britain was "not only willing but anxious to explore the whole problem of economic lebensraum (living space) not only for Germany but for all European nations."

At the same time, Chamberlain reiterated in Commons Britain's willingness to discuss colonial and economic questions provided there was an atmosphere of mutual confidence.

To Moscow Today

Discussions between Lord Halifax and William Strang, named special envoy to Moscow to expedite the deadlocked British-Russian negotiations, continued over the week-end.

Strang will leave for Moscow tomorrow with a new British-French formula for three-power mutual assistance which, the government hopes, will meet Russia's approval. He said he would go by train instead of airplane. The Moscow talks, therefore, will be delayed perhaps until the latter part of the week.

Orders Air Defense

London, June 11 (INS).—The British government today established a constant air defense vigil throughout Great Britain as Europe entered a week that promises to launch a chain of far-reaching developments.

Additional antiaircraft units of the territorial army were called up for service to maintain the 24-hour-a-day guard over London.

New to Royalty—Sunday on a Front Porch

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Sunday afternoon on the front porch probably was new to King George and Queen Elizabeth, but it was just an old custom for the Nation's No. 1 family, the Franklin D. Roosevelts. After attending church services yesterday, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt invited their royal guests out on the piazza while awaiting dinner. U. S. Income Off 11% in 1938, Survey Shows

$64,000,000,000 20% Under Estimate To Balance Budget

A national income of $64,000,000,000, which is 20 per cent under the figure set by the Administration as its goal to cut unemployment and balance the budget, was attained in 1938, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

The total was well above the $40,000,000,000 low mark of 1932, but a decline of more than 11 per cent from the 1937 figure.

"Declining prices as well as a reduced volume of production" were said by the Department to have contributed to the drop.

National income is computed from all wages, salaries, dividends, rents and other payments to individuals.

The report was issued while Congress was taking steps to expedite the tax-revision bill as an aid to business, and complete action on the social security bill, passed by the House Saturday, which will save employers many millions in taxes in the next three years.

Tax Bill Report Slated

The tax revision measure is expected to be reported out by the end of this week, followed by House passage next week. It is expected to provide for repeal of the tax on undistributed profits of corporations, while levying a flat corporation tax of 16½ or 17 per cent on corporations with earnings of more than $25,000 a year. The measure will extend numerous "nuisance taxes" now scheduled to expire June 30.

The national income reported yesterday represents an average of

Roosevelt Drives Royalty to Picnic In His Own Ford

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 11.—The President himself drove King George VI and Queen Elizabeth to the hotdog picnic today on the hilltop at the far eastern end of the Hyde Park estate.

The Queen sat at his right in the front seat of the four-passenger blue Ford in which the President delights to jaunt about the winding roads of his country place. The King was in the back seat with Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's 84-year-old mother. On the faces of all four was the look of children doing something very delightful and very unusual.

Behind them rode a carful of secret service men whose looks were less joyous.

The afternoon was to hold other novelties for Their Majesties—hotdogs and Boston baked beans, a program of Indian songs and dances, and an hour beside the swimming pool at the Val-Kill cottage.

The King and the President enjoyed a dip in the green tiled pool, while the others had iced tea on a lawn overlooking a pond fringed with willow trees, and meadows gay with blue iris, daisies and buttercups—an idyllic scene much like rural England.

President and Wife Reported Invited to Buckingham Palace

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 11.—The Amercian visit of King George V. and Queen Elizabeth came to a close at 10:00 tonight when Their Majesties said au revoir to President and Mrs. Roosevelt and entrained for Canada where, from the port of Halifax next Thursday night, they will sail back to England.

In the early hours of the morning the royal train was to cross the Canadian border at Rouses Point. Thus Their Majesties, having dined in the United States, will breakfast in Canada.

The royal couple, looking rested after a quiet, even if moderately busy, Sunday, were driven to the station shortly before 11 o'clock from the President's estate in his open automobile.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and the former's mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, bade their guests good-bye just before they stepped aboard the train.

Rulers Forget No One

The King wore a dinner jacket and was hatless. The Queen wore a pink dinner dress and a white fur.

When they alighted from Mr. Roosevelt's automobile at the station to the cheers of the crowd and the salutes of an honor guard of the Eighteenth United States Infantry they had about 8 minutes in which to say their farewells.

They forgot no one. The King, first of all shook the hands of the gray-clad New York State troopers whose job it was to escort and protect him while here. The troopers doffed their campaign hats and grinned as he warmly grasped their hands and chatted informally.

Stand on Rear Platform

The Queen stood at his side beaming. With her was Mrs. Roosevelt, who wore an ermine cape over a cerise evening dress. After the royal pair had felicitated everyone who, through their services, contributed to their stay they bade farewell to the Roosevelts.

The Queen was the first aboard the train, walking briskly up the ramp to the rear platform of their private car. She was followed by the King. Both stood on the rear platform as flashlights of photogra-

Carpenters Will Strike Here Today

Stoppage by 1,700 Expected to Tie Up 100 Building Projects

Washington's triply complicated labor difficulties will give rise today to the city's second strike within a week when 1,700 union carpenters will refuse to work on more than 100 construction projects. Last Monday building laborers walked out on the same operations.

Prospects for averting the threatened strike of 600 bakers appeared brighter, however, as union leaders prepared to meet representatives of the Employing Bakers Association at 10 a. m. today. U. S. Conciliator Edward C. McDonald, meeting with the groups, will seek to reach agreement on the wage, night schedule and vacation issues involved.

Charles B. McCloskey, bakers' business agent, expressed himself as hopeful that a settlement would be reached. He has promised his men will stay at their ovens until Wednesday. A strike would affect 32 local bakeries, doing 95 per cent of the work in the Washington area.

About 1,700 carpenters will be involved in today's strike, the majority on large-scale public and commercial, rather than residential, projects. About 150 union men working directly for the Government will not strike. From 100 to 150 more will continue work on projects whose contractors have signed tentative agreements meeting the union demand of $13 for an eight-hour day.

Settlement of the strike, it was indicated, is unlikely until the laborers' dispute over 10 to 25 cent hourly wage raises is ended.

Two Drown, Girl Is Hurt Swimming as Heat Hits 95

Heurich Engineer Falls Off Launch On Company Cruise; Student Dies in River

Claude Price, 45, chief engineer for the Heurich Brewery, was drowned in the Potomac just below Fort Washington yesterday, ending a two-day outing of the brewery's Thirteen Club on the 50-foot yacht of Christian Heurich, Jr. On the boat were 13 of the firm's department heads, composing the club, one invited guest and a cook.

His death brought Potomac River drownings to two, as Washingtonians sought relief from city heat.

A George Washington University architectural student was swept to his death late yesterday by the swift current at Little Falls.

He was Joseph Maggenti, 26, of 715 First street northwest. His death ended a picnic on the river bank near Brookmont, Md.

Cruise Began Saturday

The Heurich party left Washington Saturday morning and cruised down the river to Mattawoman Creek, where they spent the night. As they were returning yesterday afternoon, the river was whipped into heavy swells by a high wind.

Members of the party said Price lost his footing in some manner or was washed or blown overboard. The boat was halted immediately and put about, but Price had already disappeared in the strong undertow.

Assisted by other boats, including one from Fort Washington, the party made a thorough search, dropping an anchor attached to a buoy to mark the spot where Price disappeared.

Was Hero in Fire

Price's brother, Harold Price, of 727 Barton street north, Arlington, Va., where the dead man also resided, was notified by telephone at Eastport, Md., where he was visiting relatives. He left for Washington at once.

Six years ago Price distinguished himself when he fought an oil fire single-handed at the Heurich plant, holding it under control until apparatus arrived. He had been employed there 15 years.

A third victim of the effort to escape yesterday's blazing heat was Miss Marian Carter, 19, of 2417 Eighteenth street, who suffered cuts on the forehead when she dived into shallow water at the Airport Pool.

According to Mrs. Mary Peruzzi, Maggenti's aunt with whom he roomed, he left home yesterday morning with several textbooks, saying he wanted to find a cool place to study. With him was Miss Elsie Irwin, 22, of 2004 G street northwest.

Miss Irwin told police they went to a spot near Brookmont, Md., where they had a picnic lunch. Maggenti, she said, then waded out among rocks in the strong current for a swim. When he failed to reappear she became anxious for his safety.

Nearby picnickers were summoned and, with their aid, she made a search. Seventh Precinct Policemen E. F. Wyckoff and R. C. Schwab, passing in a scout car, noticed the commotion and joined the hunt.

Yesterday's scorching weather, which sent hundreds to parks, beaches, the river and the highways, will continue today, the Weather Bureau predicted. The maximum temperature reported was 95 degrees at 3 p. m., the minimum was 74 at 5 a. m. During the afternoon southwest winds which reached 18 miles an hour scattered a fine film of dust over the city.

Mrs. Rubens Believed Held By Stalin Police

Moscow, June 11 (U.P.).—Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens, of the sensational "Robinson-Rubens" passport fraud and espionage case, tonight was believed to be under the surveillance of the Soviet N. K. V. D. (secret police), possibly at some obscure health resort, after her release from Butyrskaya prison.

The United States Embassy was without information as to the whereabouts of the 31-year-old American woman 24 hours after her supposed release from the prison on Moscow's outskirts, where she had been held for 18 months.

Embassy officials pointed out that the woman needed documents either to live in the Soviet Union as a United States citizen or to leave it and return to the United States, where she faces arrest and a prison term for passport forgery.

It was speculated that her appearance at the embassy might have been delayed only by red tape.

Mexican Students Stone U. S. Bomber, Fight Americans

Mexico City, June 11 (INS).—The American bomber, B-15, which yesterday brought home from the United States the body of the Mexican ace, Francisco Sarabia, was the target of stones and mud hurled by a mob of Mexican students which today marched on the Mexico City Airport.

Police, who say that the anti-American outbursts were instigated by Nazi agents, threw a cordon of 500 policemen around the giant American plane, which was not damaged. Fifty patrolmen were dispatched to guard the American Embassy.

The anti-American disturbances began last Thursday, following charges Americans had "sabotaged" the plane in which Sarabia plunged to his death in the Potomac River at Washington Wednesday.

A football game in the National Stadium here was turned into a medley of fights when a group of 500 students of the Mexican Polytechnic Institute charged into 50 students of the American school.

Three Sightseers And Pilot Die as Plane Loses Wing

Montague, Mass., June 11 (AP).—Four persons were killed today when an airplane in which they were riding crashed near here. Witnesses said a wing apparently fell off the plane, forcing it into a tailspin.

Those in the plane were tentatively identified as Lester Hodgen, pilot-manager of the nearby Turners Falls Airport; Katherine Welch, Donald Drew and Howard Glazier, all of Greenfield.

Hodgen had taken the other three on a sight-seeing tour, according to airport attaches.

Senator Reynolds In Johns Hopkins

Reynolds expects to have recovered sufficiently to participate in a round-table discussion on immigration over the Mutual Broadcasting System Sunday.

Vicar Who Wed Windsors Finds America a 'Land of Promises'

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, June 11.—Ill fortune still dogs the footsteps of the clergyman who performed the ceremony uniting the former King Edward and his twice-divorced wife.

It was two years ago this month that the Rev. Robert Anderson Jardine, former vicar of St. Paul's, Darlington, England, found the doors of the church of England closed to him. The 61-year-old minister had defied church authorities by marrying Edward and Wallis Warfield Simpson.

And today, he said, the churches of America are boycotting him for the part he played in making history.

"Bigotry and persecution have followed us across the sea," Mr. Jardine declared. "My wife and I hardly know where to turn, but we're fighting on. Even though little Christianity is shown me, I shall continue my life's work."

The clergyman and his wife, Maude, have been residing quietly here in a modest apartment for the past six months. But their situation, financially, is rapidly approaching a crisis, they said.

"But if I had to do it all over again, I'd do it," he said. "It was a chance to do a good turn for the man who had been my King and I took it."

For a time, Mr. Jardine conducted services in a Hollywood theater. The Sunday collections barely paid the rental. At present he is conducting vesper services in a wedding chapel.

"Thus far," said Mr. Jardine, "I have found America a land of promises, not of promise."

Brown Declines to Fight Over Dictagraph Data; Hasn't Seen It

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, expects to take no part in the fight being waged on Capitol Hill to suppress publication of the transcript of dictaphone records made of conversations in a downtown hotel during the milk investigation.

"I have never seen the original," he said yesterday, "or any copy of any of the transcripts."

The situation was further muddled when Capt. Floyd Truscott, assigned to conduct the investigation after the Bates sub-committee asked Brown for a crack investigator, declined to deny or affirm the report that the House District Committee has demanded all copies of the transcript. Truscott said:

"I have been given explicit instructions to make no comment on the case. I'm kind of muzzled, as it were. These are not the major's instructions. They came from elsewhere."

He said he was in no position to clarify "elsewhere."

The records concern the activities of several members of Congress, Capitol Hill employes and lobbyists, following a charge that Postmaster Whiting Faulkner, of Martinsburg, W. Va., had offered to sell lobbying services to the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association.

Many of them record intimate conversations and extra-curricular activities that had little if any bearing on the price of milk in the District.

It is usual for police to retain at least one copy of such transcripts for

Idle Compensation Rolls Increase 9,000 in 3 Months

Workers covered by unemployment compensation increased by some 9,000 during the first three months of the year, according to a report released yesterday by the District Unemployment Compensation Board.

The increase, from 147,712 in January to 155,649 in March, also carried an increase of $1,038,016 in wages. The wages earned by the group in January amounted to $16,623,378 and of the larger group in March, $17,661,394.

During the first quarter the board distributed $508,636 in benefit payments to 58,834 clients. Initial claims filed for the three months were 8,207 and the total continued claims for the same period, 101,917.

Lumber Orders Rise 42% Over Last Year

The National Lumber Manufacturers Association reported last night new orders during the week ended June 3 were 42 per cent greater than the same week a year ago and were about the same as the week before.

Production for 22 weeks of the year was 19 per cent above the corresponding weeks of 1938, shipments 14 per cent higher and new orders 16 per cent greater.

Public Gagged On Relief Bill, C.I.O. Charges

Economy League, However, Brands WPA System Wasteful

The Federal Relief Administration was denounced yesterday by the National Economy League, while Labor's Nonpartisan League, on the other side of the fence, was assailing the House Appropriations sub-committee for its expected cut in proposed relief expenditures for the coming fiscal year.

The Economy League concluded that "Federal relief is administered with either the wasteful incompetence of the old-fashioned ice cart in summer, or with a malicious mania to spend as much of the Nation's accumulated savings as possible while giving as little as may be to the needy out of the vast total wasted."

The C. I. O.-controlled Labor's League charged that the sub-committee in charge of the new relief bill "has heard not one representative of the public" and "is preparing to rush through an inadequate sum under gag rule." It said the committee "has been conducting a farce investigation, during which it let enemies of WPA spread all manner of misrepresentations and half-truths on the record while denying to others the chance to refute these charges."

Writers Believed Cut

The controversy continued while the House sub-committee was preparing to report tomorrow the 1940 relief bill, with House action on it starting Wednesday or Thursday.

Limitations on Federal writers and theater projects, and new restrictions on administrative expenses are reported to have been decided on in committee. Methods of removing from relief rolls many who have been on the lists for the longest periods, and earmarking of $125,000,000 of the $1,447,000,000 appropriation for the PWA also are expected in the bill.

At the same time the Social Security Board reported that persons on Federal works programs in the continental United States received $308,088,000 in earnings and public assistance in April, a drop of about 3 per cent from the $318,206,000 total for March.

Relief Costs Held Rising

The National Economy League said that in seven years Federal, State and local governments have spent $20,500,000,000 for relief, "more this year than ever before," but that there still remained 22,000,000 persons receiving relief payments of one form or another. It charged that overhead costs of administration and materials have risen from 10 to 25 per cent of the total.

It declared that while the trend of relief rolls is down, the trend of the costs is up, that relief costs have risen because of adoption of costly forms of work relief.

The average relief allowance for a family on home relief was put at $23.30 a month, while "on the other hand, it costs $78.37 a month to keep a man on WPA."

"If all relief families in 1937," it continued, "had been handled on the co-operative relief system, actually in effect in 1935, when part were on home relief and part on work relief economically administered, there would have been a saving of $1,235,176,000."

Economists Urge End of Treasury Gold Price Fixing

The Economists National Committee on Monetary Policy urged Congress yesterday to withdraw the power given the Secretary of the Treasury, under the 1934 gold act, to determine the price of monetary gold.

The committee, which includes university professors and economists, said that even though Congress refused to renew Presidential power to devalue the dollar, failure to repeal sections of the gold reserve act "would leave the way open to further depreciation of our currency" through the gold-buying program.

The committee is a private organization of economists.

Trusts Broken To Aid Consumer, Arnold Asserts

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—Thurman Arnold, Assistant United States Attorney General, said today that Government "is not interested in trust-busting for the mere sake of busting one or another of the great monopolies down to the consumer."

He was one of three speakers who discussed "freedom and the economic system" on the University of Chicago round table broadcast over a Nation-wide (NBC) network.

"We are engaged in clearing away the log-jams that are interfering with the distribution of goods," he declared. "By enforcing competition and breaking monopoly control lower prices can be obtained. This is not an attack on freedom. By restricting the freedom of few, greater freedom can be given to many."

Nebraskans Form Vandenberg Club

Omaha, Nebr., June 10 (AP).—Ross L. Shotwell, Omaha attorney, tonight announced formation of a State Vandenberg-for-President organization.

"This is purely a draft movement originated by friends of Republican Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg . . . without his knowledge or consent," Shotwell asserted.

about $500 for every man, woman and child in the Nation.

In the 1929-1938 decade, the report said, national income averaged slightly less than $60,000,000,000 yearly, with the average from 1933 to 1938 about $4,000,000,000 above the average from 1929 to 1933.

Income Figures Revised

The department announced that it had revised upward the national income totals for all the years covered by the report, on the basis of a new census and other data.

"Thus, early figures placed the national income for 1929 at $81,000,000,000, and the 1937 total at $70,000,000,000," the report said. "Revisions now incorporated in the report have raised the 1929 total to $82,700,000,000 and the 1937 figure to approximately $72,000,000,000."

The analysis for 1938 disclosed a sharp drop in income in the first five months followed by a marked recovery in the rest of the year.

Total compensation paid to employes was seven per cent lower in 1938 than in 1937, although the share of income distributed to employes in 1938 stood at a new high of 67.3 per cent of aggregate income paid out in all forms.

Dividends showed the largest decline of income payments in 1938, falling approximately one-third below the $5,400,000,000 level of 1937.

Interest Income Off

"Reduced profits and probably the modification of the undistributed profits tax" influenced this decline, the department declared. It added, however, that interest registered very little decline, "and actually increased as a share of the total income distributed."

The report said the Government's contribution to the national income was higher in 1938 than in any other of the ten years covered.

The study said:

"While the dollar national income in 1938 was below the 1929 figure, both wholesale prices and the cost of living of urban wage earners were also considerably lower in 1938 than in 1929.

"It appears from this evidence that the quantity of goods and services produced in 1938 was only moderately below that of 1929, although the decline appears more substantial on a per capita basis in view of the 8,000,000 increase in population."

A department statement said:

"The report significantly points out that the construction industry, which had suffered severely during the depression, showed very little decline in 1938 and therefore stood out in sharp contrast with the other commodity industries."

Voters League Backs Neutrality Measure

The National League of Women Voters urged its State organizations yesterday to assist in a drive to have Congress act on four measures before adjourning.

In a letter to State league presidents, Miss Marguerite M. Wells, national president, recommended support of the Administration's neutrality bill, amendments to the social security act and extension of civil service, and opposition to pending amendments to the new food and drug act.

act which were approved by the House Saturday.

These amendments provide for starting old age payments next year instead of in 1942 and for increased payments in the early years of the act's operation. In addition, coverage would be extended to new groups of workers.

Monetary, Relief Bills Next

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, predicted the committee would approve proposals he has made to change the basis of Federal contribution toward the cost of old age assistance and to liberalize unemployment compensation payments.

Byrnes seeks a substitute for the present provision under which the Federal and State governments share the cost of old age assistance on a dollar-for-dollar basis. He has proposed a system by which low-income States might obtain Federal grants up to two-thirds of the total amounts paid.

Senate supporters of the Townsend old age pension plan said they expected to offer it as an amendment when the Senate considers the proposed changes in the social security system. The House turned it down.

The Senate expects to take up by the middle of the week House-approved legislation which would extend the President's authority to devalue the dollar and would renew the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund authorization.

The House, occupied with District of Columbia bills today and tomorrow, may take up the $1,447,000,000 relief bill by the middle of the week.

100,000 Navy Shoes Keep Leavenworth Factory Going

The Leavenworth Federal Prison shoe factory accepted an order for 100,000 black dress shoes for the Navy to avoid a shutdown due to operating losses, Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, yesterday said he was informed.

Walsh addressed a query to Commissioner James Bennett, of the Federal Prison Industries, Inc., asking that the Leavenworth factory schedule of production be reduced in order not to interfere with private industry.

Bennett replied according to the Senator, that the prison factory was producing at a rate dangerously close to the unprofitable margin and that it was necessary to maintain a minimum level of production in order to train the apprentices. He said the institution produces only one-tenth of 1 per cent of the Nation's annual shoe production, on the average.

24 More Face Charges In Mass Murder Case

Philadelphia, June 11 (AP).—Prosecuting Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt said tonight 24 new indictments would be sought this week in Philadelphia's insurance murder case, but that he plans no further trials until September.

"For one thing, it's too hot now for trials," he said. "For another, we have too much work to do."

House Sub-committee Agrees To Curb Air Force Expansion

4,300 Planes to Be Recommended Instead of 5,500 Roosevelt Asked; Additions, However, to Be Discretionary

By the Associated Press.

Informed legislators said yesterday that a House appropriations subcommittee had agreed to recommend that the proposed expansion of the Army Air Corps be limited to about 4,300 planes instead of the 5,500 proposed by President Roosevelt.

The subcommittee so worded its proposal, however, that the Chief Executive would have discretionary power to authorize the additional 1,200 planes if he deemed it advisable, it was explained.

"Education" Fund Halved

House leaders said that although the measure, carrying funds to complete the President's emergency national defense program, would be indorsed by the full appropriations committee today, it probably would not reach the House floor until next week.

The sucommittee also cut in half a $32,500,000 appropriation for so-called "educational orders" to train industry in munitions manufacture. Members explained, however, the proposed expenditure covered a two-year program so that all the subcommittee actually did was to provide the first year's funds.

The group also effected some reduction in the $27,000,000 item to finance an increase in the Panama Canal Zone garrison. Members said this cut was approximately $500,000.

Gathering Raw Materials

Congress already has given the Army $50,000,000 which has been used to purchase more than 500 new pursuit planes and attack bombers. In addition, $110,000,000 has been provided for the purchase of so-called "critical" equipment such as semiautomatic rifles, antitank guns, new tanks, gas masks, anti-aircraft guns and ammunition.

Meanwhile, both the Army and Navy are preparing to build up the Nation's stock of raw materials essential to the prosecution of a war.

Officials said yesterday orders would be placed in the next 12 months for $10,000,000 worth of such materials. They expected this Congress to appropriate that sum as a start toward accumulating a $100,000,000 store of "strategic" and "critical" minerals and other supplies, mostly produced abroad.

The reserve, a phase of the current reinforcement of land, sea and air defenses, was authorized in a bill which President Roosevelt signed last week to lessen and prevent a "dangerous and costly dependence" upon foreign nations.

Purchases Over Four Years

Additional purchases are to be spaced over four years, as Congress provides funds.

The initial orders, to be placed through the Treasury's procurement division, are expected to be confined to manganese, tin, chromium, Manila hemp, and tungsten, and possibly rubber.

These top a revised list of 17 "strategic" materials. Although the United States is far more fortunate in natural resources than most other nations, there are in addition about a score of less important materials that are classified as "critical."

The act provides for storing the materials on military reservations or other selected spots, to be rationed out to industry on the President's order in war or any national emergency.

Sabath Has Bill to Raise Credit

By the Associated Press.

Representative Sabath (Democrat), Illinois, said yesterday that he had drafted a bill to facilitate the extension of credit to small businesses.

"My bill would create an instrument in the nature of a trade acceptance certificate," Sabath explained, adding that he would introduce it today.

"These certificates are to be eligible for discount through the Federal Reserve banks or through a corporation to be established under the President's recent 'first plan on Government reorganization,' designating a Federal loan administrator as co-ordinator of all money leading agencies."

Certificates would bear interest of not more than 4 per cent annually and would be discounted at banks or through the agency at rates prevailing in the locality where the applicant's principal place of business is located. Proceeds from the transaction would be turned over to the trustee for redemption of the trade acceptance certificates, all liens, judgments or other incumberances notwithstanding.

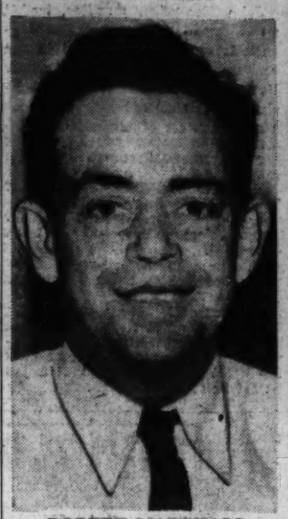
Civil Liberties Inquiry Appropriation Urged

The American Civil Liberties Union urged Congress yesterday to supply the Senate committee investigating alleged violations of civil liberties with new funds.

In a letter to Chairman Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, of the Senate Audit and Control Committee, the union asked that the committee recommend to the Senate a $100,000 appropriation for the investigating committee headed by Senator La Follette (Progressive) of Wisconsin.

The La Follette committee has exhausted funds previously allotted.

U. S. Aide Off Today to Climb Arctic Peak



ROBERT MARSHALL

Marshall Discovered, Mapped Mountain but Has Yet to Scale It

Robert Marshall, 38-year-old chief of the Forest Service division of recreation and lands, is leaving today to deliver the coup de grace to a mountain he discovered, mapped and named, but never climbed, although he has tried before. This year he's going to "climb it or bust."

The mountain in question is Mount Doonerak, in Alaska, the highest peak north of the Arctic Circle in America. It is about 10,000 feet high, 75 miles from habitation, and 275 miles from a road.

Hikes 40 Miles for Fun

Marshall, an indefatigable hiker, woodsman and Government official, discovered the peak in 1929, on a summer vacation from Johns Hopkins University. In 1930 he returned to map the region and stayed 13 months in the tiny town of Wiseman, where he wrote "Arctic Village," widely read Literary Guild selection.

He christened the peak after the Doonerak, spirits which the Eskimos believe are responsible for "getting things done."

Marshall, who often hikes 40 miles a day for the fun of it, will sail to Juneau, fly to Fairbanks and then to Wiseman. Then with two Alaskan friends, he will march across 75 miles of tundra, to the mountain's base. Each man will carry a pack of 60 pounds. They will take along a few dogs, each of these carrying about 40 pounds. They face a climb of about 6,500 feet.

Expect to find Flowers

Instead of snow, the climbers expect a dry terrain, profusely covered with wild flowers. Chief difficulty will be mosquitoes, against which each man travels covered by netting and gloves. Every two hours the stinging insects will have covered the nets to the point where visibility is shut off and fire must be built to smoke them free.

He hopes to find a possible ascent although Joe Crosson, Arctic aviator who has flown past Mount Doonerak since Marshall discovered it, has found it "black in winter," so steep the snow does not cling to the sides.

C. S. Stephens Elected Minnesota Society Head

Clifford S. Stephens has been elected president of the Minnesota State Society, it was announced yesterday. Other officers for 1939-40 are Rowland E. Dobbins, vice president; Charles W. Curran, treasurer, and Olive Prior Erickson, secretary. Chosen for three-year terms on the board of governors were Sidney Dean Sarff and Donald W. Larson. Others, including Senator Ernest Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota; Representative William Pittenger (Republican) and Dr. Walter E. Omundson.

Northminster's New Edifice Is Dedicated

The Rev. P. B. Marshall Speaks at Ceremony Attended by 800

More than 800 persons, including several distinguished clergymen, yesterday attended the formal dedication of the $95,000 Northminster Presbyterian Church edifice at Alaska avenue and Kalmia road northwest.

After the Rev. Peter B. Marshall, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, main speaker, had advised that the central purpose of such a building was a "house of prayer," the parishioners joined with their spiritual leader, the Rev. Walter E. Price, in a responsive dedication.

Both pastor and congregation united in . . . "This house, which we have been permitted to build through the gracious favor of divine Providence, we do solemnly dedicate to worship and service of Almighty God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. Amen."

Earlier, the Rev. Freeley Rohrer, D. D., stated clerk of the Washington City Presbytery; Dr. Bernard Brasskamp, pastor of Gunton-Temple Presbyterian Church; the Rev. R. Paul Schearrer, of Takoma Park Presbyterian; the Rev. Walter Wolf, of Arlington; the Rev. J. Herbert Garner, of Sixth Presbyterian, and the Rev. Hugh K. Fulton, D. D., of Rawlins, Wyo., participated in the rites. Alvin W. Hall, president of the board of trustees, presided at the formal transfer of the keys.

The Assembly Presbyterian Church, organized in 1852, and the North Presbyterian Church, formed in 1865, united in 1906 as the Northminster Church, which was located at Eleventh and Rhode Island avenue northwest until destroyed by fire in 1936. At that time the congregation moved to a chapel on the present site, where services have been held since.

The organ, donated by Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Breuninger, will be dedicated Thursday at 8 p. m.

their files, even when undertaking an investigation for a Congressional body.

In disclaiming any responsibility for the records, Brown said, "I have had no direct notice from the committee or any member of Congress to return any records. I understand, however, that Capt. Truscott has been asked to return certain copies."

Brown assigned Truscott and Private Richard E. Felber to the investigation, but has since stated that he knows nothing of their activities, as "they reported directly to the committee." He said, "If they were to ask me to turn over any records I would have to find them first, and frankly, I wouldn't know where to start looking.

"All I have done is to comply with the request of the sub-committee in assigning the two men to the case. Outside of that I know only what I read in the papers."

Circus Elephant Crushes Man

Cincinnati, June 11 (AP).—Rosie, a circus elephant, went into a rage while being unloaded here today and hurled Harry F. Hannon, a watchman, to the ground and stepped on him, crushing his chest. He was rescued by trainers.

Trainers of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus said Rosie was excited over the unloading proceedings.

East Shore Marsh Fires Get Study

Crisfield, Md., June 11 (AP).—Fires in Eastern Shore marshland, which have a definite but undefined effect on muskrats and wild fowl, will be the object of State control if a group of land-owners have their way.

Assistant State Forester Walter J. Quick said the group, whose property totals 3,850 acres, told Forest Warden Fred Waters they favored fire control provisions. Quick said that if Water's survey shows marsh owners in favor of fire prevention work, the State forestry department will try to work out a cooperative plan with the conservation department.

Chamberlain Sans Umbrella; It Rains

London, June 11 (AP).—London's first rain in 24 days fell today as Prime Minister Chamberlain returned from a week-end at Birmingham without his usual umbrella. Besides easing the drought, the shower broke the June heat wave which had Londoners complaining of temperatures in the 80's.

Flag Week Services Held At St. Paul's

Scouts and Boys Club Band Assist With Colorful Rites

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Parish—oldest church in Washington—yesterday observed Flag Day with colorful ceremonies.

Headed by the red-coated Metropolitan Police Boys' Club Band, a flag-bearing procession of Scouts, church school youngsters and others marched around the rectory grounds on Webster street, then down a flag-trimmed park driveway to the church.

Standing on the steps of the church—founded in 1712—Scout Huntley Hilliard presented a small American flag to Dr. F. J. Bohanan, rector, after which five lads gave the church call, and the marchers proceeded into the edifice behind the black-robed, white-cassocked junior choristers, to the strain of "Onward Christian Soldiers."

After greetings from Dr. Bohanon, who also introduced the Rev. Charles W. Wood, the new assistant pastor, the congregation heard a message on the American Flag from Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools; the American's creed from Robert Jonscher, and the Allegiance to the Flag from Scoutmaster E. L. Maschmeyer.

Among the participants were Boy Scout troops from Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian, Petworth Baptist, Park View Community, Brightwood Park, Columbia Heights Christian, St. Paul's Episcopal and Emory Methodist churches and Holy Comforter Chapel; Girl Scouts from Paul Junior High and Hamline Methodist Church, and others.

Honor guests included Lewis T. Boynton, associate editor of the Washington Diocese magazine; Leon Brusilloff, director of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club Band; Mrs. Fred Walker, commissioner of the Girl Scouts of the Northwest section; Richard D. Engel, James R. Kirkland, and others.

The Flag Day committee consisted of Arthur Anderton, director; Lewis T. Miller, sr., Edwin L. Maschmeyer, Miss Dora Funk, Mrs. S. Elizabeth Kerr, J. Fred Parsons, Harry C. Sigourney and Robert Jonscher.

Air Passages To Europe Begin June 28

Tickets Are $375 One Way, $675 Round Trip; Hop to Take 44 Hours

New York, June 11 (AP).—The public can begin buying air passages to Europe June 28.

Pan American Airways announced today the world's first passenger service over the Atlantic will be started then.

Hundreds have applied for tickets, it was said.

The cost will be $375 one way and $675 for a round-trip. The one-way fare compares with $316 for a first-class ticket in the liners Queen Mary and Normandie.

The elapsed time between the United States and Marseille, France, will be 44 hours. Temporarily, an overnight stop will be made at Lisbon, Portugal. Airliners leaving the company's base at Port Washington, N. Y., will touch first at Horta, The Azores. The elapsed time to Lisbon will be 22 hours.

While passenger service on the Southern route over the North Atlantic is being inaugurated, other company flying boats will have initiated the northern route via Shediac, New Brunswick; Botwood, Newfondland, and Foynes, Ireland, to Southampton.

The "great circle" course to Europe, over which the first mail plane will fly June 24, is the shorter of the two routes but is impracticable for use except in summer months due to unfavorable weather conditions. New York will be only 24½ hours from London on the Northern course.

With the start of passenger service in the company's 41½-ton Clipper flying boats, a schedule of two round trips a week will be instituted. The passenger plane will leave Port Washington every Wednesday and the mail plane every Saturday.

The passenger Clipper will leave Marseille each Sunday and arrive in Port Washington Tuesday morning, with an overnight stop in Lisbon. The mail Clipper will leave Southampton each Wednesday and arrive here Thursday afternoon.

Warden Lawes Wed in Arlington

Ossining, N. Y., June 11 (AP).—Lewis E. Laws, 55, warden of Sing Sing for 19 years, tonight announced his marriage on April 19 in Arlington, Va., to Miss Elise Chisholm, 35, of Issining.

Lawes said he had intended keeping the wedding secret until after the marriage of his daughter, Kathleen, on June 27, to Charles Miller, of St. Louis, but that recurring rumors of his marriage forced an earlier announcement.

Roy P. Turpin, Contractor, Dies

Roy P. Turpin, 45, building contractor, of 1440 Columbia road northwest, died yesterday at Providence Hospital after a month's illness.

A native of Roanoke, Va., Mr. Turpin was partner in the contracting firm of Thomas & Turpin, of this city. He was an Elk and a member of the Masonic orders. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie Neister Turpin.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the W. W. Deal funeral home. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Walsh Assails Partisanship in U. of Va. Talk

Tells 400 Graduates All Parties Were to Blame in '29 'Debauch'

By the Associated Press.

Charlottesville, Va., June 11.—The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University and regent of its school of foreign service, told University of Virginia graduates today that "it is the civic duty of educated gentlemen" to remain above partisanry and to "grapple directly with the historic and moral causes, the foreign as well as the domestic, that brought democracy in America to the sickness of 1929.

"Your challenge is to the future, not from the past," he said in his baccalaureate sermon. "It is futile, wasteful and demoralizing to impair the vigor of the counter-attack by seeking to ascertain who was to blame on one sector of the universal collapse."

The graduates, numbering more than 400, will assemble again tomorrow morning to bid farewell to the university and in the afternoon Gov. Price will address the class and President John Lloyd Newcomb will confer degrees.

President and Mrs. Newcomb entertained this afternoon at a reception for graduates, alumni and faculty members.

Father Walsh told the graduates in his sermon that "both political parties in the heyday of their exuberance were equally guilty of economic folly and unsocial proclivities. Both worshiped the same false gods of material prosperity.

"Both knew how to read ticker tape in the debauch of 1929 and both are beginning cautiously to decipher it again. Neither were Gallahads when it was popular or profitable to be Machiavellis."

CCC Boy Royalty Shook Hands With Is Offered Job

John Draganza, enrollee, traded an army cot in a wooden barrack last night for a suite in the Ambassador Hotel, one of New York City's most elegant and exclusive hostelries. Draganza stands good prospects of trading a necessarily small Government pay check for a permanent salary in private industry.

The "Cinderella" CCC boy, senior leader at the Fort Hunt camp in near-by Virginia, owed his stroke of good fortune indirectly to King George VI, whom he guided and with whom he shook hands Friday when the British ruler visited the camp.

Pictures of Draganza, a strapping 20-year-old of Rochester, Pa., led William E. Brown, manager, to invite him to New York as a guest of the hotel and indicated that a job would be sought for him.

Squalus Diver Blown to Surface Is 'Bends' Victim

Portsmouth, N. H., June 11 (AP).—The first case of the "bends"—dread ailment of divers and sandhogs—was reported from the salvage ship Falcon today as divers made slow progress in the task of raising the sunken submarine Squalus, tomb of 26 men.

Salvage officials said Walter Squires, 31, of Los Angeles, who was treated and then released from a decompression chamber after being "blown" to the surface yesterday from a depth of 240 feet, had to be rushed back into the "iron doctor" when he exhibited symptoms of the paralyzing pressure complaint.

Squires was forced to remain all last night in the decompression chamber under a pressure equivalent to that experienced at 30 feet below surface. This morning he recovered and took shore leave.

Two Fairfax Towns to Vote Tomorrow

Hot Fight Seen in Falls Church; Herndon Election Quiet

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
F. O. BOX 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

Voters in the towns of Falls Church and Herndon will select town officials tomorrow. The town of Herndon will elect a mayor, six councilmen and a treasurer. In Falls Church only three councilmen are to be elected.

The election will climax a fight between supporters of incumbent councilmen, seeking re-election, and the Citizens Nonpartisan League in Falls Church. The league last year succeeded in electing three of its candidates to the council and has three more candidates this year in an endeavor to put through its proposed reform.

R. E. Ankers, of the First Ward, will be opposed by Charles E. Kellogg; Joseph G. Smith, of the Second Ward, will be opposed by Charles A. Pendeleton, and Thomas F. Probey, of the Third Ward, by Lawrence Laing.

Eight-Point Program

The eight-point program proposed by the Nonpartisan League sets forth completion of the present project to improve all streets in the town and eventual extension of sidewalks and curbs; better school facilities, adequate recreational facilities, an improved budget and accounting system to include understandable statements to the public showing all expenditures in detail, no increase in tax burden but efforts for readjustments that would distribute the burden more equally, modernization of water and sewer setups to distribute the cost more fairly, adequate and satisfactory police and fire protection, all improvements to be based on the mature study.

The incumbents claim they have brought many improvements to the town without increased taxes, including both water and sewerage systems, improvement of schools, regular trash and garbage collections, extension of street lighting service and development of a well organized police department. They also claim an organized street improvement program which has been carried out despite the fact two streets have had to be torn up on three separate occasions for installation of water, sewer and gas systems.

Mayor Picks Judges

Mayor L. P. Daniel has appointed Councilmen Paul Ferris and Clarence Shotwell as judges with Capt. John Galt, town clerk, acting as clerk. The polls will be open from 1 p. m. to sunset.

Little interest is being shown in the Herndon town election as Mayor Russell A. Lynn and Town Treasurer M. Waite Wilkins are both unopposed. Only one additional candidate has filed for the council besides the incumbents. Candidates for council are R. N. Wrenn, Dr. C. L. Kronweld, W. S. Blanchard, Dr. William Meyer, Dr. D. L. Detwiler and Granville S. White, incumbents, and Ernest Gibson.

The judges of election will be E. E. Gillette and George R. Bready with Mrs. Katherine M. Kirk, clerk.

Summer Camp to Elect

Fairfax—A "Big Chief" to head the county delegation at summer camp will be elected Wednesday at the meeting of the County 4-H Club Council, in the Fairfax Elementray School, Miss Lucy Blake, home demonstration agent has announced.

The annual correct dress contest will be held with the winners in each class to be given free transportation to the annual State short course at Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Blacksburg on July 21-29.

School Course Opens

Fairfax.—A summer school course in upper elementary and high school grades will open today in the high school and continue through the next six weeks, it has been announced by Principal J. E. Bauserman, of the Fairfax Elementary School, who has been named director of the summer session.

Registration for classes will be held at 8:30 a. m. today and thereafter classes will be held each day from 8:30 a. m. until 12.30 p. m.

Mrs. Mildred Leigh, of the high school staff, will teach mathematics and science classes; Miss Garland Sanford, of the high school, commercial subjects; Miss Martha Reely, third and fourth year English and social studies and Principal Bauserman, English and social studies for other groups.

Second Class Office

Fairfax.—The Fairfax postoffice will be raised to a second class rating on July 1, Postmaster E. M. Wiley has announced. This will mean the postoffice windows will close at noon Saturday but the evening mail will be sent out as on other days.

Heads School League

Baileys Cross Roads.—Mrs. Charles Frinks has been elected president of the local School and Community League for the next school year. Other officers include Mrs. J. R. Pugh, first vice president Mrs. L. S. Keys, second vice president; Mrs. L. P. Lathrop, third vice president; Mrs. C. B. O'Shaughnessy, secretary and J. R. Pugh, treasurer.

Chairmen of the standing committees are: School, Mrs. O'Shaughnessy; welfare, Mrs. A. P. Houchens; program, Mrs. J. B. Bond; ways and means, Mrs. L. P. Lathrop; membership, Mrs. Pugh; publicity, Mrs. Bartlett Simms; education, Miss Ethel Simms; hospitality, Mrs. William Stricklin.

Rural Women To Take Course At Maryland U.

35 From Montgomery And Prince Georges To Attend Tonight

More than 700 Maryland women, 35 of them from Prince Georges and Montgomery counties, are expected to attend the seventeenth annual short course for rural women, which will open this evening at the University of Maryland.

Registrations will be held all day today, prior to the first event on the week's program, a vesper service on the campus at 7 p. m. tonight.

Opening session of the course will be in the gymnasium at 10:15 a. m. tomorrow. Dr. Thomas B. Symons, director of the Maryland Extension Service, which sponsors the short courses, will preside, and Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president, will extend his greetings. Principal speaker at the session will be Thomas Parran, of Calvert County, president of the Maryland Tobacco Growers Association, former United States Representative and State senator, and uncle of Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States.

Turner, Brooks to Speak

Phil Turner, of Parkton, Md., president of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, and Roy Brooks, of Belair, Md., master of the State Grange, will also speak.

The rest of the day and other days of the course will be devoted to lectures on homemaking, agricultural and cultural topics. The session will end Friday when the women attending are given certificates of achievement and are taken on a tour of Washington by Dr. Symons.

Women who will attend the course from Prince Georges County are:

Mrs. Alice Ackerman and Mrs. Mary C. Brickerd, Glenn Dale; Mrs. Thomas M. Taylor and Mrs. C. E. Janes, of Anacostia, D. C.; Mrs. George E. Weed, sr., of Lanham; Mrs. M. E. Nugum, of Laurel; Mrs. C. K. Minsie, of College Park, and Mrs. J. Earl Keefauver, Mrs. J. O. Heilman and Mrs. Walter F. Mulligan, of Berwyn.

Those who will attend from Montgomery are Mrs. Natley Davis and Mrs. Lonnie Hilton, of Barnesville; Mrs. John Darby, of Boyd; Mrs. H. H. Selby, Mrs. J. B. Ely and Mrs. Leslie M. Mullican, of Gaithersburg; Mrs. Annie Harding, of Ashton; Miss Annie Fairal, of Sandy Spring; Mrs. Genoa King, of Germantown; Mrs. Grover Stanley, of Mount Airy; Mrs. Alice Kinsey and Mrs. William Walker, of Gaithersburg; Miss Ethel M. Turner, of Rockville; Mrs. Lewis F. Hobbs, Mrs. Charles Leadingham, Mrs. Ruth Naylor, Mrs. Frank Patton, Mrs. Fred Ruth, Mrs. Ed Peter, Mrs. Alex Plitt, Mrs. Orville Scoeville, Mrs. O. B. Shaver, Mrs. Arthur L. Smith and Mrs. G. M. Wolfe, of Silver Spring.

Same Taxes Indicated

Hyattsville.—Mayor E. Murray Gover said last night that the present rate of 35 cents on the $100 of property would probably be continued. To this must be added the five cent fire department tax.

The city council will meet at 8 tonight to set the tax rate for the new fiscal year. Despite an increase of about $380,000 in the assessable basis during the past year, there will probably be no tax cut because expenses are increasing slightly with population growth.

The city is also contemplating purchase of a street sweeper and cleaner, but this will probably not be discussed tonight, since the city council must adopt its new budget as well as set the tax rate. Resurfacing of several streets during the year is also proposed. Items in the budget are usually hotly debated by the council, but on the basis of budget estimates which will be presented by the finance committee, about $38,000 will be spent. The 35-cent property tax is expected to produce about $26,000 of this.

The council will rule on an application for rezoning of a tract on Queens Chapel road, in West Hyattsville, to permit construction of a proposed six-building project containing 140 apartments. Estimated costs is $450,000.

Father Prosise Appointed

Hyattsville.—The appointment of the Revd Bernard W. Prosise, now administrator of St. Gregory's Parish, Baltimore, as pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic Church here was announced yesterday.

Father Prosise will assume his duties June 23. The Rev. Chester J. Czyz, administrator of St. Jerome's since the death of the Rev. Andrew J. Carey, will remain as assistant pastor of the parish.

CIO Auto Union Ordered to Pass Martin Pickets

Detroit, June 11 (U.P.).—Rival divisions of the United Automobile Workers Union tonight perfected strategy for tests of strength among General Motors Corporation employes.

At three G-M plants, in Flint and Saginaw, Mich., members of the U. A. W. affiliated with the American Federation of Labor planned to form picket lines in an effort to enforce a strike called by President Homer Martin last Thursday on charges that the corporation refused to deal with his union.

At the same time, workers of the rival U. A. W. associated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations were instructed to pass through the picket lines on grounds "there is no strike in G-M."

J. F. Birrell, Ex-Legislator, Dies in Virginia

Funeral Will Be Held Tomorrow Morning At Alexandria

John Fred Birrell, who for five terms represented Alexandria in the State Legislature, died Saturday night in Bedford, Va., where he had been making his home for the last two years. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from the Wheatley funeral home, 809 King street, with burial in Bethel Cemetery, Alexandria.

Mr. Birrell was born in Alexandria on November 9, 1867, the son of the late John and Julia Purcell Birrell, of King George County, Va. He is survived by two children, George F. Birrell, of Alexandria, and Mrs. Elizabeth Elgin, of Washington.

He was a member of the old city council of Alexandria for 20 years; served in the State Legislature in the regular session of 1914 and the special session of 1915, then resigned and through the Wilson Administration was deputy collector of internal revenue of the Norfolk district, and later the Alexandria district, serving 18 counties in each district. He again was elected to the Legislature in 1928, 1930 and 1932, and was collector of customs in 1936. He was a contractor in Alexandria for more than 25 years.

Mr. Birrell was a member of Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, B. P. O. Elks, and was the oldest past master of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons.

Field Lodge to Meet

Henry Knox Field Lodge of Masons will meet tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in Potomac Community Hall, presided over by Worshipful Master William E. Sprouse. Plans will be made for the participation of the lodge in the meeting of all lodges in District No. 1, June 28, in the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Temple.

B. P. W. C. to Meet

Mrs. Irene M. Pancoast, recently elected president of the Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club, will preside over the meeting tomorrow at 7 p. m. in the George Mason Hotel. Reports will be given from the convention of the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs held in Roanoke in May last.

Sean Russell To Speak in N. Y.

New York, June 11 (U.P.).—Sean Russell, chief of staff of the Irish Republican army, who was jailed at Detroit last week presumably because the British King and Queen were at nearby Windsor, Ontario, will speak Thursday at a New York mass meeting of Clan-na-Gael and I. R. A. clubs, it was announced tonight.

Cleanup Drive Held a Success In Arlington

Trucks to Collect Trash 3 More Days, Hanrahan Declares

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Clarendon, Va. Tel. OXford 0500.

Declaring the county-wide cleanup campaign waged during the past week a great success as a result of public co-operation, County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan yesterday announced that the county trucks would continue to collect trash for the next three days.

In the last week, he said, all trucks were taxed to capacity, and in many sections a second trip was found necessary.

Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, county health officer, announced that more than 500 posters were made by school children in the drive to keep Arlington County clean. These posters will be on display this week in the Cherrydale library rooms on Lee Highway.

Fire Training School

Arlington.—According to tentative plans, the 1939 Arlington County Firemen's Training School, under supervision of the Virginia League of Municipalities and State and local fire groups, will be held the latter part of the month, Elmer J. Blackmer, jr., secretary of the local firemen's association announced yesterday.

The school is now being held at Winchester and as soon as instruction is completed there the State instructor will come to Arlington County.

Mass Meeting Planned

Arlington—In an effort to arouse interest in the Democratic primary to be held August 1 for county and State officers, the Young Democratic Club at its meeting tonight will consider plans for a Democratic mass meeting. The club will meet at 8 o'clock in the Lee Tavern, Lee boulevard and Glebe road.

Chest Clinic Wednesday

Cherrydale—The monthly chest and tuberculin-test clinic will be held Wednesday at 10 a. m. in the Cherrydale Health Center. These clinics are sponsored by the Arlington County Tuberculosis Association.

Mrs. E. C. Butterfield, president of the association, announced that an X-ray and fluoroscope machine had recently been purchased and installed in the Cherrydale Health Center.

Summer Camp Plans

Arlington.—The county welfare board, meeting tonight at the courthouse, is expected to complete plans for the summer camp on the site of the proposed hospital on North Sixteenth street. The camp has been conducted for several years under supervision of the welfare board for the benefit of underprivileged children.

Moose Women to Elect

Lyon Park.—Election of officers will take place at a meeting of the Women of the Moose tonight at 8 o'clock in Lyon Park Community House.

Lesiter Heads Boys Clubs

Arlington.—Earl R. Lesiter, president of the Lyon Park Club, has been elected president of the Arlington County Federation of Boys Clubs. Other officers are J. D. Granger, Cherrydale Club, first vice president; Frank Appel, St. Charles Club, second vice president; George Hersey, Bon Air Club, secretary; M. Windsor, Ballston Club, treasurer.

Montgomery Class Hears Rev. S. J. Ryzcek

Schools Lack Moral Education, St. Michael's Seniors Are Told

MONTGOMERY COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST,
9213 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md.
Telephone SHepherd 4300.

The lack of moral education in many of our public schools and State institutions, in which emphasis is placed on intellectual training instead of character building, was deplored by the Rev. S. J. Ryzcek, chaplain at Fort Meade, yesterday in his address to the graduating class of St. Michael's Parochial School.

"If our Nation is to grow and progress as it has in the past," he asserted, "we must place more stress on religion, especially in this day and age when so many diabolical doctrines are disseminated throughout the land." The only way of counteracting the selfishness and greed of today is to instill "God-fearing truths in the minds and hearts of our youth," the speaker asserted.

The Rev. Thomas A. Calnan praised the work of the sisters and the Parent-Teacher Association. Father Calnan also conferred the honors which were announced by the Rev. John Czyz, assistant pastor of the church. William Reynolds gave the greeting for the graduates and Patricia Wilson gave a reading. The program also included selections by the school band and songs by the choral class. Winners of half scholarships were announced as follows: Academy of the Holy Names, Mary Elizabeth Maddox and Anna Mary Cassedy and Gonzaga High School, Robert Latimer and Ronayne Waldron.

Anna Mary Cassedy also won a $5 prize for the Knights of Columbus essay contest and the prize for music. Other prize winners in the graduating class were Nancy Chamberlain, who won the prize offered by Father Calnan for religion; Raymond Quinn and William Reynolds, Knights of Columbus religion prizes; William Colliton, American Legion medal; Elizabeth Roth, highest general average; Nancy Hewitt and John McShane, perfect attendance prizes, and Elizabeth Gott and Raymond Quinn, $2 Knights of Columbus essay prizes. Caroline Casey of the seventh grade won the $5 Knights of Columbus essay prize and and the second prize to a seventh grade student was won by Jean Trundle. Prizes for highest averages were awarded to Patricia Ranberg, seventh grade; Patricia Martin, sixth grade; Dolores Thiede, fifth grade; Mary Ann Schrider, fourth grade; William Collins, third grade; Helen Brennan, second grade and Theobald McQueeney, first grade.

The following were graduated:

Shirley Beall	Rita MacDermott
Anna M. Cassedy	Mary E. Maddox

Security Changes Cut Party Line

A Republican and a Democrat joined last night in commending changes in the social security act approved Saturday by the House of Representatives.

Speaking on the mutual system, Representative McLean (Republican), New Jersey, contended that many of the revisions had grown out of criticisms of the law contained in the Republican Presidential platform of 1936.

Representative Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, replied that in evaluating the many suggestions placed before it the committee had "but one criterion—what will best serve to increase the security of the American people, as individuals and as a Nation."

Paroled Convict May Be Returned

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—Edward Bloebaum, 29, who won a parole from the Jefferson City, Mo., penitentiary by his work as a nurse during an epidemic of spinal meningitis, was in custody today, and Police Sergt. Edward Dooley said he might return to prison for parole violation.

Dooley said that on a recent trip to his home in St. Charles, Mo., Bloebaum had talked with a former cellmate, Ledger Veazy, who escaped from the Missouri prison last September, and had failed to notify authorities of the meeting.

Bomb in Mail Kills Jerusalem Guard

Jerusalem, June 11 (U.P.).—A British police sergeant was killed today and eight persons injured when the officer attempted to render harmless a number of bombs placed in letter boxes of the Jerusalem central postoffice by terrorists.

The death of the sergeant followed the injury Saturday of a British police officer, three Jewish constables and three civilians when two bombs exploded in letter boxes.

Pope Thanks Italians Who Fought in Spain

3,200 Are Greeted By Pontiff as 'Defenders of Faith'

By the Associated Press.

Vatican City, June 11.—Pope Pius XII personally thanked 3,200 Spanish soldiers today for defending "the faith and civilization" of Spain under Gen. Franco.

The pontiff received the veterans of the civil war, who came here to march before Premier Mussolini in his victory celebration, along with Ramon Serrano Suner, Franco's brother-in-law and interior minister, and Gen. Gastone Gambara, commander of the Italians who fought in Spain.

Expressing sympathy for the widows and orphans of the war, the holy father urged them to "unite their sorrows with those of our Lady of Sorrows and offer them to God with Christian resignation for the peace of the world."

Soldiers Kiss Pope's Hand

The pontiff showed the esteem in which he held the soldiers by extending a hand for them to kiss as he passed among them. Ordinarily he does not do that in receiving so large a group.

After sitting upon his throne, the Pope said:

"Welcome, leaders, officers and soldiers of Catholic Spain, my most beloved sons, who bring to the heart of your father an immense consolation because you have been the defenders of the faith and civilization of your fatherland for which you have given so much.

"As we told you in our radio message, you have made sacrifices up to the point of heroism to defend the cause of God and religion and you have covered yourselves with glory fighting valiantly for your dear fatherland with Christian courage.

(In a broadcast April 16 to Spain, the Pope extended his "paternal congratulations . . . for peace and the victory which has been granted by God" and praised those who he said fought in the defense of "civilization" against the spread of "atheism.")

Holy Father Cheered

"Our thoughts turn reverently to the companions who died in combat and our paternal heart is moved by the thought of so many generous mothers and so many orphan children.

"We recall that hour of bitterness of the crumbling fatherland when temples were deprived of the Cross of Christ. Spain without that cross would no longer be the glorious, chivalrous and Christian Spain."

The soldiers, wearing khaki uniforms and holding tassled trench caps, cheered the holy father as he entered and knelt as he passed among them.

The Aloha Native Serenaders who will open a summer engagement at the Hi Hat's "Night in Honolulu" tonight

TODAY'S NEW ENTERTAINMENT: On the Shoreham Terrace The Persians are coming! Meaning that the Parker Brothers and Lynn will present a Persian adagio guaranteed to make your eyes pop. New, too, is Myron Pearl, who will give an exhibition of shadow fencing and dance in the Russian manner. Dancers Woods and Bray are held over.

At the Lotus. Another dynamic revue from Chicago. It's headed by the "Six Graces" and under the management of Miss Ardath James, who recently brought the smart Frances Allis dancers to the Lotus. Chelso and Olyvee will present suave ballroom dances.

At Hi Hat. The new Aloha Native Serenaders, led by Bill Holt, will make their Washington bow at the double-gala "Night in Honolulu." Distinguished official guests from Hawaii will be on hand. Everyone will be draped with leis. (Oscar tells us that Hi Hat's tall and refreshing Hawaiian coolers will also make their summer debut tonight.)

At Bamboo Gardens. Another of those flashy Al Norton Revues wiht a big line of dancing pretties and a generous quota of bright specialty acts. Dancers Dick and Evelyn Barclay will remain at Bamboo Gardens for another week.

RADIO TRICKS: Evelyn Knight and Arthur Todd, of the King Cole Room, have been booked for a new commercial radio program and will go on the air in about two weeks. A radio executive recently dropped into the K. C. Room for cocktails and, bingo! right along came the air wave offer for Arthur and Evelyn.

FACES AND PLACES: On the Roger Smith Powhatan roof garden: Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan, jr. . . . A big table of society juniors including Billie Bird West, Logan Owens and Peter Ansbury.

At the Lounge Riviera: Park Avenue's favorite maestro, Meyer Davis . . . A happy trio including Singer Bert Granoff, Audrey Sieber and her fiance, Radioman Fred Shawn.

MAYFAIR GAME: An afternoon cocktail party at Mayfair recently decided to pick their drinks from the around-the-world murals. They had Singapore Slings, Cuba Libres, Daiquiris, Scotch and Irish whisky with soda, Manhattans and West Indies cocktails.

NEW ORCHESTRA: When Wally Stoffler winds up his Glen Echo engagement next Saturday eve (and his music has been bringing a thousand-odd dancers to Echo every night, he will be succeeded by Lang Thompson and his fancy swing specialists.

FARM NEWS: Griffith Farms Tavern is a real farm as well as a fine dining place. There are 120 acres, most of it under cultivation, with plenty of everbearing strawberries and Golden Bantam corn, the latter almost ready for the G. F. T. tables.

ELEGANT DIVERSION: Having a snowball game with the orchestra amid the air-conditioned snowdrifts of the Metronome Room.

Listening to Bert Bernath's Continental songs in the Carlton cocktail lounge.

Taking a look into your future with the aid of Countess de Bournat, now at Maryland Gardens.

Bending an ear to the authentic South Seas music being played in the Neptune Room by Johnny De Leon's Hawaiians.

Cooling off in the Rainbow Room over a planters' punch while Milt Davis and Durward Bowersox hold a novachord-violin session.

MADRILLON MYSTERY: There will soon be a new entertainment novelty at the Madrillon cocktail hour.. Peter Borras says, "I can't tell you what it'll be, because I don't know myself."

GRADUATE MUSICIAN: Dick's Grill is a downtown mecca for musicians. But naturally. Because Owner Dick Ashby used to be a trombone player before he went into the restaurant business.

Spain May Join Axis Arms Pact, Says Madrid

Ciano Reported Planning to Visit Franco on June 21

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, June 11.—Spanish newspapers today reported Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano would visit Gen. Franco June 21, and suggested the possibility Spain may join Italy in a political and military accord similar to the ties between Rome and Berlin.

Reports also raised the possibility of a similar link between Madrid and Berlin.

(Both Germany and Italy aided Gen. Franco in the Spanish civil war. They signed a military pact May 22.)

Spain would be a powerful ally for the axis nations, particularly for any operations in the Mediterranean and North Africa.

Franco Will Act Cautiously

Spain repeatedly has demonstrated close friendship with Italy and Germany and in both of those nations there now are Spanish missions which accompanied legionnaires returning from victorious participation in the civil war.

Spaniards were agreed, however, that Gen. Franco would go very slowly before commiting his nation to any agreement calling for military aid.

The Nationalist leader has declared Spain's first concern now was her reconstruction.

She already is aligned with Germany and Italy through the anti-comintern pact whose other signatories are Japan, Hungary and Manchukuo.

The Spanish press and broadcasts made much last week of declarations in Italy by Ramon Serrano Suner, Franco's brother-in-law and interior minister, Count Ciano and Italian and Spanish generals of the "Indissoluble bond of friendship" between Spain and Italy.

Speculation in Rome

Rome, June 11 (AP).—Diplomatic quarters speculated today on the possibility of an Italian-Spanish military alliance as an outgrowth of current conversations among Italian and Spanish military and naval officers.

Some diplomats said they believed Italy desired such an alliance but expressed doubts that Gen. Franco would be drawn into one.

Such an alliance, they said, might be effected by Spain's whole or partial adherence to the present treaty between Italy and Germany or by a pact with Italy alone since the geographical positions of Italy and Spain would offer special opportunities for strategical collaboration.

Reports that Foreign Minister Count Ciano would visit Madrid have circulated for weeks in Rome but no definite announcement has been made. An eventual visit by Gen. Franco to Rome also has been reported.

French Find Rails Under Frontier

Valenciennes, France, June 11 (AP). Police reported today the discovery of an underground railway linking Belgium with France in the old chateau Mont de Peruwelz, on the French side of the frontier, which they said apparently was used by an espionage ring to get military secrets out of France.

Two men and a woman found in the chateau, where a secret passage led to an underground, narrow gauge line to Belgium, were held on charges of espionage and smuggling.

King Solomon Air-Conditioned Factory Town

New Haven, Conn., June 11 (AP).—The site of wise King Solomon's great factory town of Ezion-geber on the Red Sea—"the Pittsburgh of Palestine"—has been uncovered in excavations just completed by Nelson Glueck, director of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, Yale University announced today.

Many buildings in the vast smelting center, which was believed to have been constructed all at one time from a preconceived and carefully worked-out plan, were air conditioned for heat and contained an elaborate system of flues and air channels that permitted utilization of strong north winds as natural blasts.

Clipper Flies Royal Pictures to Europe

Lisbon, Portugal, June 11 (AP).—Settling gracefully upon the water, Pan American Airways Clipper PAA-21 alighted here today at 7:33 p. m. (2:33 p. m. E. S. T.) from the United States with pictures and newsreel films of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. It will take off for France tomorrow.

This is Pan American's final flight before inaugurating regular passenger service across the Atlantic.

Aboard the Clipper today were Eugene Sibley and W. T. Miller, of the Civilian Aviation Authority; Ross McFarland, a professor at Harvard University and a Pan American consultant; W. T. Jarboe, S. B. Kaufmann and Andrew Lewis, Pan American officials.

Palestine Mayor Foils 3d Assassin

Jerusalem, June. 11 (AP).—Raouf El Bitar, mayor of Jaffa, escaped a third attempt to assassinate him today in a new flare-up of Arab-Jewish strife which took three lives in the Holy Land.

Assailants fired on the mayor and his escort as they were walking through the Jaffa market. The escort returend the fire and killed one of the attackers.

R. E. Alfaro Honored

Rogelio E. Alfaro, attached to the counselor's office of the Pan American Union, has been appointed director of the Pan American Union Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, it was announced yesterday.

Melbourne, Australia, June 11 (AP). Albert George Ogilvie, Labor premier of Tasmania, died of heart failure today while playing golf at Warburton, Victoria. He was 48.

20 Officials Poisoned at Party, Japanese Say

Shanghai, June 11 (AP).—Japanese reported tonight 20 high Japanese and Chinese officials of the Nanking reformed government were ill in the former Chinese capital from drinking wine poisioned in "a daring attempt of Chinese enemies of the new regime at wholesale killing of the officialdom."

They asserted the attempt occurred last night at the Japanese consulate general, when Japanese officials entertained Tamesaburo Shimizu, parliamentary vice minister of foreign affairs in Tokyo, at a banquet.

"Immediately following the drinking of the inital toast to the guest of honor," a Japanese report said, "the entire assemblage was stricken. Japanese civilian and military physicians checked the effects of the poision before it had a chance to have fatal effects."

It had added "the brains behind the outrage still were at large, although Nanking is being scoured" for those responsible.

Hitler Honors Strauss On 75th Birthday

Vienna, June 11 (AP).—Richard Strauss, composer, conducted the Philharmonic Orchestra today in celebration of his seventy-fifth birthday and shared applause with another music lover, Adolf Hitler.

The Reichsfuehrer came to Vienna yesterday to attend the annual theater week festival and join in honoring Strauss. Last night he attended the State Opera to hear Strauss' "Der Friedenstag."

Czech Killings May Bring Tightened German Control

Prague, June 11 (AP).—Reports were current tonight that reorganization of Germany's Bohemia-Moravia protectorate might result from incidents in which a Czech and a German policeman were killed.

Some well-informed Czech quarters feared the protectorate might be abolished and some closer union with Germany established.

At any rate, Czechs were expecting an extension of German control in consequence of the fatal shooting of German Police Sergt. Wilhelm Kneist at Kladno last week.

Madrid Paper Assails U. S. Aid to Child Exiles

Madrid, June 11 (AP).—The newspaper ABC today charged Spanish republican refugees in the United States were pressing a campaign "inciting American citizens and Spanish residents there to adopt Spanish children and prevent their return to Spain."

The newspaper charged the alleged drive was "collective kidnaping" and called on Alexander W. Weddell, United States ambassador-designate to Spain, to explain how the United States Government can "tolerate such an infamous exploitation of Spanish children."

Rumania Reassures Balkan Entente

Ankara, Turkey, June 11 (AP).—Foreign Minister Gafencu of Rumania emphasized the solidarity of the Balkan Entente today upon his arrival for conversations with Turkish officials.

Gafencu asserted Yugoslavia was remaining faithful to the entente in which she is aligned with Rumania, Turkey and Greece.

Japanese Ignore U. S. Protest, Bomb Chungking Mission Area

By the United Press.

Chunking (Monday), June 12.—Twenty-seven Japanese planes dropped 50 bombs on the western section of this provisional Chinese capital at 11:20 o'clock last night.

One bomb landed in the grounds of the American Methodist Episcopal Mission School and near the home of C. B. Rape, a Methodist missionary.

Fifteen Chinese planes went aloft when the raiders appeared and it was announced officially that they shot down three Japanese planes.

This was the first time the Japanese had attacked from the west. The affected area extended from Consulate Row near the Yangtse River to Kiangpei across the Kialing River.

It was not believed casualties would be high.

Protest Seventh Bombing

By the Associated Press

Peiping, China, June 10.—The United States protested today to the Japanese Embassy against the bombing May 24 of the American Southern Baptist Mission at Laiyang, in northern Shangtung province, by a Japanese seaplane.

It was pointed out that this was the seventh Japanese bombing of American mission property during May. Nine such incidents were reported in March and four in April.

Lieut. John Cooper, British assistant military attache, released after being held by Japanese soldiers at Kalgan, returned here apparently in good health.

The British Embassy made public the text of a statement signed by Cooper.

Briton Apologizes

"I apologize for entering the Kalgan war zone without a military pass," it said, "and shall never knowingly commit the same error in the future in any Japanese war zone in China. Any information I may have got since May 25 concerning the Kalgan war zone will never be transmitted to the Chinese side.'"

Cooper, captive since May 26 when he was arrested with Lieut. Col. C. R. Spear, British military attache, was escorted here by one ununiformed Japanese soldier who vanished immediately in crowds at the railroad station. Spear, reported to be charged with collecting military information inside Japanese zones, still was detained.

That the Japanese army henceforth will take any measures it deems appropriate in the case of any person who enters its area of operations without permission and communicates with the enemy was threatened in a Japanese protest over the incident.

Demand Chinese Surrender

Japanese reports from Tientsin meanwhile said "a tense calm before the storm" prevailed in the North China port where the British concession has been threatened with isolation unless four Chinese there were surrendered to the Japanese.

The four are suspected by the Japanese of slaying S. G. Cheng, official of the Japanese-dominated customs at the port.

Japanese said "the isolating process" was due to start "in a few days" but so far there has been no effort to carry out a reported 48-hour ultimatum which expired last Saturday for turning over the Chinese refugees.

Soviet Rewards Transocean Fliers

Moscow, June 11 (AP).—The Soviet government today awarded two of its highest decorations and 20,000 rubles (nominally $3,780) each to Brig. Gen. Vladimir Kokkinaki and Maj. Mikhail Gordienko for their flight last April 28 from Moscow to North America.

Kokkinaki, pilot, and Gordienko, navigator, were forced down on Miscou Island, New Brunswick, on a projected flight from Moscow to the New York World's Fair.

Tsarist Flag Tops Soviet Consulate

Tokyo, June. 11 (INS).—An anti-Soviet White Russian "commission" occupied the Soviet consulate at Tientsin, and hoisted a Tsarist flag over the building, a Japanese news agency stated tonight.

The "commission," it was added, said it was taking charge of the consulate, "pending the birth of a new Russian regime."

Maxine Elliott Retains Strength, Says Nurses

James Gore, D. C. Geodesist, Is Dead at 82

Was Mathematician, Author, and an Aide To King of Siam

James Howard Gore, 82, geodesist, mathematician and author, died Saturday at his home, 221 Prospect street, Friendship Heights, Md. He had taught mathematics at the preparatory school of Columbian University, now George Washington University, for 31 years before his retirement in 1909.

A few months before his retirement he had been elected professor emeritus of mathematics at George Washington. In his vacations Mr. Gore had worked on geodetic surveys in New Mexico, Arkansas and Prussia, and three times with the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey.

He had been president of the International Jury on Instruments of Precision at the Chicago Exposition of 1893, and was commissioner general to subsequent expositions at Antwerp, Amsterdam, Brussels and Liege. At the St. Louis Exposition of 1904 he had been commissioner general for the King of Siam. Two years earlier, when the King was crown prince, Mr. Gore had toured the United States with him.

He formerly had been treasurer of the Anthropological Society of Washington, president of the Philosophical Society of Washington, Fellow of the Actuarial Society of America, and a member of the board of managers of the National Geographical Society since 1906.

He had lectured at many of the prinucipal universities of the United States, including Catholic University. He was the wearer of 14 decorations from Belgium, Bulgaria, France, Siam and Rumania.

Among his published works were treatises on mathematics and geodetics, biographies, linguistic studies and social, economic and political studies of Germany, Belgium and Holland.

Many Americans Live on Negatives, Prof. Luccock Says

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, June 11.—Prof. Halford E. Luccock, of the Yale School of Divinity, attacked the spread of hatred and antagonism toward religious and racial groups as one of the "most disturbing features" of American life today at Riverside Church.

Large numbers of people, he said, are trying to live on "negatives" since the things they hate and oppose occupy "a far greater place in their emotional and mental life than the positive things they believe in and to which they devote themselves.

Democracy can neither be created or preserved by "negative anti-movements," although the word is "mouthed by empty lip-service" today, he declared. It can only be defended by a positive creation of "a way of common life" which guards the worth and dignity of man, he added.

George Olsen to Wed N. Y. Society Girl

Memphis, Tenn., June 11 (AP).—Band Leader George Olsen said here tonight he would marry Clara Lee Pilcer, New York society girl and daughter of Louis Pilcer, insurance broker, in about two weeks.

Olsen's divorce from Ethel Shutta, formerly a vocalist with his orchestra, became final in March.

Hindu to Address Methodist Parley

Bishop Jashwant Rao Chitambar, of Jubbulpore, India, will be guest speaker at the last session of the old Baltimore Conference of the former Methodist Episcopal Church Thursday at 8 p. m. at Douglas Memorial Methodist Church, 808 Eleventh street northeast.

First Indian to be elected a general superintendent of the former Methodist Episcopal Church, he came to America to attend the recent unification conference of the three Methodist branches. Second generation Christian and an outstanding leader among 500,000 Indian Christians of the former Methodist Episcopal Church, he has been a prominent pastor, educator and administrator.

Cyrano to Be Played At Sylvan Theater

The production of Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Sylvan Theater, Washington Monument grounds, will open a series of 11 Tuesday evening programs offered by the summer festival committee of the Community Center Department, with the co-operation of the Office of National Parks.

This week's production will be given by the Blackfriars Guild of Catholic University. Next week the Columbia Light Opera Co. will present "The Geisha."

Liberal G. O. P. In 1940 Urged By Alf Landon

Boston, June 11 (U.P.).—Alfred M. Landon, of Kansas, today advocated a "liberal Republican Party of 1940" and warned that the advancement of a "too conservative program" in the wake of a Republican victory next year would be dangerous.

"We must reform, improve and make necessary modifications in New Deal legislation," Landon said.

Referring to the efforts of the Nation toward economic recovery, he said the "brake is being applied by 'big business' and the Administration.'

"There is a very definite arrogance being displayed by 'big business' toward the Administration, while the Administration—or Mr. Roosevelt—is equally as arrogant toward 'big business,'" he added.

Storm Kills Six In Middle West

Indianapolis, June 11 (AP).—Indiana today counted three dead, Ohio two, and Wisconsin one, in the wake of a June storm which slashed through six Midwestern States, injuring more than 50 persons and causing thousands of dollars property damage.

The high wind, rain and lightning swept across this State, and parts of Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin and Kentucky last night.

Lehman Signs 4 Housing Bills

Albany, N. Y., June 11 (U.P.).—Gov. Lehman tonight signed four bills effectuating a 1938 constitutional amendment which allocated $300,000,000 for slum demolition and low-cost housing construction.

Measures signed:

Appropriate $50,000,000 for projects during the fiscal year starting July 1; appropriate $250,000 for low-rent subsidies in the same period; authorize the State Division of Housing to supervise expenditure of all money and approve projects; create the post of Housing Superintendent at $12,000 a year.

West Point Star's, Woman's Bodies Believed Found

Westbrook, Me., June 11 (INS).—With the discovery of a fourth human foot and other human bones in a disused town dump, authorities tonight called on science to unravel what they believe is the double murder of a man and a woman.

Police said the bodies of the couple might be that of Capt. Henry J. Flood, former West Point baseball player, missing from his Army post at Fort Williams since April 22, and an unidentified blonde woman companion.

Capt. Flood, who has been the object of a Nation-wide search, was last reported seen in the company of the blonde.

Flandin Assails Daladier for Not Having Peace Plan

Avallon, France, June 11 (AP).—Former Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin celebrated his entry into the ranks of France's "elder statesmen" today with an attack on Premier Daladier for failing to offer a new world peace plan.

Flandin, now in his fiftieth year, was guest at a dinner given by 500 leaders of his Democratic Alliance Party in this city, which he has represented in Parliament for a quarter of a century.

Hungarian Nazis Draft Demands For Parliament

Budapest, June 11 (AP).—Hungarian Nazi chiefs, elated at expected coordination of Hungarian and German domestic policies as a result of the recent visit of German Interior Minister Wilhelm Frick, drafted a legislative program today for Parliament which opens tomorrow.

Points reliably reported as heading the Nazi program include distribution of Hungary's huge estates among the landless peasants, strict application and extension of sweeping anti-Jewish laws and heavy taxes on wealth.

Borrowed Plane Crashes; Two Die

Kenosha, Wis., June 11 (AP).—A pilot flying a borrowed monoplane and his passenger were killed today when the plane crashed near the Kenosha Country Club, 7 miles north of the city.

The pilot was Magnus Jacobson, 35, of Racine, and the passenger was identified as Richard D. Kidder, 19, of Racine, who returned yesterday after graduating from the University of South Carolina.

Roosevelt Speaks Today At West Point

To Award Diplomas Personally to Each, Receive Two Salutes

Special Dispatch to The Post.

West Point, N. Y., June 11.—President Roosevelt will arrive at the United States Military Academy here at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow and will deliver the commencement address to the graduating class shortly before noon, it was announced here today. The President will receive a 21 gun salute when he arrives by automobile.

The President will be welcomed by Brig. Gen. Jay L. Benedict, superintendent of the academy.

A regimental colors dip, corps hand salute, and a ruffles and flourish by the Army Band will be accorded the President. The band will play "Hail the Chief" and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Brig. Gen. Benedict will then introduce the President and Mr. Roosevelt will speak for 20 minutes, from 11:48 a. m. to 12:08 p. m.

He then will award the diplomas, each cadet to receive his individually from the President. Benediction will be said at 12:54 p. m. by the Rev. George G. Murdock, Catholic chaplain at West Point, after which Army cheer leaders will lead the corps in a "long corps" yell for the President.

Mr. Roosevelt and his party will leave at 12:56 p. m. and will go to a private reception in the superintendent's quarters. At 1:30 p. m. he will motor to the West Shore station and will leave by train. A 21-gun salute at the station will send him off and the band will repeat a ruffles and flourish, "Hail to the Chief" and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

June Week ceremonies at the Academy will then be officially over.

King and Queen Like Hot Dogs

the flatlands bordering the Hudson River, where is a stand of virgin timber of which the President is very fond.

It is likely that nothing in their entire American visit has removed Their Majesties so completely from the formalized routine of their public appearances than this expedition to the top of Dutchess Hill with the President as chauffeur.

Missing were the motorcycle escorts, the military guards and uniformed aides who have bedecked their comings and goings previously. Missing were the crowds of cheering, flag-waving Americans and British who have lined the roads. This afternoon their route lay through quiet June woods and only a handful of women and girls waited at the pasture gate to see them enter.

The picnic party, about 150 in number, had arrived at the hilltop before the four distinguished joyriders arrived. They had parked their cars in a newly mown pasture adjoining the clearing in the woods which shelters the cottage, and were grouped on chairs under the trees.

The King and Queen, the President and his mother and a few other specially invited guests were seated at tables on the porch. Everyone else ate from his lap, from a paper plate, but all were served by White House servants in white jackets, who moved swiftly through the clearing and prevented crowding about the serving tables. In this respect only was it a picnic de luxe.

The wife of the President had no fixed post throughout the meal. She was all over the place, watching the supply of hot dogs, making sure that everyone was well provided for. A stream of laughter and joking remarks followed her, as she moved about from table to table.

Mrs. Roosevelt was the least formally dressed of any woman present. In a simple tennis dress of pink and white striped cotton, open at the throat, with a white scarf about her hair, she was dressed as she had promised to be "in the coolest thing I own."

The Queen also was in a country frock of printed challis—with gay background and tiny red and blue figures. She wore a straw sailor hat with a high crown and bunch of bright-colored flowers directly in the center of the front. Her stockings and slippers were gray. On her left shoulder was one gardenia.

Both the King and the President had changed after church to holiday garb. The King had on a dark suit and soft brown felt hat. The President was in a lighter gray suit and was hatless.

Following the picnic the entire company was presented to Their Majesties, but Mrs. Roosevelt suggested that those who had already shaken hands with them at previous meetings in Washington forbear to do so again. The King and Queen shook hands as long as the President did, and thereafter they merely bowed and smiled.

Members of the Roosevelt household staff, the White House secretariat and tenants of the farms who had helped in preparations for the picnic also were presented the royal visitors. Chief of these was the superintendent of the farm's roads, Frank Dice, who brought with him nine of his ten children to meet the King and Queen.

King, Queen Attend Episcopal Church With Roosevelts

phers boomed while the train pulled out.

The President and members of his family remained behind at the station for several minutes after the departure of the train. He chatted with old neighbors and friends.

In thanking the Roosevelts for their hospitality, the King and Queen said au revoir and not goodbye for it is understood they extended a cordial invitation to the President and his wife to visit them in England at a time mutually convenient. However, there is still no official confirmation of this report, although it is a matter of protocol for heads of friendly states to repay each other's formal visits. For instance, after Their Majesties visited Paris last summer, the French President, Lebrun, and Mme. Lebrun accepted an invitation to visit London where they received high honors befitting a head of one of the "three great democracies."

Politics May Interfere

Political complications at home should be the only factor operating to prevent a return visit by the Roosevelts, or to delay the visit until Mr. Roosevelt has retired from office and can attend Buckingham Palace as a distinguished private citizen, a country squire and occasional author.

In any event, the King and the President already have had opportunity for several man-to-man chats, at the White House and here at Hyde Park, on the state of the world in general and the future of the Anglo-American axis in particular. Exactly what they discussed is their secret, but it is reasonable to assume that various phases of "parallel action" between Britain and the United States were touched upon, if only lightly and in general terms.

Although Their Majesties could pass only four days in the United States, after their main Canadian tour and before they headed homeward, they probably accomplished what Prime Minister Chamberlain had mapped out for them on this good-will mission, to focus world attention on the ties of blood and sentiment between Britain and the United States and the possibilities of even further co-operation between them in the future for war or peace.

Church in the morning, picnic luncheon and Indian songs in the afternoon, formal dinner in the evening—today's schedule of activities went off as arranged, but the President and the King added two attractions of their own, each indulging in a personal hobby.

Candid Cameras Busy

Photographers had been barred from the picnic grounds to give the King and Queen a relief from the omniscient cameramen. But the Roosevelt hosts reckoned without their guests. Although professional newspaper and newsreel photographers couldn't penetrate past the gates, the 167 invited guests at the picnic included a surprisingly large number of candid camera fans who persisted in snapping royalty eating hot dogs and drinking beer. The King took this in good spirit and finally turned the tables on his amateur photographers. George VI happens to be a clever amateur himself and often photographs his family and friends. This afternoon he borrowed a hand movie camera from one of the guests and proceeded to use up some film that should be fairly priceless if only His Majesty would release it for publication.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

King George and President Roosevelt pause for a short talk outside St. James' Church at Hyde Park, the first time that a reigning King of England and a President of the United States ever attended church services together on American soil

In addition to the guests at the picnic, the King was interested in the antics and regalia of the Indian performers. His Majesty, who is Emperor of India among other titles, photographed the American Indian princess, Te Ata, and a second Indian, Ish-Ti-Opi, in their buckskin, beaded and befeathered costumes of Sioux and Zuni chieftians and squaws. He is taking the film home with him to show the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose what their parents saw 'way out on the wild west frontier of Hyde Park.

All eyes were on the King and Queen at the Val-Kill cottage picnic as they picked up their hot dogs. They seemed puzzled at first as to whether to employ knife and fork to cut up the morsels or whether to dispense with utensils and devour the sandwich American style. Their decision was to do as the Americans do, when in America, even going so far as to taking a generous dab of mustard with the meat. Earlier, the King had said that he was looking forward to his introduction to hot dogs, and he seemed to relish the great American delicacy. If perchance he did not relish it, he was too much of a diplomat to reveal it.

The President's mother was hostess at dinner again this evening. Unlike last night, when the King and Queen were late for dinner, having been detained by wholesale handshakings at the New York World's Fair, tonight's dinner started promptly at 8 o'clock. The guest list was:

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Their Britannic Majesties, His Excellency the Right Honorable W. L. MacKenzie King, His Excellency the British Ambassador and the Honorable Lady Lindsay, the Lady Nunburnholme, the Lady Katharine Seymour, Surgeon Capt. Henry White, Royal Navy; Mr. George F. Steward, Capt. Michael Adeane, Lieut. Col. the Honorable Piers W. Legh, Dr. E. H. Coleman, Honorable Stephen T. Early, Brig. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntyre, Miss Margarite Lehand Miss Laura Delano, Mrs. Tracy Dows.

The last day in the United States for the King and Queen began on a religious note when they accompanied the Roosevelts to the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. James's for the morning prayer service, traveling along the Albany Post road lined with several thousand cheering men, women and children, some of them waving British flags. The little ivy-clad, tree-shaded cement church could hold only 200 worshipers, but its green lawns and the highway beyond were jammed with curious folk who saw royalty come to worship and waited during the service lasting over an hour to catch another glimpse.

It was a simple "low church" service, without incense, that the King "Defender of the Faith" attended. He and the Queen sat in a front row pew with the Roosevelts. The King placed a hand over his face and bowed his head during the general confession and absolution.

Special prayers were said for the President and the King, also for Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mother Mary and the Princess Elizabeth.

Additional prayers and hymns were followed by the sermon, of which the text was from the fourth chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians.

In it, Bishop Tucker asserted "We can love our neighbors as ourselves only when we make the definition of neighbor all-inclusive."

"But sometimes," he added, "our interests in our own country have led to extreme nationalism, race prejudice and sectarian persecution."

He rebuked Christians who practice Christianity for selfish motives and asserted that "regeneration of the individual and the regeneration of the social order are not separate aims." He stressed the evil of class feeling and group selfishness.

"Too frequently, such (partisan) loyalty instead of increasing our concern for the welfare of those beyond the limits of our own group leads us to ignore it or even makes us feel justified in exploiting it.

"To love one's neighbor as one's self is an adequate moral principle only when we give an all-inclusive answer to the question, 'Who is my neighbor?'" he continued.

"Yet even in this enlightened age when we have accustomed ourselves to speak of the world as a neighborhood, we have found no human means of freeing mankind from its bondage of group selfishness. It still asserts itself in such forms as extreme nationalism, class passed, both the King and Queen feeling, race prejudice."

When the collection plates were dropped in American paper currency. The example they set gave the church its best collection in years. The vestryman who had the distinction of collecting from Their Majesties was a bus proprietor and baseball team manager, Arthur De Groff. Usually the King carries no money of his own and has to rely on one of his attendants for change, but this time he came prepared to donate generously.

Peace Served By Royal Visit, Is View Here

Encouragement Lent To Nonaggressors, Capital Convinced

By the Associated Press.

As King George VI leaves the United States, the Administration is convinced his visit has served the useful purpose of showing the world a way out of the international chaos into which it has fallen.

At a time in the international community when treaties are violated, or denounced on every side, and nations are invaded and boundaries changed, a visit such as the ruler of the British Empire has made to the United States is interpreted here to have been:

An encouragement to the nations that have not fallen before aggression.

A hint to the nations that have used aggression that their best progress in the future is through peaceful means.

Perhaps some in Washington and London would like the states which they regard as "trouble-makers" to believe that under the gay cloak of the visit lies, too, a solid common intention to do all in the power of the two nations to act together in preserving peace.

An Anglo-American alliance, an Anglo-American economic front, an Anglo-American gentlemen's agreement—all these have been proposed by responsible statesmen of both countries for many years but with no degree of backing on this side.

It is possible, however, that King George's visit may produce somewhat the same effect without the ritual. Sentiment in this country is strong against any "foreign alliance;" but the cheering crowds and the warmth of the welcome for the visiting sovereigns evidenced for the world the sympathetic feeling the people of the United States have for England.

President Roosevelt went out of his way to make the strongest toast he could on the occasion of the White House dinner.

Diplomats here were not a little surprised, because, in their opinion, toasts should not go beyond mere expressions of good will. They regarded the King's toast as correct and the President's as significant.

Canada's part in the visit of the King and Queen to the United States was repeatedly and significantly cited by the King and the President. Mackenzie King, the Canadian premier, accompanied George VI to the United States as a minitser in attendance. The King said in his toast that he brought Canada's "warm greetings of a neighbor and a trusted friend." He laid a wreath at the Canadian cross in Arlington Cemetery, a monument erected in memory of the Americans who fought in the Canadian army during the World War.

The emphasis on Canada conveys to many here the impression that the Dominion is designed to be a logical stepping stone or halfway point for close relations between the United States and Britain—for a moral line-up of "parallel policy" from Washington to London through Ottawa.

France to Release Dispensible Troops

Paris, June 11 (U.P.).—Premier Daladier announced today that limited demobilization of all "dispensible" forces among France's 1,250,000 troops, most of which have been stationed along the Italian and German frontiers since last March, will be started September 1.

Apparently confident that European tension has been eased in recent weeks, the premier and war minister announced his decision in a letter to the president of his own Radical-Socialist Party.

"It is so beautiful, it is like the Queen; and she must have it," said Mrs. Louise Streeter Warren Martin Friday when she saw a half-opened 100-year-old tree in the garden of Mrs. William McAuliffe, of 132 C street northeast.

"And now she has it!" Mrs. Martin told The Post yesterday. "I took it to the station when the Queen was about to get on the train, and I got through all those bluecoats and browncoats and all—I told them it couldn't be harmful and it was so simple and beautiful and I made fun of it and wept crocodile tears, and finally the Queen got it."

"I put a card on it, saying 'A Washington magnolia for the Queen' and a messenger boy took it on to the train."

Father Divine Subs for Royalty On East Side

New York, June 11.—Residents of the lower East Side, disappointed by the failure of King George and Queen Elizabeth to visit their neighborhood Saturday, were somewhat appeased today by a visitation from Father Divine and 2,000 "angels."

Father Divine missed the start of the parade, having passed the night at one of his "heavens," Krum Elbow, directly across the Hudson from President Roosevelt's estate at Hyde Park, where Their Majesties are stopping, riding in his $28,000 "throne car" with Mother Divine at his side. Father Divine overtook the procession of angels soon after it had left the starting place, Madison Square.

Awaiting Rulers, City Hit by Wind

St. Johns, Quebec, June 11 (Canadian Press)—A 60-mile-an-hour wind did thousands of dollars of damage today to this city of 12,000 people, who are awaiting a visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth tomorrow.

The wind, accompanied by a downpour of rain and hail, unroofed houses and destroyed decorations but no one was injured.

She Lost FAT Husband Pleased

"I am so happy to get rid of that bulky fat. My husband is very pleased with me. My skin is clearer and I feel so much better since I'm not so heavy on my feet. Friends say I look much better." Mrs. N. Spickler, Maugansville, Md.

If you are overweight, try this easy, sensible way to take off fat. No drastic dieting or strenuous exercise; no harmful drugs. Here's all you do: For the next 4 weeks cut out fat meats, butter, cream and rich pastries and go light on potatoes, rice and sugar. There need never be a hungry moment. You can eat plentifully of lean meats, chicken, fish, salads, green vegetables and fruits. Take one-half a level teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot or cold water every morning, half an hour before breakfast to gently activate liver, bowels and particularly the kidneys—Don't miss a morning. Then weigh yourself again.

Now you'll know one easy, sensible way to take off fat. A way that your doctor should approve of. And remember this, the man or woman who takes Kruschen regularly need have no fear of wastes and excess acids poisoning the system, and which is the cause of many annoying and depressing ills. For Better Business

This week the Better Business Bureau of Washington celebrates the beginning of its twentieth year of service to the community. During that time the efforts of the organization have been devoted chiefly to the improvement of advertising methods and the elimination of unfair merchandising practices. In the financial field it has also employed its information service to protect the public from unscrupulous purveyors of unsound speculative securities.

The importance of the work done by the bureau cannot be judged by a mere recital of objectives and accomplishments. As stated in its last annual report, the effectiveness of the organization has to be gauged rather by "the things which don't happen in Washington business than by those which do." In other words, emphasis is placed upon prevention rather than suppression of bad practices.

Thus the bureau offers friendly advice to retailers to save them from mistakes that in the long run would lead to their own undoing. In its campaign to suppress false and misleading advertising, as well as its program of consumer education, the bureau is also erecting effective barriers against fraud and misrepresentation.

The work of the bureau brings it into close contact with a large number of governmental agencies, such as the Federal Trade Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Public Health Office, the Police Department and the District License Bureau. It seeks from these agencies co-operation in suppression of unfair practices and undertakes to keep its members fully informed concerning official rules and regulations to which they are subject.

Hundreds of local business firms support the bureau and leading businessmen of Washington comprise its board of directors. Here, in short, is evidence that the local business community has developed a method of self-regulation that is efficacious because guided by enlightened self-interest and morally stimulating because it calls for self-imposed discipline.

Puerto Rican Appeal

The demand for Statehood, again being voiced in Puerto Rico, is, in a measure at least, the reflection of a commendable desire on the part of the people of that possession to remain permanently under the shelter of the American flag.

Puerto Ricans are not unmindful of the real benefits they have derived from their association with the United States during the past 40 years. While extremists have, from time to time, raised the banner of Puerto Rican independence, only a small percentage of the islanders have ever given their support to so suicidal a program.

Yet long years of American neglect, plus the indifference toward Puerto Rican interests not infrequently manifested in Washington, have undoubtedly wounded the pride of the island people. And they have become sufficiently imbued with the spirit of American democracy to desire a much larger measure of self-government than they now possess.

For practical reasons, however, Statehood for Puerto Rico at this time would be almost as ruinous to the island as would complete independence. With Statehood, the receipts from Puerto Rican customs and from internal revenue levies, which are now kept in Puerto Rico, would go to the National Treasury. And the particularism manifested by the islanders, the result of long years of rule by Spain and the relatively brief association with the United States, would probably grow rather than diminish. Thus while Statehood would salve the pride of Puerto Ricans, it would tend to accentuate the very grave economic difficulties which plague the island.

What is clearly needed is a closer relationship, rather than any drawing apart of the island and the mainland. For this reason, the alternative proposal of an elected Governor, advanced by a Puerto Rican legislative committee, is also premature.

It is easy to understand that demand. Only too often Presidents have named as Governors of Puerto Rico men who were totally ignorant of the island and its problems. But in view of the very real dependence of Puerto Rico on the United States, it is still necessary that the Governorship be filled by someone who has the confidence of the Administration and of Congress.

It would be helpful if some such provision as now obtains with respect to appointments to the Governorship of Hawaii were also extended to Puerto Rico. No one can be named Governor of Hawaii who has not been a resident of those islands for at least three years. The period of residence need not be quite so long in the case of Puerto Rico. Yet the selection of Governors on the basis of their demonstrated service to the island would be a constructive step.

A Clash Of Policies

During the first ten months of the current fiscal year the Department of Agriculture reports a drop of 21 per cent in the value of our agricultural exports. This decline is largely attributable to a shrinkage of cotton exports which are expected to be smaller this season than at any time during the past half century.

Since 1933, when the Administration embarked upon its price raising campaign, American cotton has been rapidly losing ground abroad. When efforts to raise prices by means of acreage control failed, Government loans were resorted to as a means of keeping domestic cotton prices above world market levels. As a result, cheaper cotton of foreign growths has been steadily pushing the American product out of its former export markets.

The curtailment of our export trade in cotton is patently due to a price-control policy that has aggravated the existing disproportion between demand and supply. The only feasible method of recapturing a substantial part of this trade is to abandon the practices that are responsible for our difficulties. Unfortunately, neither Congress nor the Administration is prepared to withdraw the props that prevent shippers of cotton and other products from meeting the prices charged for competing foreign products.

Instead of removing the artificial hindrances to correction of existing economic maladjustments, new forms of interference with prices and normal marketing processes are being considered. The President and Secretary Wallace, for instance, recommend payment of export bounties as a means of pushing a portion of our abnormally large cotton surplus into export channels. Export subsidies have already been applied to wheat. If we should extend the system to cotton, the pressure to obtain subsidies for still other agricultural commodities would steadily increase.

From the national viewpoint the subsidization of exports is most uneconomic, and from the taxpayers' viewpoint, very costly. Moreover, even if we were disposed to disregard the purely economic arguments against subsidized exporting, we could not close our eyes to certain practical objections to this system. The United States takes prompt steps to protect domestic producers from the competition of dumped imports. Why, then, should we expect foreigners to submit passively to the dumping of our agricultural products into their markets?

Export subsidies are not only economically indefensible; they are also in conflict with the policies being followed by the Department of State in negotiating reciprocal trade pacts. There is an irreconcilable inconsistency between the Hull efforts to lower trade barriers and the AAA's price-raising program, which inevitably leads to the erection of new barriers to international trade. We are simply deceiving ourselves by pretending that we can expand our foreign trade by mutual agreement, and simultaneously pursue price-raising policies that seriously impair, or actually destroy, the demand for our exports.

Our National Cult

Whether it was young Abner Doubleday or one of the Cro-Magnon boys that really invented baseball, and whether it happened an even 100 years ago in the bright June sunshine at Cooperstown, N. Y., or in some impenetrable prehistoric fog, holds only academic interest. Strictly speaking, it has little to do with our celebration today of the baseball centenary. Myths, as Plato explained, may be more perfect representations of truth than mere facts. We might almost say that if Abner Doubleday had never existed (though you may be sure that he did) it would be necessary to invent him.

The important thing is that the mutations of baseball within the past 100 years have made it into our greatest and most elaborate folk institution, and the one that reveals more perfectly than any other our modern American psychology. It is no longer a game so much as a national cult with its own special pantheon, its own special mysteries, its millions of votaries. Perhaps this explains why Europeans often find it perplexing. "Deuced decent of the fellow, don't you know," exclaimed an Englishman when the strategy of a sacrifice bunt had been explained to him.

Perhaps the moral to be drawn is that the responsibilities of a player in baseball reflect the duties of a citizen in a democratic society. There are occasions, certainly, when the citizen must recognize the necessity of subordinating his individual interest to the commonweal. Another duty of the citizen is that of self-control and clear thinking in moments of crisis and surging passions. Still another analogy is the necessity for that eternal vigilance that is said to be the price of liberty.

But quite aside from its politico-moral overtones, baseball stands as America's greatest contribution to the dramatic art. It is only because baseball is drama of the highest order that crowds are as vital to it as the players themselves. To play baseball without spectators would be like playing Hamlet in a desert island. What the fan seeks and finds in baseball is not a mere contest of wits and skills, but an heroic dramatization of the hazards, triumphs and disasters of his own existence.

We identify our petty lives with this struggle of heroes. We rage at the fates (umpires) that humble us and honor our enemies. When we see our protagonist on the mound trying to bear down with the bases loaded it terrifies but also exalts us as we can never be exalted when we try to bear down against butchers' bills, mortgage interest and the next month's installment on the car. And when we hear that sharp crack which spells calamity, when we see the desperate flash of the outfielder's legs, when we follow the steep arc of the ball before it plops in the far, far stands, we taste all the delicious grandeurs of tragedy.

Sign Of Leadership

The straightforward and convincing indorsement given the Overton bill by the District Commissioners carries an impression that Washington once more has a government capable of fighting for its interests. By any criterion that may be applied, the local government is pitifully weak. Even so, the Commissioners can make their influence felt when they have the courage to take a firm stand.

As presented by the Commissioners, the case for the Overton bill needs no amplification. Congress has drastically cut its allowance to the Capital while it has been rapidly withdrawing into tax-exempt Government ownership land from which the District previously drew part of its tax revenues. In other words, Congress has compelled the local community to pay an increasing percentage of the Capital's expenses while detracting from its ability to do so.

The Overton plan of dividing Washington's expenses in the same ratio that land holdings in this limited area are divided between the Federal Government and other owners is eminently fair. Indeed, the sum it would give the District from the Federal Treasury is only slightly larger than the "lump sum" approved last week by the Senate. The District is not even asking for restoration of the law which accorded it more generous treatment in the past. It asks only the adoption of a formula, fair to both governments, that would give it assurance against municipal stagnation in the future.

In contrast with this attitude, the stand taken by some members of the House is singularly lacking in logic. It is proposed that the Federal payment to this rapidly growing Capital be limited to $5,000,000 by law. And that scheme to cut off additional Federal revenue for Washington is contained in a tax bill drafted in recognition of the acute need for a larger municipal income. A well-balanced tax bill ought to be passed, but it should be accompanied by a measure that will adequately recognize the Government's responsibility for the extraordinary costs of maintaining its own Capital.

Aside from the strength of the argument advanced by the Commissioners, the fact that they cleared the hurdle of Budget Bureau opposition and assumed a position of leadership in behalf of the District is most encouraging. Too frequently they have been content to remain in the background when vital issues affecting the local community have been at stake. The positive manner in which they have now thrown their strength behind the Overton bill suggests a more vigorous policy in pressing for District legislation. Forceful leadership of that sort in the District Building would be one of the greatest assets that Washington could acquire.

Suckers

One of former President Theodore Roosevelt's best known admonitions was to "speak softly and carry a big stick." While following in the trust-busting tradition of the first Roosevelt, Mr. Thurman Arnold has given a somewhat different twist to this motto. He has spoken emphatically to big men carrying little sticks. But the outcome seems to be no less satisfactory.

With the children of the country solidly behind him, Mr. Arnold recently obtained a consent decree in a New York court ending a lollypop stick monopoly of surprising magnitude. One of the defendant companies was dissolved and five others "agreed to a perpetual injunction against acting together to fix prices, control production or interfere with free competition." Government figures show a $5,000,000 yearly outlay merely for sticks from which lollypops are consumed.

The story of how the lollypop stick monopoly has been broken up ought to be widely told. When youngsters devour a big "all-day" sucker in only a fraction of a day it is rather disillusioning for them to be left holding the stick. Mr. Arnold now offers them assurance that at least they will not henceforth be left holding the bag.

It is said that six persons can ride in the new midget automobile if they are well acquainted.

It invariably gives a person a pain in the neck to look up at some one sitting on the pinnacle of success.

Due Process

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In its recent opinion upholding the validity of orders of the Secretary of Agriculture designed to stabilize and regulate the milk industry in the New York area, and sustaining Congressional power authorizing the action taken, a majority of the Supreme Court finds further extreme reach for the "commerce" power upon grounds which deserve thoughtful analysis.

More and more the reliance placed upon State's rights is proven a broken reed which pierces the hand; and no less the assertion that the fifth amendment, alone, separated from its necessary interdependence on the ninth and tenth, fails to bar these extreme, if necessary, exertions of Federal power.

While the majority was divided upon the necessity for deciding that the power of Congress was limited in the premises, it decided that the power of Congress to regulate commerce comprehends power to control or discourage the volume of commodity movement in interstate commerce.

Without wishing in any way to adopt a view of the principles involved which is narrow or restrictive, I feel that this last postulate of the majority opinion compels consideration of the question whether this and similar assumptions of paramount power in Congress must not be regarded from the standpoint of what is conservative of rights and powers reserved and retained to the whole people. Perhaps the most conclusive argument for this point of view is embodied in Taney's opinion in "Holmes v. Jennison."

Rejecting the superficial argument that the court is usurping the amending power, it would seem that there must be reared a broader conception of the due process clause of the fifth amendment truly protective of the rights of each and all the people foreshadowed in Taney's little-known opinion.

Had this point of view, plainly indicated by Marshall (Barron v. Mayor of Baltimore) been followed, and Taney's opinion given its due weight, there would have been no call for the inclusion of a due process clause in the fourteenth amendment. In the light of recent divided, hence doubtful, opinion of the court associating liberty of speech with United States citizenship and Congressional action, it becomes more than ever necessary to recur to the guarantee of the fifth amendment.

The trend toward these greater equities is apparent in present judicial opinion: By a process of trial and error the court may well be groping its way to the larger general interest and right which the changed circumstances of our time seem to render imperative. It is in the danger that the line of demarcation will not be drawn clearly between regulatory powers of Congress that are conservative of the rights of all and those which, similarly purposed, infringe the equal rights of some with proportionate injury to all, that concern is most genuinely felt. But The Court Leaves It To Congress

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Lest your readers become unduly alarmed, permit me to take issue with your editorial of June 7 entitled "Tragic Era Strategy." In this editorial you draw a most fantastic conclusion from the interpretation which you place upon the reasoning of the Supreme Court in its recent opinion relative to ratification by the States of the child labor amendment. The pertinent portion of your conclusion is as follows: "If Congress doesn't like the response of any group of States it might, conceivably, by resort to 'tragic era' tactics, set up in those States puppet governments that will follow the lead of Washington." Based on the decision of the court, this is, I submit, a patent non sequitur, and the court, I am sure, would be the first to reject any such inference from its reasoning.

You seem to forget that the only reason why Congress was able during the "tragic era" to set up "puppet governments" in some of the Southern States was because those States were considered by Congress to have forfeited their rights as States as a result of secession and the Civil War and were required to fulfill certain conditions before they could again exercise their former rights, a view which received the indorsement of the Supreme Court in the case of Texas vs. White (7 Wall., 1869). It was in exercising its constitutional right to impose conditions which must be fulfilled prior to readmission to full Statehood that Congress prescribed those obnoxious conditions which made possible the creation of the "puppet governments" of which you speak.

The conditions thus prescribed were based on the power of Congress to admit new States (which in this case meant readmitting old ones), or on its obligation to guarantee to every State in the Union a republican form of government, depending on whether one took the view that the seceding States had been out of the Union, as some members of Congress believed, or whether they had merely forfeited temporarily their rights as States, which was the view taken by the majority of the Supreme Court. In either case, these conditions could not have been imposed except under the extraordinary circumstances then prevailing.

It is obviously absurd, therefore, to state, as you subsequently do: "By these methods Congress could, in an emergency, coerce the States into adoption of almost any amendment to the Constitution it might approve." It is scarcely conceivable that Congress should hold refusal to ratify an amendment as evidence of the absence of a republican form of government in a State or States so refusing. No emergency, then, short of another civil war accompanied by the secession of one or more States (a possibility which you will doubtless admit is most unlikely) would give Congress the opportunity to impose its will in this manner upon the States.

It has already been well established (Coyle vs. Smith, 221 U. S., 1911) that Congress cannot impose conditions upon a State as a prerequisite to admission which will be binding after admission and the attainment of Statehood. Most certainly, then, Congress could not impose new conditions upon States already admitted. Furthermore, there emerged quite clearly from the chaos created by the disputed election of 1876 the constitutional principle that Congress cannot go behind the returns in elections and that the States themselves are responsible for determining how their votes shall be cast.

In view of the above, I feel that your editorial was unnecessarily alarming and drew a totally unwarranted conclusion from the reasoning of the court. Any attempt of Congress to set up "puppet governments" in States already within the Union for the purpose of securing ratification of an amendment which existing State governments had already rejected, would be promptly challenged in the courts and would, I have no doubt, be denounced by the Supreme Court unanimously as a flagrant violation of the rights of the States.

Maryland Drivers

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of June 6, there appeared on the first page an article with headline reading "Maryland Drivers Most Reckless in D. C. Report Shows." The article then sets forth the facts that Maryland motorists who comprise 10 per cent of the District's traffic volume were responsible for one-half of the city's accident fatality toll last month according to a report issued by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic. The report disclosed that three of the motorists involved in last month's traffic fatalities were residents of Maryland.

This record indicating that Maryland drivers, who comprise 10 per cent of Washington's traffic, were responsible for 50 per cent of the traffic fatalities during a one-month period was so startling that I looked up the record for the 17 months beginning January 1, 1938, and ending May 31, 1939. Without in any way minimizing the distressingly unfavorable record made by Maryland drivers last month, it is encouraging to know that the record over the extended period beginning January 1, 1938, shows that only nine Maryland drivers were involved in the 123 traffic fatalities occurring during that period.

In other words, for this extended period, Maryland drivers, who comprise 10 per cent of the traffic in Washington, were involved in 7 1/3 per cent of the traffic fatalities. The fact that three Maryland drivers were involved in fatal accidents during the month of May is significant, as is the further fact that five Maryland drivers have been involved in fatal traffic accidents for the first five months of 1939, compared with a total of four Maryland drivers who were involved in fatal traffic accidents in the District of Columbia during the 12 months' period from January 1 to December 31, 1938. These figures show that the safety record of Maryland drivers in the District of Columbia was much better during the year 1938 than it has been so far for the year 1939.

Because of the way the headline reads, disclosing the record for the month, giving an altogether erroneous picture of the record of Maryland drivers in general, I am writing to ask if you would not publish in The Washington Post in as conspicuous a place as was used for the prior article, the fact that over a seventeen months' period, Maryland drivers have been involved in but 7 1/3 per cent of the fatal traffic accidents in the Nation's Capital.

Back-Slap

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With all due regard for the sterling civic sense and Jeffersonian democracy of the Vice President, I doubt seriously if he will have furthered his announced candidacy, by his back-slapping familiarity with King George, (if the garden party incident is correctly reported).

Despite his comparative youth and the unexpected circumstances in which he succeeded to the throne, George VI has, in the regard of the average American, proved himself twice the king that George III was.

Even disregarding, as we Americans do, all "the Divinity that doth hedge a king" in the eyes of his loyal subjects, our royal guests have still proved themselves a lady and a gentleman, in the very highest meaning of those terms and, as such, are entitled to respect and courtesy, in all circumstances and from every one of us. British Visitors: 1814

IN THE REIGN of George VI the British invaded and captured Washington with kindly words and smiles of appreciation.

In the reign of George III the British captured Washington with fire and sword.

On both occasions it was humid and hot.

It was certainly hot that August day in 1814 when invading troops burned the Capitol, the President's house and several office buildings. It was hotter on the day following. Four thousand redcoats, commanded by Gen. Ross suffered intensely in uniforms uncomfortable enough in any climate. But the general would not order a march back to transports anchored in the Patuxent until he had gained the final and perhaps the most important objective of the raid.

One mile north of Georgetown was a gun factory, which was turning out the best cannon manufactured in the United States. So good were they that Oliver Hazzard Perry delayed departure of his fleet from Put-in-Bay on Lake Erie until several pieces of this ordnance could reach him in oxen-drawn wagons from the National Capital.

Gen. Ross ordered that this factory be destroyed. Two detachments were detailed for that purpose. One marched northwest through the District. The other commandeered small boats on the Potomac, to make a landing from the river.

When both detachments were nearly ready to strike nature intervened. A tornado ripped from out a sullen cloud, swept through a section of Georgetown, unroofing houses, demolishing chimneys, and it cleared such wide swathes through wooded areas that they were subsequently used as wagon roads.

The Potomac was lashed into a fury of foam. Boats capsized and many of the British soldiers were drowned. Those on land broke ranks and rushed helter-skelter back to camp.

That night Washington was evacuated; troops re-embarked on transports, which set sail for Baltimore. Then these troops took part in the drama described in "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church stands at Sixteenth and P streets northwest. Until the dawn of this century it stood at Fourteenth and G, the site now occupied by the Colorado Building. It had been erected there in 1816 by Henry Foxall, as a thanksgiving offering because Divine Providence had intervened to save his gun factory from destruction.

When George VI stood at attention in the Union Station, the morning of June 8, 1939, he heard the strains of the National Anthem which had been inspired by the heroic defense of Fort McHenry. Then he was swept through the streets of the Capital.

Again nature took part in the day's proceedings. The temperature rose and the humidity increased. This time American citizens, not British redcoats were the sufferers. Women and men, girls and boys, dropped in their tracks, prostrated by the heat. First-aid tents proved inadequate, ambulance sirens split the air; emergency wards in hospitals soon were crowded. How many required medical aid is not definitely known. An estimate places the number at 1,000.

At nightfall occurred one of the most severe electric storms to visit Washington, accompanied by wind which did some damage.

While the President toasted the King and the monarch in turn toasted Mr. Roosevelt, lightning bolts crashed all around the White House. But the English visitors and their hosts were well sheltered behind the massive walls which had withstood the flames kindled by the British 125 years ago.

Spain's Quota

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The tragic sufferings of the Spanish people are not yet over. Two years of famine and war are now being followed by months of misery in concentration camps for the 500,000 refugees who fled over the Pyrenees after the fall of Catalonia.

At least 40,000 of these men and women dare not set foot in Spain so long as the present regime endures. They are the known republicans, leaders of the trade unions and the co-operative societies, teachers, doctors, lawyers, journalists and artists who sympathized with the republican cause. According to Gen. Franco's decree of political responsibilities published early in February of this year, they are all criminals who may expect no mercy at his hands.

Thus Spain adds her quota to the pitiful, mounting army of those who have no longer any spot on earth to call their home.

But for these Spanish refugees, if we will help, and help quickly, there is still hope. In South and Central America there are Spanish-speaking countries where the Spaniard, cut off from Spain itself, may still find a language and tradition familiar to him. To Mexico and other Latin-American republics, the homeless Spanish refugee stretches out his arms in longing.

Armed To The Teeth

MR. HITLER'S assurance that there will be no war this summer is subject to the usual 100 per cent discount, but even if he does mean it nevertheless the war must come, because the British and French can't go on forever in a state of alarm and mobilization under their kind of economy. They can't go on, and they don't dare calm down and demobilize, knowing that the instant they do Hitler and Mussolini will again threaten to shoot up the place.

The British and French have stalled for time and paid for it in prestige and ignominy in order to build muscle for the fight, but when they feel that they are right they will have to draw Hitler into a lead and go to it, provided he doesn't jump them in the meantime. Otherwise they will go broke trying to stay up in the competition because they are still endeavoring to do business under the old-fashioned rules of economy, whereas Hitler and Mussolini can and do use soap wrappers, tobacco tags and clam shells for money within their own countries and between the two.

Dictators Force Subjects To Work

MOREOVER, when the dictators want 100,000 to build a new line of forts they can just reach out and grab them and pay them whatever they please, even in their funny money; whereas when the British and French want to do a little of the same they have to wheedle, debate, plead, apologize, compromise, placate the labor unions and make elaborate gestures to the human rights of the individuals who are respectfully requested to do the work.

This sort of thing can't go on indefinitely in the civilized nations, and there is no hope that Hitler and Mussolini ever will agree to put the guns back in the racks and permit Britain and France to do the same. There will come a time and a point at which they will begin to feint Hitler out in the conviction that he will never be any weaker or they any stronger. They may even have to make him fight.

Hitler Is Turning On The Heat Here

THIS COUNTRY'S role in the brawl, should it start before the next election, is fairly clear regardless of the sentiment against foreign entanglements, and for that reason Hitler's hand is plainly to be seen in the current commotion, particularly the anti-Semitic campaign, in the United States. Such agitation never was a serious issue in this country until Hitler saw that the American Government didn't like him and was of a mind to throw in with measures "short of war" but stronger than words on the side of his enemies. He then turned on the heat here through his seditious anti-American Bund and the native fellow-travelers, and the American Nation is now experiencing in a minor way the sort of political invasion of its domestic affairs that was promoted in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia by agents under orders from Berlin. It is strong poison and has killed two countries.

If Hitler waits until next election Mr. Roosevelt might be beaten—thanks, in some part, to the German interference in American affairs—and the next Administration might be of a mind to backtrack along the course of the President's outspoken enmity for the brutalitarians. In that case Britain and France would be deprived of valuable co-operation, if not of an active ally in the war, and this result, obviously, would be well worth the expense of the propaganda campaign now being conducted in the United States.

Allies Are Arming To Lick Somebody

IT IS A STRANGE thing that any American professing to be a patriot who resents the bolshevism of Josef Stalin and the conspiracies of his agents here should at the same time admire Hitler's bolshevism and find patriotic excuses—indeed, motives of patriotism—for aiding agents of Hitler who don't even trouble to conceal their mission, but it is the American's sacred right to be goofy even to a point close to traitorism. In Austria, Hitler assimilated one chancellor and buried another alive. There is no telling how far he would go here.

I stop short of predicting the outcome of this war, but it seems to me to be a definite item of business in the future of Europe, because the British and French aren't arming just to march in parades; they are getting muscled up to lick somebody.

Connell to Lead Blackfriars' Play

The summer festival committee will offer 11 programs on Tuesday evenings at the National Sylvan Theater at the Washington Monument, beginning Tuesday, June 20, with the Blackfriars Guild of Catholic University presenting "Cyrano de Bergerac." Denis E. Connell, of Washington, will have the leading role.

The second Tuesday in the series will bring the Columbia Light Opera Company in "Geisha" with a large cast of Washington singers. Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, director, Community Center Department, is chairman of the festivals, with C. Marshall Finnan as vice chairman.

Bay State Democrats To Pick Beauty Queen

Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, will speak at a meeting of the Massachusetts Democratic Club of Washington, tonight at 8 p. m. at 1500 Rhode Island avenue northwest. There will be a dance, and "Miss Massachusetts Democrat" will be chosen to represent the club.

Switzerland's Defenses

By General Albert Niessel

Formerly of the Superior War Council (France)

The Maginot Line's South Wing

OUR NORTHEASTERN FRONT is safely protected by the Maginot Line, but we must make sure that its flank cannot be turned at either of its extreme ends.

At its north wing, Belgium though it desires to retain its liberty of action and not to enter into league with anyone beforehand, has plainly affirmed its will to have its neutrality respected. To this end, Belgium has lengthened the period of military service, organized special defense forces and supported these by the construction of fortifications. These troops permanently protect the principal points of entry into the country. Plans for destruction have been made. Holland, on its part, is actively occupied with the reinforcement of its eastern frontier.

On the south wing of the Maginot Line, the violation of Switzerland neutrality, which has been thought of with fear at the outbreak of the World War, would be a grave danger for us.

ON THE MORROW of the "Anschulus" the following official declaration was published by the entire Swiss press: "All groups of the chamber affirm solemnly that the entire Swiss nation, without distinction of language, religious belief or party, is ready to defend the inviolability of its territory to the last drop of blood against any aggressor whosoever. It is ready to consent to the sacrifices demanded by its national defense, but the armament of the country would be in vain unless backed by the spiritual and moral forces of the entire nation . . . Trusting in Providence, which always has protected our country, the Swiss nation is ready to face with firmness and courage the trials which these evil times may have in store for its people."

In October, 1938, immediately after the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia, Federal Councillor Minger, chief of the Swiss war department, declared that the fortification along the frontiers, the construction of which had already been planned, should be terminated in the spring of 1939, and that a belt of second-line defense work would be erected behind them; he stated that the manufacture of war materials was being pushed ahead actively thanks to the development of the Swiss war and aeronautic industries.

Even prior to this, at the beginning of the rearmament of Hitler Germany, a federal law promulgating important measures concerning military reorganization, of September, 1934, was approved by the plebiscite in February, 1935.

The duration of the training of recruits has been extended; it is now three months instead of two. The repetition courses, or instruction periods, for the "Landwehr" (first reserve), have become biannual, as was already the case for the "elite" (the young classes). Courses have been established for the training of noncommissioned officers. Officers schools preparing for admission into the various grades have been organized.

A loan of eighty million Swiss francs has been floated for military requirements—modernization of material, fortifications, and so forth. The subscription reached the figure of 330 millions, which is a very clear indication of the state of mind of the country.

THE ARMY, which heretofore consisted of three army corps embracing six divisions of infantry, special Gotthard troops and three brigades of cavalry, has been reorganized completely.

It still comprises three army corps, but the number of the divisions has been raised to nine—eight field and one Gotthard division. Each division has three infantry regiments, with the exception of two divisions which have four; one regiment of field artillery of nine batteries; and nine motorized batteries of 105 millimeter guns. Two divisions, moreover, have one reconnoitering detachment; one squadron of cavalry and one bicycle company for liaison purposes; one for company armed with infantry guns; one battalion of engineers; and one company of telegraphists.

The ninth, or Gotthard division, is of a special type, and fully manned and equipped.

Aside from the three army corps, there are three mountain brigades which in reality are small divisions, specially armed and equipped in keeping with the ground conditions under which they are to operate.

Particular arrangements have been made for the defense of the frontiers, and to cover the mobilization, by the creation of special defense brigades. These are formed of men of all classes, down to the "Landsturm" (all men capable of bearing arms), recruited on the spot and specially trained for the purpose in view. They are called up every two years. Each of these brigades has as its nucleus one permanent company of two hundred men, all volunteers serving for six months. Important industries and points of entry into the country are permanently garrisoned, and all arrangements for destroying them, if necessary, have been made.

Three light brigades constitute a mobile defensive reserve destined to reinforce endangered sectors.

IN PRESENCE of the resolute will of the Swiss people to have the neutrality of their country respected, an operation aiming at the junction—right through its territory—of the military forces of Germany and Italy would not be devoid of risks and difficulties, owing to the quality of the Swiss army and the nature of the terrain to be overcome.

As to a sudden German offensive against France right across Switzerland, it must be pointed out that—except in the gap between Basle and the Porrentruy district—the passage of the Jura constituted by numerous parallel undulations where the road system is relatively undeveloped in a sense perpendicular to the axis of the valleys would be a delicate operation in the face of an adversary determined to defend himself. The employment of the large motorized and armored units, the organization of which has been pushed on strongly in Germany, and which are the essential tool of a sudden attack, would find the ground here unfavorable for their operations. The march across our frontier would be very difficult unless the operation were extended as far as Geneva.

In that case, however, the operation would require a length of time which would allow us, while organizing a solid defense clinging to the southern Jura, to take the offensive ourselves, and the German invading columns would be in a grave danger of seeing their communications attacked by the bulk of the Swiss army, which would have had the time to unite all its resources, while at the same time the Gotthard divisions, supported by all, or part of, the mountain brigades, would hold in check any Italian attempt at the offensive.

This gives food for reflection, even for the chiefs of the totalitarian states, drunk though they may be from victories they have won so far without striking a blow.

Honorary Degrees

Quoggle, Oscar D., (engineer, flounder-fisherman and tea-leaf reader).—The head man on a radio program and in a position to arrange its programs, you steadfastly resisted any and all attempts to put on another quiz feature. Against all arguments you held that sixty-seven question-and-answer programs on American networks were plenty. This makes you an American of outstanding courage and originality. Take any degree in the house and help yourself to the salad.

Bossert, Luke, M. (tree pruner, architect and Chinese checkers addict). Mr. Bossert, during the past year you have occupied a place of unique distinction. At no time were you involved in a smuggling case, accused of taking or receiving bribes, or attempting to influence justice, etc. You were not even accused of perjury. What makes you all the more remarkable is that you were never once summoned before a grand jury. We take pleasure in giving you a sample of every degree, on white or rye.

Dickermah, Aloysius X., (salesman, amateur woodcarver and outdoor enthusiast).—What a man! Mr. Dickerman, you are in fair physical shape, you love outdoor sports and you are not lacking in spirit, but you let the entire winter of 1938-39 pass without once succumbing to all the advertisements urging you to take up ski jumping. You clung to your conviction that you could feel just as cold sleeping in any snow bank and that you knew many easier ways to break a leg. Name your degree, and will you take it with you or have it sent?

Skagsey, Harold W. (graduate of three colleges, statistician and what not). Despite the fact you were out of work and couldn't seem to adapt yourself to anything except selling vacuum cleaners, you did not organize a weekly poll of public opinion. You thought this sort of thing had been carried far enough and decided to starve first. Nothing in the grab-bag of honorary degrees is too good for you.

Dupree, Gregory F., (businessman, slide trombone player and collector of old coins).—In point of candor and honesty you are the man of the year. After spending two days at a World's Fair and asked what you thought of the scientific exhibits you replied: "I never got around to 'em. I spent all my time in the amusement area watching the dancers." Take two degrees and have an apple!

"A voice called out, 'How are you, King?' and the King replied, 'I'm pretty well, how are you?'"—Newspaper item.

Quick on the comeback, eh, what?

It looks as if, for every one judge or legislator who might take a bribe, there were at least a half dozen ready to offer it.

Miss Perkins, the Secretary of Labor, is the only woman we ever knew who was patient about getting the coal in.

One of the plots to overthrow the American Government, as aired by the Dies committee, is based on what a waiter overheard. It must have been a remarkable waiter. Most waiters don't seem to have the slightest interest in what a customer is saying, even when he is giving his order. And especially when he specifies how he likes his steak.

One can almost imagine the plotters saying, "Waiter, keep filling our glasses with water; you may be missing something."

Good-Will Couriers

After Their Majesties

NOW THAT the King and Queen have gone, Washington has to get back to the drab business of operating the government and trying to do something to improve conditions in the United States.

One of the major decisions that Congress is called upon to make is what to do about the neutrality act. The Administration wants it amended, chiefly to permit the export of munitions to nations at war. This, of course, is of great, perhaps vital, importance to Great Britain.

In conversations with Washington correspondents, well-informed and alert British and Canadian journalists traveling with the royal party made no secret of their curiosity about the probable effort of Their Majesties' American visit on neutrality legislation and the Johnson act, denying loans and credits to nations which have defaulted on their war debts.

Swell Job Of Selling Their Personality

MY GUESS is that if the royal visit has any immediate effect on which you can put your finger it will work to the disadvantage of the British in such specific matters as neutrality and the Johnson act. That isn't because the King and Queen didn't do a swell job of selling themselves to the National Capital. The Queen was pretty and gracious and the King made a good impression as an unassuming, rather nervous, hard-working, well-intentioned young man. Their visit to the United States had no specific political objectives: it belongs under the heading of institutional advertising. It came, of course, at a time when British and American political relations were already exceptionally cordial. In the net it may add to the sum total of cordiality and so eventually yield dividends—provided it isn't offset by too many other occurrences.

For the immediate future, however, one effect of the royal visit will be to make Senators and Congressmen who favor any action helpful to the British rather easy targets for their opponents. They can be assailed by ridicule as royalty worshipers—especially those who decked themselves out in formal attire for the British Embassy's garden party or the reception to the King and Queen at the Capitol. Or they can be attacked more seriously as minions of the British Empire.

Morgan Tete-A-Tete Won't Help British

THE FACT that J. P. Morgan was selected to be the King's companion over the teacups on the portico of the British Embassy won't help the British any, either. There were all kinds of good reasons why Mr. Morgan should have been singled out for this honor. He has been on close terms personally with the royal family for a good many years. There is the even more important fact that the British Empire owes him and his banking firm an incalculable debt for their part—whatever it was—in drawing the United States into the World War. For that same reason he was almost the worst possible choice as the King's tea companion for the purposes of British propaganda in the United States. Perhaps the purpose was to encourage the people back home in Great Britain, in their present time of peril, by letting them know that Mr. Morgan is still alive and healthy and, at present writing, in the United States. The newspaper photographs of the tete-a-tete between the King and Mr. Morgan at the British Embassy may become as celebrated as the one of Mr. Morgan with the midget on his lap.

While some of the advocates of closer co-operation between the United States and Great Britain in resisting "aggressors" may suffer temporary embarrassment as an after-effect of the royal tour, there are no signs of a revival of the kind of anti-King George antics in which former Mayor Thompson of Chicago used to indulge. The King was circumspect, as well as brief, in his public remarks: no heavy hands-across-the-sea stuff.

Situation Same As Before Visit

NOT MANY, if any, American politicians would have the recklessness to propose trifling with the Johnson act. When it comes to neutrality legislation, the lines already were fairly clearly drawn before the royal visit. There was, and is, hardly a shadow of doubt that a majority of Congress approves putting munitions on the same basis as other exportable commodities.

The distinction between airplanes, which are classed as munitions, and trucks, which are not so classed, is artificial. The distinction between shell cases and the metals which go into them is no less artificial.

A minority in both Houses are opposed to changing the neutrality act, probably chiefly because they feel — and rightly so — that the changes are being pushed by those who do not want the United States to remain neutral in the present struggles in Europe and Asia. The minority in the Senate undoubtedly is strong enough to delay action but probably not to block it. Such was the situation before Their Majesties arrived, and such it remains.

Alumni to Honor Retiring Teacher

George Washington University's general alumni association, holding its annual meeting at 8:30 tonight in the hall of government, will honor members of the faculty retiring this year. Association President Hugh H. Clegg will deliver the tributes.

Smith Hearings To Reopen Today

Hearings on the dismissal of Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith will be resumed today at 10 a. m. when the former superintendent of the National Training School for Girls will interview five witnesses.

Dr. Smith said she would call to the stand Dr. Charles T. Warner, rector of St. Alban's Church; Ray Everett, of the Social Hygiene Society; Dr. Thomas C. Thompson, director of social hygiene, District health department; Dr. John P. Noble, health department bacteriologist, and a WPA foreman who had charge of the work at the institution during Dr. Smith's regime.

The proper technique of diagnosing venereal diseases, which has been discussed previously at the hearings, will be further discussed by the health department experts.

Douglas to Speak At Coif Dinner

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas will be the guest of honor and speaker at the annual dinner of the George Washington University's chapter of the Order of the Coif, legal honor society, at 7:15 p. m. today at the Raleigh Hotel. Douglas will be made an honorary member.

Students elected from the highest ranking 10 per cent of the law school's graduating class will be inducted into membership.

Boys Club to Judge Speakers Tonight

The Boys' Club of Washington will sit in judgment at the Southeast Branch Club, where members participating in the Optimist International Oratorical contest will display their forensic wares at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The nine contestants will meet members of the Community Chest Speakers' Bureau beforehand at a 6 p. m. supper.

Winner of the Washington contest will compete in Richmond against finalists from the Maryland-Virginia area for the right to represent the region in the finals.

Two Cricket Matches Enliven Hot Sunday

Picnic and Three Teas Also Make The Afternoon Gay; Mrs. George Pulver, Mrs. George Summerlin, Jr., Organize Outing

It takes more than a heat wave to slow down members of Capital society during this merry month of June, and yesterday was as gay as any afternoon at the height of the season. Outdoor parties were the favorite form of entertainment, and ranged all the way from picnics to cricket matches.

The latter took place at Langley Park, the estate in Silver Spring, Md., of the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart. It was a doubleheader game, with members of the British Embassy staff here taking on the officers of the H. M. S. Exeter, now anchored in Baltimore, and then members of the Fairmont Cricket Club, which has been in town trying its skill with the Washington Cricket Club. The matches went off successfully, and were followed by tea on the lawn.

Another group went picnicking yesterday with a party organized by Mrs. George Pulver and Mrs. George T. Summerlin, jr.

Then there were three teas which kept members of Capital society on the jump. One was that given by Judge Ewin L. Davis of the Federal Trade Commission, and Mrs. Davis; and the other hosts were Francis Brown, counsel of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and Mrs. Brown, and Smith and DeLong Bowman, who entertained at their place in Sunset Hills, near Fairfax, Va.

All three parties were outdoor affairs. Judge and Mrs. Davis received guests in the garden of their charming home on Alexandria's main street. Mint juleps and home-made cookies and sandwiches were the feature of the afternoon.

Among those who dropped by were Mr. and Mrs. John L. Lewis, Alexandria neighbors of the hosts; Norman Davis, Judge Davis' brother, and Mrs. Davis, who also have a home in the lovely old Virginia town. Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Williams, son-in-law and daughter of Judge and Mrs. Davis, who reside with them. Mrs. Horace Towner, president of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, R. E. Freer, chairman of the trade commission, Mr. and Mrs. Garland F. Ferguson, and many others.

Browns Entertain At Democratic Club

The Woman's National Democratic Club was the scene of the Brown's party—or rather the clubhouse lawn, for, though buffet tables were set up indoors, everybody ended up by drifting out on the lawn.

There the center of attraction was an enormous bowl filled with a famous "fishhouse punch," the recipe for which dates back to 1703. It was given the hostess by Mrs. Henry Grady, wife of the vice chairman of the tariff commission, who assisted at the party, wearing a floor-length garden frock with flowers splashed on a neutral background, and a cluster of blossoms in harmonizing shades in her black hair.

The party was somewhat of a reunion for Californians living in Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Brown came originally from there, and so did Mr. and Mrs. Grady. Mrs. Frank Buck, wife of the Representative from that State, was in the group assisting and Mrs. Sheridan Downey, whose husband represents California in the Senate, was present with her two daughters, the Misses Margaret and Jane Downey. Mrs. Kindleberger Kirby had with her Mrs. Helen Moodie, of Sacramento, who has taken an apartment in Washington after visiting her for several weeks. Mrs. Kirby wore a black chiffon frock.

The pretty hostess had chosen a gown with a black and white striped skirt and a lipstick red blouse. A Juliet cap completed her costume. Others who assisted her included Mrs. Wheeler McDougal, the Misses Adele, Nannie and Caroline Gibson, cousins of the host, and another cousin, Mrs. Joseph Duvivier, of Paris. The Misses Margaret Buck and Patricia Grady also assisted, and William Moroney and John Cecil presided at the punch bowl. Small tables, centered with snapdragons and delphinium, were set up in the garden.

Representative and Mrs. Thomas Ford and Judge Marion J. Harron, of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, were also present. Later Mr. and Mrs. Brown entertained the assistants and a few other people at a buffet supper.

Younger Set At Bowman Farm

At the Bowman place everybody gathered on the lawn for mint juleps and sandwiches. Gloria Hollister, the pretty blonde who is associated with Dr. William Beebe in marine studies, was supposed to be a guest, but at 7 o'clock was still flying over the house in her plane trying to find a landing spot.

Members of the younger set predominated in the throng of several hundred, and prints and broad-brimmed hats were favored by members of the feminine contingent. Guests included Miss Stellita Stapleton, Arthur Vandenburg, jr., Miss Cassie Parker, who chatted with Lawn Thompson; Miss Diana Rowland, Miss Ruth Tuckerman, in a trim blue and white striped frock; Armar Archbold, Frank Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Folger and Mr. and Mrs. William Sprague.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith Bowman, parents of the hosts, received with them on the porch. It was late in the evening when the last guest departed.

MISS NANCY GLOVER,
whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, presented her to society at one of the largest and loveliest parties of the season Saturday afternoon at "Westover," their estate on Massachusetts avenue. Miss Glover will spend July working at Children's Island, off Marblehead, Mass., before joining her family at their summer home at Nonquitt, Mass.

Glovers Give Party for Their Daughter

Debutante Honored At Garden Affair; Hundreds Attend

Chief topic of conversation for Capital society over the week-end was the large and lovely garden party given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover on Saturday afternoon in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Nancy Glover.

The reception was attended by hundreds — including practically the entire office force of the Riggs Bank, with which Mr. Glover is associated. Older people and debutantes mingled happily together, walking about the broad lawns of Westover or Popping for a sip of tea at one of the large tables set up under the trees. The most popular spot of all was the mint julep bar in one corner of the lawn, near the red brick Georgian house.

A light shower in the middle of the afternoon had caused Mrs. Glover to move tables and all into the house, but out came the sun finally and out they went again. Mrs. Glover and her vivacious daughter received on the terrace at the back of their home. Lots of guests took advantage of Sidney's music for a whirl under the green and white striped marquee set up for dancing.

Seen here and there: The Netherlands Minister and Mme. Loudon chatting with Mrs. William T. Mann . . . Mrs. Dean Acheson, in a flowered print and straw hat, replacing Mrs. Nathan Wyeth at the tea table . . . Miss Irene Boyle also pouring tea . . . Mrs. Joshua Evans introducing her blonde and pretty sub-deb daughter, Marianna, to her friends . . .

Mrs. Victor Mallet, wife of the British Embassy Counselor, looking none the worse for wear after the strenuous visit of the King and Queen . . . Mrs. Peter Gerry sipping a mint julep.

Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, in sheer black chiffon, walking about the lawn with Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt . . . Representative Richard Wigglesworth telling an amusing story to Miss Marion Trumbull . . . the John Sternhagens describing recent adventures at the World's Fair to a friend . . . the French Ambassador and his mother chatting with Mme. Witold Wankowicz . . . Robert Coe sitting on the grass . . . Mrs. Corcoran Thom in a long flowing chiffon frock . . . Mrs. George T. Pettingill in an eyelet organdy dress from Paris . . . and many many others, some of whom lingered on at the small tables set up on the lawn until well after 8 o'clock.

Marjorie Garrison Morton Betrothed to Joseph Bear

OF WIDE interest throughout Virginia and Maryland is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. DeForest Willard Morton, of Warrenton, Va., of the engagement of their daughter, Margie Garrison Morton, to Joseph Frank Bear, son of Theodore Lawrence Bear and the late Mrs. Bear, of Montgomery, Ala.

Miss Morton attended the Warrenton country school and was graduated from the National Cathedral School in Washington, in 1935. She made her debut the following year in Richmond, Va., where many entertainments were given in her honor.

Mr. Bear was graduated from Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., and is also an alumnus of the University of Alabama Law School of the year of 1935. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

THE WEDDING will take place at the home of Miss Morton's parents Sufield Farm, Warrenton, sometime this summer.

Miss Morton and her mother are at present visiting the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Peirce, jr., in Key West, Fla., where the Peirces moved a year ago from Canterbury Farm, Warrenton. Mrs. Peirce was formerly Miss Mary Morton.

Margie Morton and Mrs. Morton will arrive at their home in Warrenton this week in time to attend the wedding of Miss Mary Tyler McCormack, of Washington, and William Nelson Wilbur, of Warrenton, which takes place on Saturday afternoon at the Cathedral in Washington.

ROBERT S. CLARK, of Upperville, is being congratulated on the fact that his American-owned filly, Galatea II won the 101st running of the Epsom Oaks, a mile and a half race, at Epsom Downs, England, last Friday.

Galatea II by Dark Legend, a stake-winning mare under Mr. Clark's colors on this side of the Atlantic, won the 1,000 guineas in England for her owner recently, so went to the post a hot favorite in the Epson Oaks to win over White Fox in a hard drive over the Epsom Derby course.

Galatea II's sire, Dark Legend, is a Dark Ronald horse of the stout Hampton line and her dam, Galady is a daughter of Sir Galahad III and Sunstep by Sunstar.

Mr. Clark bred Galatea II in France at his stud, where he keeps about 50 mares, and she has been trained in England. It is said that Galatea II's Oaks victory is the best scored by one of Mr. Clark's horses, on the other side or in this country, in the 15 years or more that he has been actively interested in the turf sport.

This is only the second time the English Oaks has ever been won by an American. Foxall Keene won it in 1901 with Cap And Bells, an American-bred daughter of Domino by Ben My Chree.

Mr. Clark came to Virginia about eight years ago and bought a part of the late Admiral Cary T. Grayson's estate (who was a great friend of his) and built a handsome house. He and Mrs. Clark are at their home here now and are getting many telephone calls and visits from all their friends who are so interested in his filly's winning of the English race.

Mrs. Farnam Becomes Bride

Of interest to Washington society is the wedding of Mrs. Suzanne Silvercruys Farnam, of New York and Ottawa, to Edward F. Stevenson, of New York, which took place Saturday in Manhattan at All Souls' Unitarian Church, the Rev. Dr. Minot Simons officiating.

The bride is well known in Washington, where she formerly resided, and is a close friend of former President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover. Widely known as a sculptress and lecturer, she is a sister of Baron Robert Silvercruys, Belgian Minister to Canada, who gave her in marriage. Mrs. John W. McConnell, of Montreal, and Pierpont Morgan Hamilton, of New York, were the couple's only attendants.

Mrs. Stevenson is the daughter of the late Baron Francois Xavier Benoit Silvercruys, president emeritus of the Supreme Court of Belgium and one of that country's most eminent jurists, and the late Baroness Silvercruys. She was educated in Brussels, Cambridge, England, and Washington. In the last two years of the World War she toured this country speaking under auspices of the Belgian government, for which she received the Order of Leopold from King Albert. Examples of her sculpture are in many public buildings in this country, Canada and Europe.

Mrs. Stevenson's marriage to Henry Walcott Farnam, son of the late Prof. Henry Walcott Farnam, of Yale University, which took place in Brussels in May, 1922, was terminated by divorce in Reno three years ago. The bride, who became an American citizen after her first marriage, received her bachelor of arts degree in 1928 from the Yale School of Fine Arts.

Miss Stapleton To Discuss Dolls

Miss Stellita Stapleton, of the Capital Society's younger set, will talk over the radio today on dolls, of which she has a notable collection. The broadcast will be heard at 10:45 this morning over WMAL, under the auspices of the District Federation of Woman's Clubs. Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, president, will interview Miss Stapleton on "Dolls as the First Object Known to Man."

The young speaker has gathered dolls for her collection from 36 countries which she has visited, from Damascus to Iceland, from Algiers to Venezuela, from Canada to Russia. She has dolls which date back as far as 1780; one of them is from the Carroll Homestead, and was brought over on the boat when the first member of the famous Carroll family of Maryland came to this country.

During the broadcast Miss Stapleton will explain the origin of the costume dolls, the peddler dolls and the fashion dolls which were used in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries to spread fashion news from one royal court to another. She will conclude the broadcast with a description of the studio room at the top of her Washington residence, where she keeps her large family of dolls.

Mrs. Flora McGill Keefer is chairman of radio for the District Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mr. Broun Heads Newswomen's Club Benefit Guests

Heywood Broun heads the list of honor guests who have accepted invitations recently issued by the Washington Newspaper Women's Club for the annual benefit, which this year will be a columnists' ball on the terrace of the Shoreham Hotel Tuesday evening, June 20, at 7:30 p. m. Miss Helene Livingstone Kravatz is chairman of the event.

Also among those who have accepted are Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, Beatrice Fairfax, Alice Hughes, Bob Considine, Mary Haworth, Earl Godwin, Frederick William Wile, Leonard Hall, Mrs. Vylla Poe Wilson, Miss Elizabeth Poe and E. K. Lindley.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, columnist in her own right and honorary member of the club, heads the list of sponsors, and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., an associate member, is honorary chairman of the benefit. Mrs. Eugene Meyer is chairman of hostesses; Mrs. Eleanor Patterson is chairman of patronesses, and Mrs. R. M. Kauffmann is chairman of pages.

In New York

The Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, spent the week-end at the St. Regis Hotel in New York.

Mr. Swan Weds Miss Sturdyvin

The wedding of Miss Hilma Earle Sturdyvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edgar Sturdyvin, of Alexandria, to William Hoover Swan took place yesterday at 4 p. m. in the Del Ray Methodist Church, the Rev. Claude Hesser officiating. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sturdyvin.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white lace and net, with a net veil attached to a halo of the same material. Her flowers were gardenias. Her sister, Miss Irma Sturdyvin, was maid of honor, wearing pink marquisetts with a horsehair hat trimmed with blue ribbon and carrying pink roses and blue delphinium. Mrs. Mary Louise Heady, who came all the way from Panama to serve as matron of honor, was gowned in blue marquisette, with a horsehair hat trimmed in pink, and carried a similar bouquet.

Cape Cod Bound

Countess Gabriel de Gramont will leave shortly for a vacation on Cape Cod.

Mrs. A. B. Young Arrives Today to Visit Sherleys

Mrs. Andrew B. Young, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, will arrive today to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Swagar Sherley. She is to attend the wedding Friday of Miss Eleanor Preston to Capt. William Ritchie. Mr. Young will come here later in the week for the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherley have been joined by their younger daughter, Miss Marjorie Sherley, who has been in Bermuda for the past few months as the guest of her aunt, Miss Marjorie Critton. She was presented to Capital society earlier in the season.

Houston Todds Wed in Staunton

Mr. and Mrs. Houston Irvine Todd, who were married on Saturday at noon in the First Presbyterian Church of Staunton, Va., will make their home near Staunton after a honeymoon in the North.

The bride is the former Miss Jane Elizabeth Dunlap, daughter of J. C. Dunlap and the late Mrs. Dunlap, and Mr. Todd is the son of Mrs. John W. Todd, jr., and the late Mr. Todd, of Glenmore, Augusta County, Va. The Rev. Hunter B. Blakeley officiated at the ceremony, in a setting of white gladioli, baby's breath and fern.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Hansford H. Bell, wore a traveling ensemble of navy sheer with matching accessories. A shoulder corsage of white roses and lilies of the valley completed the ensemble. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Lelia Agnes Dunlap, who was attired in pink and carried garden flowers.

John W. Todd 3d, was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Wyat Todd, brother of the bridegroom; Forest Taylor, John Blackwood Patterson, Moffett Black and Harry Hunter Hanger, all of Staunton.

Murphys to Live In Hartford

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Murphy, who were married on Saturday afternoon, will make their home at 26 Beacon street, Hartford, Conn., after a wedding trip. The bride is the former Miss Katherine Tobias, daughter of Dr. Henry W. Tobias and Mrs. Tobias.

Their wedding took place at 5 p. m. at the chapel of Fort Belvoir, Va., the Rev. Louis Moultrie of Catholic University, officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of point venise lace over slipper satin. Her fingertip length veil was held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Jane Tobias, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and only attendant. She was gowned in pink and blue double net over a pink satin slip and her headdress of net was caught with a rose. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium.

Robert Walsh, of Boston, was the best man and ushers were the bride's two cousins, Thomas Tighe, son of Capt. Arthur Tighe, U. S. Marine Corps, and Mrs. Tighe; and C. T. Hunt, jr., son of Capt. Clifton T. Hunt, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, and Mrs. Hunt of Fort Belvoir.

Immediately following the ceremony there was a reception at the quarters of Capt. and Mrs. Hunt at Fort Belvoir. The mother of the bride was gowned in chiffon of pastel shades, made over orchid satin, and worn with a matching hat.

The bride is a graduate of Randolph Macon Women's College. She took post-graduate work at George Washington University and a library course at Simmons College in Boston.

Mrs. Darling Is Betrothed

The engagement of Mrs. Bettie Randolph Harrison Davis Darling, of Wellesley, Mass., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Evans Davis, of Louisville, Ky., and Norfolk, Va., to Hugh Neely Fleming, jr., of Erie, Pa., and Washington, has been announced by her aunt, Mrs. Thornton Lewis, of Richmond.

Mrs. Darling, the widow of George Edward Darling, of Boston, attended St. George's School in Norfolk and le Cours du Parc Monceau in Paris. She is a great-great-granddaughter of William Henry Harrison and a descendant of Benjamin Harrison, a signer of the Declaration of Independence; John Randolph, of Roanoke, and Thomas Jefferson.

Mr. Fleming, who has made his home here for several years, went to Wellesley earlier in the spring on business for the Forestry Department of the United States Government, with which he is associated.

Beatrice Matlack Engaged to Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis T. Matlack, of Jackson Heights, Long Island, formerly of Washington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Eleanor Matlack, to Earl Donald Stephenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Stephenson, of Tazewell, Va.

Miss Matlack attended the Wilson Teachers College and is now a teacher in the Washington schools. Mr. Stephenson attended George Washington University and is associated with the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The wedding will take place next spring on the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Miss Matlack's parents.

Your Figure Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

Success Often Hinges on Use Of Leisure Time

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU FEEL that you are a square peg in a round hole, or that you are not getting ahead fast enough, by all means read Walter B. Pitkin's new book, "Making Good Before Forty," published by Robert M. McBride & Co. It will certainly make you sit up and take stock of your ability and opportunities—some of which you may have overlooked!

For example, one element which may prove a door opener to opportunity is your leisure. What happens to yours? It is Mr. Pitkin's theory (and the more you read about it the more logical it seems) that leisure should be used for something you really want to do. He doesn't refer to bridge or bingo!

Need of Versatility

If you are already engaged in the work that satisfies you most, it is suggested that you may find greatest pleasure in using your leisure to extend your skill or knowledge. Although you are required to work only a 40-hour week, your enthusiasm and determination to make good may run it up to 80 hours!

On the other hand, you may be a misfit. In these days of depression, the author points out that it is sometimes an advantage to be able to do several things well and that your leisure may be employed to develop skill in the job you would like to have. The man who can do two kinds of work well is considered to have greater opportunity than the man who does only one; the man with four different types of skill is considered to have about seven times the opportunity of the man with only one skill.

To quote from the book: "If you dislike your job, then you must push your leisure time study of another field which you prefer. Meanwhile, you adopt a philosophical attitude toward bread and butter. You must learn that all of us have to do many things we thoroughly dislike."

How to Rest

But, you may object, what about rest? Unless you rest, you are not any good at the job which assures your bread and butter! It does not require much reading between the lines to convince anyone that "Making Good Before Forty" takes energy and health, and the famous success analyst has not ignored rest as an essential factor, but has given it a different slant.

"The trick of resting," he says, "is to cease using tired muscles and to use other well-rested muscles. It makes little difference what you do when weary, so long as you do something utterly different from the work just finished."

Girl Indicates to Faithful Admirer That Marriage Is on Her Mind; He, Undecided, Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Several years ago I met a girl for whom I learned to care so much that, although we had no understanding of any kind, she gradually worked her way to top place and I became less and less interested in other girls. The relationship progressed until she indicated that marriage would be a highly desirable status. My respect for her was such that I felt she was entitled to know the truth of my situation.

I explained to her that if I could consider marriage at the present time, it would be difficult, if not impossible, for me to consider anyone but her. My reason for not laying the matter frankly before her, previously, was that I am not sufficiently established in my work to support a wife. But recent developments lead me to believe that the coming year may (or will) be more determinative of my future course than any past years have been.

I laid the matter before her as I did for two reasons. First, I did not want her to feel she was being monopolized, but yet thought it was only fair for her to know my attitude toward her. Second, because I learned that for a year, at least, she has been rejecting dates with others—something I did not know until just recently. My dates with her seldom averaged more than two a week, plus a few telephone calls in between—which I felt gave her opportunity to date other men.

Her expressed fear is that if she does not marry me, I may lose my desire for her. I am not in favor of long engagements and do not think they are fair to either person. Her fear is exemplified in jealousy which, at times, is very marked. I have always felt that the salient element in either friendship or marriage should be confidence, not jealousy. However, I attribute her jealousy to her regard for me and try to understand her view.

My questions are these: Have I monopolized her time unduly? Or have I taken a fair attitude in giving her opportunity to date others, while not urging her to do so? I wish to assist her in avoiding the mistake of placing herself in a compromising situation, and while I do not wish to lose her (unless such would be the means of promoting her happiness), I feel she is entitled to much consideration. I am wondering if you have any comment or suggestions. (P. S.—For what it may be worth, I am nearly 30 years old, and other than a few mere acquaintances, mostly out of town, I have no other girl friends.) Sincerely, L. L. B.

Face the Issue

DEAR L. L. B.: Your attitude toward this girl is, in my opinion, only plausibly (that is to say, superficially or deceptively) fair-minded. It seems to me that your every move in the courtship has been weighed and measured in advance against the egocentric yardstick of what it promises to yield to you, rather than to the girl or to the total relationship.

Looking at the situation through your eyes, the girl has progressively assumed the proportions of a potential investment in personal happiness which, you have cannily concluded, you can either take or leave alone. In hesitating to assess the relationship, long since, in the light of a clean-cut mutual understanding, you have not been actuated by an admirably generous desire to promote, or even to safeguard, the girl's happiness.

On the contrary, you have proceeded on the cautiously non-committal basis of extracting from the relationship, as of the moment, as much personal profit—in terms of companionship, emotional stimulus and satisfaction, and insidiously expanding and strengthening proprietary rights—as you could without provoking latent dynamic issues into the open: latent issues which, if honestly faced, would have compelled (in moral justice to the girl) a decision, mutually concurred in, either to end the association or to define it as a binding alliance leading to marriage.

In daring to rend the veil of reticence which you have maintained in regard to your feelings, circumstances and intentions, the girl has demonstrated courage, honesty and a wisdom superior to yours. She is asking for bread, in the form of truth, and you are giving her a stone instead, in the form of evasion. The questions you have put to me are glancing and superficial, in that they do not penetrate at (and, indeed) are hardly aimed at) the core of your problem. They are akin to the adroitly self-protective, self-extenuating husks of explanation you have given the girl—which promise nothing while yet constituting a veiled invitation to play along with you.

If you would (as you should) "assist her in avoiding the mistake of placing herself in a compromising situation," then make up your mind, immediately whether you would marry her at this moment, if you were financially able to marry. If the answer is a spontaneously sincere "yes," tell her so, in unequivocal language, and consider yourself pledged to marry her, when conditions permit.

If your instinctive reaction is one of queasy dubiety, of the "well, maybe—" variety, then you should have the manliness to be as much of a gambler as you are asking the girl to be. Which is to say that you should gamble that you don't love her enough to warrant marriage; which means in turn that you should say that marriage to her is, for you a remote possibility; and that you should insist that the association, if it is to be continued at all—(a decision which the girl should be required to make)—must be mutually evaluated as a friendly interchange only, offering little prospect of materializing into a permanent relationship.

Under existing circumstances, in view of the girl's ardent devotion and apprehensive hope, candidly expressed, as versus your tangled emotions and precautionary evasiveness—you are playing a game with her in which you entertain the advantage of loaded dice. If you would be fair and honorable and ethical, be searchingly honest with yourself and equally honest with her. Don't try to fool yourself, or the world, or the girl—by specious reasoning and argument—that you are thinking of her good, when, in actuality, you are thinking of self. M. H.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

ALICE HUGHES

DELIGHTFULLY humpty-dumpty place, this world of style to whose fringes I cling. For instance, it's a muggy, hot June evening, with the sky impaled on the mooring mast of the Empire State Building. Just the night to lie on a beach, or in a hammock, wearing just enough to foozle the police. And what happens? Over 1,500 of us sit in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf and watch a great fur show!

Isn't that nice and crazy? Of course, it might be much worse. The place is air-conditioned, and not even the lovely mannequins who wear the lavish pelts seem to be suffering too much. For nearly three hours we look at 114 of the manufacturers' newest and grandest models, for this is the great advance fur show of the year, and all the boys are stepping out. It's really a contest.

Is the heat getting you at this point, or can you bear to hear what the first cool weather will bring forth in the fur line? Well, the days when fur stood out in all directions, a la porcupine, seem to be over for the moment. Skins now are sheared until they look almost like fabric, beaver being one of the most popular for this treatment. And since the designers now seem to feel that they have cloth in which to work, they have turned to fitted fur garments. The most striking little number I noted was a long, tightly fitted evening coat of caracul and broadtail.

Of course, the "chubbies" so dear to the hearts of many, especially the youngsters, are still with us, though they seem a little longer than last year's models. And in the matter of color, brown furs seemed to steal the spotlight at this opitcal orgy. But after all, three hours of furs in a hotel ballroom in June! Next swim suit show—next December! No sense to it.

Big year for the newspaper girls, it seems. Latest to get the cheery nod and pat on the back is Anne O'Hare McCormack, brilliant foreign correspondent of the New York Times, picked here as "The Woman of 1939." Never widely noted for the presence of ladies on the staff, that paper still has two of the finest—Mrs. McCormick handling the overseas stuff, and a first-class reporter named Kathleen McLaughlin doing a marvelous job here in town. Pair of aces, these two . . .

SAW THE NEW bride of George Palmer Putnam, publisher and husband of the late Amelia Earhart, the other day. She's a pretty, dainty little blonde. Jean Marie Consigny was her name. An interest in gardening drew them together.

Parental disciple is always a moot matter. When Joachie Herbert, a jobless waiter, caught his son, 11, snitching money from mamma's handbag, he marched the lad off to school wearing a sign reading, "I am a thief. I stole my mother's money." A policeman stopped the show, and after a few hard words and blows, papa was marched to court, where the jedge calmed all parties. "He's not really a bad boy," said the pater. "I'll never do it again," said junior. Peace reigned in Yorkville.

THE MOUNTAIN twittered up to Mahomet here the other day, when Madame Simone Bruneton of Paris arrived to find out how American women react to the current style notions of that still-potent fashion center. Very gracious idea, but I'll bet you a pair of sun-glasses Paris does just as it darn pleases, anyhow!

The Artists

Miss Hack—Honestly, I get so tired answering these telephones.

Miss Jitney—They ought to hire some cheap girl to do it.

Miss Cheesit—I don't mind answering them so much except that I just figure my time's more valuable to the office.

Mrs. Wiggle—That's it exactly! We all waste too much time on little details around here.

Miss Hack—Well I know I have to answer the phones more than anybody else——

Miss Miffin—Say, I'm the one who answers 'em! I get all the dirty work.

Miss Bubble—Oh, you do! Well what about all this filing? Now you can't tell me any $12 a week girl couldn't do this.

Miss Tinkle—I know they'd really save money to get—well some ordinary clerk to write all these form letters.

Chorus—Me either!

Mrs. Wiggle—Well, the whole thing is I could really get so much more done—that is, important things—if I could have a secretary to take care of all this routine work.

Miss Jitney—That's the way with me. Now I'm more of a creative type of mind——

Chorus—Me too!

Miss Miffin—It's all because we're women that we get all these little things pushed off on us. You wouldn't find men bothering with them.

Miss Cheesit—The point with me is it's all such a waste of man power. Now will you tell me what good it is for a person like me just to be checking these old records?

Miss Tinkle—Well, look at me writing form letters!

Miss Bubble—And me filing!

Miss Miffin—And me answering telephones! I always get the dirty work——

Miss Jitney—Now, fundamentally, I'm the executive type. I like to plan things and have ideas. And yet here I am running an adding machine!

Mrs. Wiggle—They'd really save money if they'd just hire me a little secretary——

Miss Hack—That's just what I need!

Miss Miffin—I could really have some big ideas if I could just get released from all this routine.

Miss Tinkle—I wouldn't mind the routine so much if I were any good at it. But I don't think anyone with an artistic bent ever really learns to do detail well.

Miss Cheesit—I know I never will!

Mrs. Wiggle—I haven't a secretarial type of mind at all.

Chorus—Me either!

Miss Hack—Well, of course, I know there's a certain amount of detail that has to be done in an office. But I say the people who like that sort of thing ought to be doing it.

Miss Bubble—That's the whole point exactly! Now take filing. There are lots of girls who really enjoy it—and who are whizzes at it.

Miss Tinkle—And form letters. Now there are people who have a definite talent along that line.

Miss Jitney—Yes, and for running adding machines!

Miss Miffin—And for answering phones!

Miss Cheesit—Well, the whole thing is, they just ought to employ more people of that type around here—to take care of the detail.

New Sponge Discs For Wash Cloths

What to do with the damp wash cloth that must be packed at the last minute or left behind has always annoyed and perplexed both the man and woman traveler. Usually the man throws his aside until he reaches his destination, then fumes and squirms because it is missing. But the frugal woman stuffs her wash cloth somewhere in the suitcase and then wishes she hadn't. For the dampness usually permeates through the wrappings or rubber case and spoils the freshly laundered frocks.

As a solution to this damp wash-cloth problem, a French manufacturer has brought forth ingenious little compressed discs that swell into full-sized wash cloths when immersed. Hygenic, soft and easily disposable, they leave the face clean and unscratched. They can be packed in a minimum amount of space.

Jelled Consomme Is Refreshing These Hot Days

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

Zest may be added to commercially canned soups by a dash of some additional seasoning, such as celery or onion salt, Worcestershire or tabasco sauce. Jelled consomme is so refreshing for the hot days and is especially pleasing when the additions suggested in the following recipe are used.

Jelled Consomme

Combine 1 can consomme, 2 cups water, 2 teaspoons onion juice, 1 small carrot, grated, 3 stalks celery, ¼ teaspoon salt. Cook for 20 minutes. Strain. Add 1 tablespoon gelatin dissolved in ¼ cup cold water. Chill for 3 hours in refrigerator. When ready to serve, beat with a fork. Into each cup put a spoonful of chopped, hard cooked egg; fill cup with consomme and top with second spoonful of egg. Serves 6.

Fruit Soup

Fruit juices also combine to make a hot weather soup. Any of your favorite juices may be used, but the following juices makes a splendid combination.

Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in ½ cup cold water for 5 minutes and dissolve in 1½ cups boiling water. Add ¾ cup each of cherry and pineapple juice; ½ cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2½ tablespoons sugar, few grains of salt, and chill in the refrigerator. Before serving, beat with a fork, then turn into tall, thin glasses or bouillon cups.

Man Killed By Hit-Run Motorist

19 Others Injured In District Area Over Week-End, Two Seriously

One man was killed and two others injured by hit-run drivers in and near Washington over the week-end and 17 other persons were injured in traffic, two seriously.

The dead man is James H. Butler, colored, 37, of Halls Station, Md., who was found unconscious on the Crain Highway, 4 miles north of Marlboro, Md., and brought to Casualty Hospital where he died two hours later.

Frank Gassaway, 54, of the 2500 block of Georgia avenue northwest, received a fractured arm and body bruises when he was struck by a hit-run driver at Seventh street and Florida avenue northwest. He was treated at Freedmen's Hospital.

Truck Overturns

When the light delivery truck in which they were riding overturned while attempting to make a curve in the road at Forty-ninth street and Central avenue northeast, Nello Church, 21, and Richard K. Fowler, 28, both of 1300 N street northwest, suffered critical injuries. They were taken to Gallinger Hospital where Church was treated for fractures of the skull and spine, and Fowler for severe face cuts and head injuries. A third passenger, Charles W. Baughler, 24, also of the N street address, was treated for scalp lacerations, a sprained neck and body bruises.

When his cab collided with a Capital Transit Co. bus at Fourth street and Washington drive northwest, Thomas Garvin, colored, 26, of 442 M street northwest, suffered a sprained shoulder. His passengers, David Hayes, colored, 31, of 79 Myrtle street northeast, and Frances E. Key, colored, 43, of 4204 Washington place northeast, were treated at Casualty Hospital, Hayes for a broken clavicle and Key for a fractured left leg and body lacerations.

A youth and two girls were injured last night in a collision at Thirteenth and Franklin streets northeast. They were Richard Souder, 17, and Gladys Souder, 16, of the 1700 block of Third street northeast, and Margaret Haws, 17, of the 200 block of R street northeast. All were treated at Casualty Hospital for lacerations and bruises.

Crash at Camp Springs

Dorothy Coles, 29, of 612 Third street northwest, Mary Estes, 40, of 600 F street northwest, and Thomas Bridges, 26, of Cherrydale, Va., were treated at Casualty Hospital for face cuts and body bruises suffered in a crash at Camp Springs, Md.

Following an accident at Wilson lane and Bradley boulevard, Bethesda, Md., three Gaithersburg, Md., youths were taken to Georgetown Hospital. They are Elmore C. White, 18, treated for face cuts; James Shiffett, 18, face cuts, and Vernon Harding, 16, a broken jaw.

Willie Murphy, colored, 21, of 1007 Seventh street southeast, and Wilbur Thomas, colored, 20, of 504 F street terrace southeast, were treated for minor injuries at Providence Hospital following an accident near T. B., Md.

Run Down Boy, Flees

Arrested after he had run down a 13-year-old boy in the baseball park at Guilford, Md., Walter Myers, 26, colored, of Clarksville, Md., was held without bond for hearing tonight, charged with leaving the scene of an accident, assault, exceeding 60 miles an hour, reckless driving and driving without a license.

Maryland State police stated that Myers, driving about the park, struck James Miles, of Guilford, who suffered fractures of both legs. Myers sped away, but witnesses called State Policemen C. C. Serman and Norman Scarboro, who forced him off the road in Upper Howard County, 6 miles from the park, after a chase in which police said the car ahead exceeded 70 miles an hour.

The boy is in an undetermined condition at Montgomery County General Hospital, Silver Spring.

Cleric Stresses Supernatural In Catholic U. Baccalaureate

Cites Unity Movements but Declares Church 'Stands Apart,' in Sermon For Graduating Class for 500

The Roman Catholic Church can unite with Jews and other Christian churches in the realm of philosophic thought, but remains apart in its emphasis on the supernatural, declared the Rev. Dr. James A. Geary, assistant professor of Celtic languages and literature at Catholic University, yesterday.

He spoke before the graduating class of the university at the baccalaureate mass in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

"In the midst of all this confusion of thought," he said, referring to conflicting Communist, Fascist and other ideologies, "we must . . . find some basis on which we can take a firm stand."

Notes Unity Moves

The duty of Catholic University graduates, according to Dr. Geary, is to apply the teachings of Christianity to present-day situations in order to "help bring about a solution of all difficulties in accordance with the Christian attitude of mind."

Noting the movements for unity within the Methodist Church, between the Presbyterian and Episcopal churches and between the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish groups, he asserted that the Catholic Church "cannot put herself on a plane of equality with other religious bodies. She has a divinely appointed mission to lead men to a higher goal than mere human perfecton," he added.

Leaving unanswered his question whether the Catholic Church will "in a short time convert the whole world to a belief in supernatural revelation," he suggested that the Catholic Church had not sufficiently impressed the world in general with its supernatural basis.

Church "Stands Apart"

"We must emphasize the fact that the Catholic Church stands apart from all religious bodies, because she traces her existence historically . . . to St. Peter," he said.

The Rev. Patrick J. McCormick, vice rector of the university, celebrated the mass, assisted by the Rev. William Appell, deacon; the Rev. John Conmy, subdeacon; the Rev. William Lallou, master of ceremonies, and minor officers from the oblates of St. Francis de Sales.

Diplomas will be given to more than 500 members of the class of 1939 at commencement exercises Wednesday.

Heirlooms Yield Old Invitation of Grand Duke Alexis

While lucky moderns set about framing their invitations to the British Embassy garden party for King George and Queen Elizabeth, an elderly Takoma Park, Md., woman dug down into the family keepsakes yesterday and located a royal bid equally impressive and with the added mellowness of time.

The Washington festivities reminded Mrs. Zilpha Douglas, 81, of 6751 Eastern avenue, that in her heirlooms was an invitation to a reception ball honoring His Imperial Highness the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, a relative of King George. It was held in the New York City Academy of Music, November 29, 1871. The invitation was sent to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Childs, Mr. Childs having been a New York Customs House official.

Mrs. Douglas is giving the invitation to her son, Willard Douglas, of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, who lives at 217 Holly avenue.

Postal Association Elects in Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., June 11 (AP).—The Virginia branch, National Association of Postal Supervisors, in its annual convention here yesterday elected officers and adopted a set of resolutions including one urging that in the future postmasters be appointed from the postal service.

A resolution also indorsed a compulsory retirement law for supervisors 70 years of age who had 30 years service.

Arthur W. Burke, of Richmond, was elected president. Other new officers are J. M. Dejarnette, Hopewell, first vice president; Thomas M. Holland, Portsmouth, second vice president; M. C. Slone, Roanoke, third vice president; Elmure Mudd, Alexandria, fifth vice president, and J. S. Jones, jr., of Richmond, secretary-treasurer.

D. C. Tax Opposed By Baltimoreans

Baltimore, June 11 (AP).—Opposition to re-enactment of a "business privilege tax" on sales in the District of Columbia by nonresident firms was voiced today by Robert O. Bonnell, president of the Baltimore Association of Commerce.

In a telegram to House Speaker Bankhead and to the Maryland Congressional delegation, Bonnell said the tax was "an unfair and unjust burden on business outside the District of Columbia, compelling them to contribute a large sum toward operating costs of the District government."

Lorton Inmate's Wife Seized for Giving Him Dope

The wife of a Lorton Reformatory inmate was arrested yesterday after, prison officials said, she smuggled a quantity of marijuana cigarettes to her husband. She said she was from New York and the wife of a prisoner serving a three-year term for passing counterfeit bills.

She was arrested after a search of the prisoner revealed six doped cigarettes in his pockets. Though she disclaimed knowledge of the cigarettes, she was turned over to the Narcotics Bureau of the Treasury to appear today before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Ray C. Huff, Lorton superintendent, said this was the second time in the history of the institution an attempt had been made to smuggle in dope. Last year two men were arrested there and last March two guards were discharged from Occoquan Workhouse for allegedly smuggling whisky to prisoners.

W. W. Wheeler to Talk

The regular luncheon meeting of the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association will be held at 12:15 p. m. tomorrow in the clubroom of the Normandie Apartments, 6817 Georgia avenue northwest. W. W. Wheeler, of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., will be guest speaker.

Clemons Portrait Given to Library

Charlottesville, Va., June 11 (AP).—A portrait of Harry Clemons, University of Virginia librarian, recently completed by Bethuel Moore, of New York, was on exhibition today in the Alderman Library.

The portrait was presented to the library by members of the library staff and the library committee as an expression of their affection for Mr. Clemons and of their appreciation of his services as librarian.

Two Girls Hurt in Traffic Crash

A Casualty Hospital ambulance surgeon is shown giving first aid to two girls injured yesterday in a collision at Thirteenth and Franklin streets northeast. They are Gladys Souder, 16, of the 1700 block of Third street northeast (left), and Margaret Haws, 17, of the 200 block of R street northeast. Richard Souder, 17, of the Third street address also was injured

Barkley Urges Renewal of Faith in U. S.

Speaks From Among 100 Massed Flags In Services on Steps of Capitol

From among 100 American flags massed on the Capitol steps yesterday came a challenge to the youth of the Nation to "dedicate yourselves to the task of preserving your great heritage."

Nearly 1,500 people on Capitol Plaza and thousands more at their radios throughout the Nation heard Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, call for a renewal of "a courage that counted not the cost of sacrifice," in a vesper flag service sponsored by the United States Flag Association.

Col. James A. Moss, U. S. A., retired, president general of the association, saluted "the youth of today, Old Glory's greatest glory, the defenders of the flag tomorrow."

Tolerance Is Emphasized

While singing of the crowd carried the words of "America" above the accompaniment of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club Band, the flag, the cross and the star of David were carried down the steps by three boys, a colored lad, a Christian and a Jew, in witness to the racial and religious tolerance for which the flag stands.

Briefly recounting American history, a "pageant of constant progress," Senator Barkley urged young America to "cling to the faith which inspired our forefathers." He was answered by 15-year-old Champ Clark, son of the Senator from Missouri and grandson of the late Speaker of the House of Representatives.

"In every one of America's wars the youth of the land have suffered and sacrificed, fought and died on the field of battle," young Clark said. "We, the youth of America, appeal to you, our elders, not to send us to war."

Valley Forge Prayer Recited

Dennis E. Connell, as the voice of Abraham Lincoln, urged America to "awake, unite and co-operate before it is too late," in a paraphrase of the Gettysburg address.

"Remember that this nation was born in faith in God," said Bishop James E. Freeman, before reciting a prayer for America written by George Washington at Valley Forge. The invocation was given by the Rev. John K. Cartwright, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, and the benediction by Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

Week's Climax Wednesday

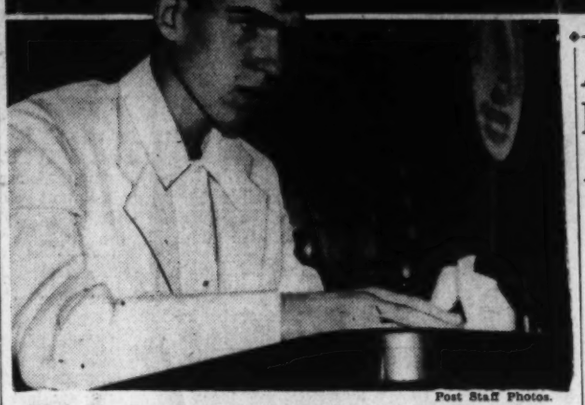
Senator Barkley was introduced by Senator Capper, of Kansas, member of the National Council of '76, National Patriotic Revival, who drew loud cheers for his defense of Americanism against "all those foreign isms."

The Sons of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps played "The Halls of Montezuma," and Lucius Johnson, a 10-year-old colored boy, led in singing "America's Marching On."

Flag Week will be climaxed Wednesday with exercises by Labor Post No. 42, American Legion, at 11 a. m. in the departmental auditorium; by the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of the Potomac, Women's Relief Corps, at 8:30 p. m. on the east steps of the Capitol, and by the Washington Lodge of Elks, at 8 p. m. in the lodge room, 919 H street northwest.

All allied organizations are expected to participate in G. A. R. exercises Wednesday when a composite cast from the Army, Navy and Marine Corps will present a pageant, "The Defenders of the Flag." Senator Gillette, of Iowa, will deliver the principal address at the American Legion Post observance and Sefton Darr, president of the District of Columbia Bar Association, will address the Elks.

Flag Day Ceremonies Held on Steps of Nation's Capitol



Post Staff Photos.

While Flag Day does not fall officially until June 14, impressive ceremonies in tribute to the American ensign were held yesterday on the steps of the Capitol. Top picture shows legionnaires in salute as the Metropolitan Police Boys Band plays the national anthem. The crowd joined in the singing. O'Conor Names James H. Pugh To State Board

Former State's Attorney In Montgomery Put On Accident Commission

Gov. Herbert O'Conor, of Maryland, last night appointed James H. Pugh, former Montgomery County States' attorney, a member of the State Industrial Accident Commision replacing Omar D. Crothers.

Pugh left office as State's attorney last fall to run unsuccessfully for the State Senate.

In the gubernatrial primaries he served as chairman of O'Conor's campaign committee in Montgomery County while the Democratic machine backed Howard W. Jackson, whom O'Conor defeated for the nomination.

A graduate of McKinley High School and the University of Maryland where he was a football star, Pugh is 36 years old. He was elected State's attorney in 1934.

1,000 Parents, Alumni at Final V. M. I. Exercises

Lexington, Va., June 11 (AP).—Virginia Military Institute finals opened yesterday with approximately 1,000 alumni and parents gathered for the program.

The corps drilled in full white in the morning, followed by the cavalry in a special lancer drill. The field artillery gave an exhibition of horsemanship. The silent drill of the corps executed intricate movements without command.

The regimental review before the board of visitors was held in the afternoon with the entire board present. The regimental parade followed and special awards were made.

Gen. Charles E. Kilbourne, superintendent, pinned the John J. Pershing award on Cadet Regimental Commander W. A. Irving. The award was for outstanding achievement in military work.

Roosevelt Name To Live as Tags Of Marine Species

The name of Roosevelt has been guaranteed immortality on one species of fish, one of crustacean, four of mollusks, one of starfish and one genus of palm tree, the Smithsonian Institute announced yesterday.

All of them, together with two dozen other species hitherto unknown to science, were collected by Dr. Waldo L. Schmidt, Smithsonian naturalist who accompanied the President on his cruise to the Galapagos Islands on board the U. S. S. Houston last year.

The new starfish will henceforth be known as Ophionereis roosevelti, the fish as Pycnomma roosevelti, the crustacean as Thalamita roosevelti and the mollusks as Terebra roosevelti, Conus roosevelti, Marginella roosevelti and Peasiella roosevelti. The palm tree, a new genus as well as species, gets a double Presidential christening. It is Rooseveltia frankliniana.

Dance Recital Saturday

A spring dance recital by 20 students of the Alice Louise Hunter School, assisted by Ray Williams, of Baltimore, will be given at Woodrow Wilson High School auditorium at 8:15 p. m. Saturday, under auspices of the Community Center Department.

Capital News In Brief

First Masses at Home

Two local young men, recently ordained to the Catholic priesthood, returned yesterday to their home churches to say their first masses.

They were the Rev. Francis J. Lauriola, who served as celebrant at St. Teresa's Catholic Church, Thirteenth and V streets southeast, and the Rev. Raymond Paul Repetti, who officiated at St. Peter's. Both were ordained last Thursday in Baltimore.

The chair of St. Peter's, ending its current season, presented a special program honoring Father Repetti, who has been appointed assistant pastor of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart Church. Father Lauriola was given a parish reception in the hall of St. Teresa's School after services.

Police Plaque Unveiled

A memorial plaque commemorating deceased Park policemen was unveiled in services in the new Interior Department auditorium yesterday.

The silver plaque, which lists names of the dead Park officers, was unveiled after the invocation by the Rev. H. W. Burgan, pastor of the Hamline Methodist Church.

Addresses of welcome to more than 250 friends and relatives were made by Lieut. Henry Helms and Private Raymond F. Selby and the benediction was delivered by the Rev. Patrick J. Ryan, Army chaplain.

The Police Department Silver Shield Quartet and the Klein Chorus sang several selections.

Shots Hit Bystander

Another innocent victim of a shooting that took place Saturday night at Seventh and P streets northwest showed up yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital. He was Harvey Fair, 39, of 828 Second street northwest.

Bullets, said by police to be intended for Leroy Franklin, special policeman for a Seventh street cafe, struck Fair and Jacob Smith, also colored, of the 800 block of O street northwest. Neither is seriously hurt.

Victim of Bicycles

Eight-year-old Bernard Gibson, of Bradbury Heights, Md., was playing at Second street and Massachusetts avenue northeast yesterday when he was run over by two playmates on bicycles. The child required treatment at Casualty Hospital, but was not seriously hurt.

America Faces Loss of Liberty, Adventist Says

Falling Birth Rate, Possibility of Conflict With Orient Cited

American liberties will vanish unless the American people awaken to gigantic secret movements stirring the country from beneath, Dr. Benjamin G. Wilkinson, sr., president of the Washington Missionary College, declared last night at closing exercises of the ten-day camp meeting of the Potomac Conference of the Seventh Day Adventists at Takoma Park, Md.

Two or three facts stand out in the present world situation, Dr. Wilkinson said. The first is "the perilous birth decline of the white race." He pointed out that experts have figured that at the present decline of the birth rate, Great Britain's present 40,000,000 population will be reduced to 4,000,000 within a century.

Japanese Excess a Million

"Educators in the United States are much troubled over decrease in school attendance," he said. He declared that, despite his intense efforts to promote large families, Mussolini is failing to increase the population. In the meantime, Japanese births exceed deaths by nearly a million a year and the increase in India and China also is immense, he said.

Growing determination of western powers to possess Moslem lands is the second factor, Dr. Wilkinson said. He held that efforts of Italy, Germany, France and England to possess these lands will culminate in a great clash between "the Orient and the Occident."

Return of Christ Remedy

The white nations understand the dreadful possibilities of the situation far more than they admit, he said, adding that the final remedy of the world situation is the return soon of Christ, as discerned by the Adventists in their study of the Biblical prophecies.

E. F. Koch, pastor of the new Adventist Church in Fredericksburg, Va. declared at the morning meeting that "man looks at the outward appearance, but God looks in the hearts. A man's character is what he is in the dark." Elder D. W. Hunter, chaplain of the Washington Sanitarium, spoke on the Adventist faith at the afternoon medical session.

Deatherage Asks Dies' 'Intentions' Before Giving Data

St. Albans, W. Va., June 10 (AP).—George Deatherage, commander of the Knights of the White Camellia, today told the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities the Knights "wish to know what your intentions are before we make any further move."

He said he had notified the committee by letter that his "two tons of evidence" on subversive groups would stay hidden because:

"Under the circumstances I do not feel that this organization which I represent should take the further trouble to produce anti-Communist data to the committee.

"When Gen. Van Horn Moseley attempted to present evidence of this plot and international conspiracy," the letter said, "the committee struck it from the record . . . By what realm of the imagination will George Deatherage be treated any differently."

Suspect Admits Killing Woman With Nail

Sarah Williams, 47, colored, of 39 Pierce street northwest, was killed last night at her home by an assailant who used a sharp nail. Shortly after the murder police arrested a suspect who admitted the killing.

Lutherans Close Church In Southwest

Eighty-four years of Christian service to Washington's Southwest came to a close yesterday at St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church where parishioners worshiped for the last time before Federal acquisition of the property.

In 30 days, the Rev. George H. Eveler informed his congregation, the edifice will be razed to make way for the social security and railroad retirement board buildings between Third, Fourth and D streets and Independence avenue.

Realization that it was the final worship service brought tears to the eyes of many parishioners, descendants of Germans who settled in the southwest area when it was known as the "Island." For many years they worshiped in the old Columbia Engine House on Capitol Hill.

Merger in Fall

"It is not an easy matter to have served this congregation so long, and then to be separated," the Rev. Mr. Eveler, who will temporarily take charge of St. John's Mission in East Riverdale, Md., said.

Using as his text, Ephesians iii:17, . . . "That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith . . . that ye being rooted and grounded in love . . . may be able to comprehend with all saints . . . what is the breadth, length and height," he urged his flock to keep faith, and to carry on as they become part of the congregation of Reformation Lutheran Church.

Formal merger will take place in the fall, according to church leaders, and the $46,000 received from the Government's purchase of the property will be used to construct a St. John's Parish Hall at Reformation, opposite the Folger Shakespeare library.

Last Communion

Following his message, the Rev. Mr. Eveler stepped up to the Communion rail, and invited the congregation to share in the final Lord's Supper.

After a German custom, the women of the church walked first to the rail, knelt before their spiritual leader, who asked them to . . . "Take this and eat . . . this is the body of Christ . . . given for thee."

"Take and drink, this is the blood of the New Testament, shed for thy sins," he intoned, as he lifted the communion cup to their lips. "The body of our Lord Jesus Christ and His precious blood strengthen and preserve you in true faith unto everlasting life, Amen."

Veteran Members Present

Among the oldest members attending the services were George W. Huth, Mrs. Elizabeth Wiegand, Miss E. Margaret Tripp, Mrs. Catherine Miller, Mrs. Alice Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John Herrmann, Mrs. Fred Wassman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beiber, Mrs. Charles Zimmerman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Koehler and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Koblenz.

Also the Rev. Mr. Eveler, president of the congregation; William F. Herrmann, vice president; Arthur C. Smith, treasurer, and John F. Herrmann, secretary.

The Government will acquire possession of the church pipe organ through the purchase of the site, because of its impracticability of dismantling it. Pews, altar and other equipment will either be sold or given to other churches.

Another New Theater To Open Thursday Night

The Warners' Kennedy to Bow With 'Juarez'
Sylvan Theater Festivals Begin Next Week
News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

AND STILL THEY COME. I mean the steady additions to the growing list of Washington's residential motion-picture theaters. There seems to be no end to the thing. There seems to be no limit, either, to the Capital's thickening population, from which it seems possible to draw sufficient audiences to fill all of these outlying tabernacles of the cinema.

BELL

The point, however, is that the Warner Brothers' new Kennedy Theater, on Kennedy street near Fourth, northwest, will celebrate its formal dedication on Thursday night of this week. June 15, according to yesterday's announcement from Zone Manager John J. Payette, of the Warner interests in this territory.

The Hon. Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of District Commissioners, and D. W. Gabelein, president of the Chillum Heights Citizens Association, will speak at the inaugural. One performance only will be given on Thursday night. It will begin at 8:30 o'clock and will have "Juarez," now playing at both the Earle and Ambassador Theaters, as its chief screen attraction. This, as, of course, you know, is the picture in which Paul Muni, Bette Davis and Brian Aherne do such superlative work, supported by a long and distinguished cast. "Juarez" will be shown on opening night only. Friday's feature will be "You Can't Cheat An Honest Man," with W. C. Fields, and on Saturday "Stagecoach" will be shown.

Designed by John Eberson, noted New York theater architect, and built by the Mohler Construction Co., the Kennedy will have a seating capacity of 1,000 on one floor. A striking feature of the design is a return to the Colonial motif, as opposed to the prevalent ultramodern streamlined effects. Blue and silver are the dominant colors in the decoration scheme.

Land to be Manager

Claude Land, formerly manager of the Colony, will fill the managerial post at the new theater. The new house will operate daily from 1 to 11 p. m., and from 2 to 11 p. m. on Sundays.

It is not inconceivable that the opening of the Kennedy will make itself felt upon the box-offices of the Sheridan, Colony and even the Silver and Seco theaters, out in Silver Spring, all connecting links in the Warner chain, but since there seem to be audiences that can be summoned "out of the nowhere into the here" for all of these theaters as fast as they are built, that is probably nothing for us to worry about. So we aren't worrying. Anywa, it's too hot.

After an absence of nearly two years, Dudley Digges, eminent character actor, has been articled to return to the screen. The actor is to portray one of the two British war correspondents in "The Light That Failed," which Producer-Director William A. Wellman is scheduled to put into production for Paramount June 19, on location at Sante Fe, N. Mex., with Ronald Colman starred. For the past year or more Digges has been appearing in the Broadway stage hit, "On Borrowed Time." The cast also includes Thomas Mitchell, as the other correspondent. It should be a nice tussle between Mr. Digges and Mr. Mitchell, who has been going great guns lately, for top supporting honors.

The season of weekly Tuesday evening Summer Festival programs in the National Sylvan Theater, on the Monument grounds, will be inaugurated by the Community Center Department, under the general direction of Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, on Tuesday, June 20. The initial offering will be the Blackfriars Guild of Catholic University's production of Edmond Rostand's five-act romantic drama, "Cyrano de Bergerac." Denis E. Connell will appear in the title role.

Leading feminine roles will be played by Evelyn Keene Meade, as Roxane, a part in which she has previously appeared, and by Edna Evans, as Therese. Miss Evans is the young actress who "made" the trip to Hollywood in last winter's local "Gateway to Hollywood" contest.

Others of local prominence in the cast include Gregory Crawley, loaned by the King-Smith Studio; S. Carlton Ayres, William Leggate, E. Francis McDevitt and a supporting ensemble of more than 50.

Last year's National Folk Festival, sponsored by The Washington Post, has brought pleasure to a King nad Queen, fame to four obscure girls and an added act to the stage revue scheduled for the Earle stage, beginning next Friday. The Coon Creek Girls, from Coon Creek, Ky., will appear in Harry Anger's "Words and Music" stage offering. Last week they sang two numbers at the White House for the edification of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, on the same program with Lawrence Tibbett, of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, and Marian Anderson, noted Negro contralto. These numbers, "How Many Biscuits Can You Eat?" and "Cindy," will be included in their turn at the Earle. The girls, in case you haven't heard, are Rosie Ledford, 23; her sister, Lily May, 22; Violet Koehler, 23, and Daisy Lange, 19. Lily May keeps a snake's rattles in her violin to improve the tone. Fritz Kreisler and Jascha Heifetz please note!

Robert Porterfield's Barter Theater, down Abingdon, Va., way, opened its season last Thursday night to the largest first-night audience in its history. The play was Thornton Wilder's prize-winning "Our Town."

The name of the Barter Theater, of course, means precisely what it says—you barter your way in with any old commodity, whether you have any money or not. Thus the first night's box-office turned up a live duck and six baby ducklings, eggs, mustard greens, comb honey, cheese, strawberries and wine.

The lady who brought the wine has been strongly urged by the cast to return every week.

The Metropolitan Theater now is showing a 26-minute Paramount Newsreel resume of the complete activities of the King and Queen here and in New York. Every important event on their crowded itinerary is covered . . . And the Troupers of East Washington Community Center are holding tryouts for "Hail Nero," to be presented in the Sylvan Theater, tomorrow night at 8, at Eastern High School, and Friday night at 8, at the Thompson School. Men especially are needed.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, June 11 (1935).—What a relief it will be for Paul Muni to wear no makeup in "We Are Not Alone." He won't have to get up at the crack of dawn to don fancy beards, built-up foreheads and shaven heads, as he did in "Pasteur," "Good Earth," "Zola," and "Juarez." Ten minutes is is all the time that he expects to allot himself in getting ready for the role of the doctor in the James Hilton story.

LOUELLA PARSONS

I shall be surprised, indeed, if Dolly Hass isn't announced as the dancer, and here is another bit of news. Gale Sondergaard is practically set to play the wife. Muni has a very high regard for her ability and Producer Henry Blanke also likes her, so when it was certain that Flora Robson would not be here, she was signed. So, unless there's a last-minute change, it will be a Muni, Haas and Sondergard. Miriam Hopkins, who we thought would play the dancer, is planning a vacation in New York. Hence the switch to Haas, who, after two years, will make her first appearance here in an American movie.

With "young Mr. Lincoln" cleaning up at the boxoffice it stands to reason that some producer would get the idea of a young George Washington—and that's exactly what Paramount has in mind in angling for Zane Grey's "George Washington, frontiersman." For the past five months Grey has been in Australia putting the finishing touches on his first biographical novel. He arrives Monday with the manuscript and you can put your bottom dollar on it that Para, who has produced so many of his novels, will talk business. The new biography features the pioneering young Washington and his history long before he became our first President.

Who hasn't seen the familiar 20-mule team on the boxes of borax on kitchen shelves since we were children? M-G-M has now bought a story called "Twenty-Mule Team," a saga of the old West and laid in the time when the borax mines were doing a flourishing business. Wallace Beery plays a typical Death Valley Scotty character with Mickey Rooney as his son. This should be made before Mickey goes to Europe and as soon as J. Walter Ruben finishes "Thunder Afloat" with Wally, for he is again Papa Berry's producer.

A heart warming story came to me last week which again proves that Hollywood always tries to help its unfortunate. Vivian Cosby, well known scenario writer, was injured some time ago in an automobile accident, and so badly crippled that she is bedridden. Friends tried to figure out some way that she could earn money to pay her expenses and she was offered a series of bedside interviews, providing she could get stars to come to see her. Joan Crawford, hearing of Vivian's offer, immediately volunteered to go to her home for the first interview. Now other stars are following in Joan's footsteps, and you will probably be reading the stories which will enable Vivian to pay her debts.

After a battle royal, Warners are the "winnah" for the sea-story prize, "Captain Horatio Hornblower," for Errol Flynn, practically snatching it from the nose of M-G-M, who wanted it for Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy. As we told you before this is the hale and hearty book by C. S. Forrester combining three yarns, "Beat to Quarter," "Flying Colours," and "Ship of the Line" in one volume. With the same appeal as "Mutiny on the Bounty" it should be a swell vehicle for Errol who made "Captain Blood"—but it's tough on M-G-M to lose such a natural for Clark.

A line or two: Rita Hayworth and her husband, Eddie Judson, were denying all those rumors about their separation at the house of Murphy last night. She said she supposed it all started for business reasons . . . They had dined apart several times . . . Ethel and John Barrymore who have been on the outs for several years are completely reconciled. They say Jawn's break with Elaine and his recent illness were what healed the breach . . . Cary Grant stayed over one night just for the Mike Romanoff party which was more filled with gags than a Milton Berle monologue . . . Polly Moran, is being paged by Brynie Foy for a Technicolor short, "Cactus Nell," which Polly made years ago when she first started as a two-gun gal in Keystone Comedies.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Talk is that Dorothy Fields, talented daughter of Lew, will wed Ely Lahn as soon as her divorce becomes final. They will live in New York; the headwaiter at the Lamaze couldn't have known that Joan Crawford was once the wife of Douglas Fairbanks, jr., when he seated Doug and his bride next to Joan and Charlie Martin. But after one moment of embarrassment all four started talking; Jane Bryan and Eddie Albert have started all over again and were much in evidence at the Bublichki; Geraldine Spreckles and Peter Willes were another pair going Russian for the evening; Mary Brian is remaining in New York for six weeks in stock; Buddy Adler back in town and he and Anita Louise have picked up where they left off; Vivien Leigh will head for New York as soon as she finishes "Gone."

Mike Frankovitch in a ringside seat with Binnie Barnes delighted the cash customers at Slapsy Maxie's when he got up and did card tricks; Charley Farrell, accompanied by his bride of ten years, Virginia Valli, do a cross-country jaunt in their trailer stopping at all the summer stock companies; Claudette Colbert took the week-end off to visit the San Francisco Fair; John Garfield will spend his vacation in Mexico City and attend the "Juarez" opening; the pretty girl with Brian Aherne at Earl Carroll's was Patricia Morison. Para's stardust gal; Mrs. Lloyd Nolan gave the Fred MacMurrays the surprise of their lives when she stopped at their house in an ambulance on her way home from the hospital; Rosalind Russell and Paulette Goddard battled through seven sets in "The Women," necessitating new furniture and new clothes each time.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

New York, June 11.

RADIO DEPT.: Gladys Swarthout was the singer selected for that special radio broadcast for the King and Queen of England . . . Grace Moore was nominated at first, but the officials reconsidered and decided against it—not only because Miss Moore is one of the Duke of Windsor's friends, but also because she made front-page publicity by curtsying to the Duchess of Windsor.

LABOR DEPT.: Dick Maney, the press agent, attended the other night's hectic meeting of the T. M. A. T.—the parent union of the press agents, theater managers, box-office men, etc. . . . After the meeting Maney and a group of other publicists went to Sardi's, where Dick suddenly remembered many things he had forgotten to mention to the union leaders . . . "I'm going back there and tell 'em," he declared . . . "But, Dick, they've all gone," he was reminded. "Nobody'll be there to listen to you" . . . "That's okay," the undaunted Maney persisted. "I'll settle for the echo."

POLITICS: Some portions of the Italian populace actually believe the Fascist propaganda—that the President's name really is Rosenfelt . . . Recently a Fascist executive went to see the daughter of George Roosevelt, who is married to an Italian nobleman there, and advised her that she would be required to withdraw her child from school because of the new anti-Jewish decrees . . . "But how does that affect my child?" asked the bewildered lady . . . "Well," returned the Fascist supervisor, "aren't you a relative of President Roosevelt's?"

ETIQUETTE DEPT.: A few of the guests at the British Ambassador's garden party were anxious to see whether or not Mrs. William Bankhead, wife of the Speaker of the House, curtsied before their Majesties . . . When Edward, then Prince of Wales, visited America some years ago, Mrs. Bankhead warned her husband: "Billy, I'm not going to curtsey before that boy. I'd just feel like a fool—and, what's more, I'd look like a fool."

TRAVEL DEPT. Bosserman, one of the most distinguished actors in Germany, is en route to America now . . . Before he was exiled he received from the late Alexander Moisse—the foremost actor of his day—the ring which denoted supremacy in the field of entertainment . . . That ring was a tradition in the German theater and was handed down from great actor to great actor . . . On the day before Bosserman left Germany forever he went to Moisse's grave and there buried the ring—to signify the death of the theater in Nazi Germany.

LOCAL NEWS: Jed Harris notified his secretary that he is closing his N. Y. office, and henceforth will devote his talents to the movie industry . . . Tony Canzoneri confided that his fight with Eric Boone next month positively will be his last bout . . . Front-pages picked up this column's report of the Katharine Hepburn robbery. Miss Hepburn had wanted it kept secret, because she feared that readers might think it's a publicity stunt. This was not her first encounter with burglars. She was robbed in Hollywood recently . . . Murdock Pemberton had a set-to with Selmer Fougner, head of Les Amis D'Escoffier, because of the Pemberton cracks about him in Esquire magazine . . . Walter Wanger is trying to locate Joan Bennett—who is in Mexico now, with Woolworth Donahue, on Billy Leeds' yacht.

BUSINESS DEPT.: Louis Dubonnet, head of the firm which bears his name, will go to Detroit to see Henry Ford and other auto executives . . . Mr. Dubonnet, in his spare time, has invented many automobile devices and is going to Michigan to negotiate for their sale.

MOVIE DEPT.: Warner Bros. announced that they will not furnish pictures to Skouras theaters, because Skouras was offering double-features of "A" pictures . . . The Warners are going beyond that, in an attempt to fight the double-feature evil, and are resorting to ridicule . . . In "Daughters Courageous," Claude Rains tells one of the girls: "The family won't be home until morning. They went to see a double-feature."

OBITUARY: Many hundreds of his friends assembled last week at the grave of Izzy Einstein, the most famous prohibition agent employed by the U. S. Government. They came to participate in the ceremonies dedicating the newly erected tombstone, at Mount Zion Cemetery . . . A self-enforced rule at the cemetery forbids the carrying of any liquor there. "Izzy was such a wonderful husband and father," one of his friends proposed, "we should drink to his memory" . . . "The rule forbids it," Izzy's sons, attorneys, decided. "In memory of our father, we shouldn't bootleg it."

British Star Gets Film Role By Accident

Sophie Stewart, Crossed By Agents, Drafted For 'Edith Cavell'

By Frederick Othman,
United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, June 11.—When an American movie company wants to make a picture in London, it has to hire a British cast, use English equipment and retain European technicians.

And when a British producer wants to make a movie in Hollywood, he can hire anybody he wants and good luck to him. That's a break for America, no matter what you may think of the international implications.

If it weren't for our liberal laws on the subject of foreign labor there'd be no "nurse Edith Cavell" before the cameras here today, no Herbert Wilcox producing it, no Anna Neagle starring in it, and no Sophie Stewart playing the second lead.

They're Britishers all. We've already reported on Wilcox and the blue-eyed Miss Neagle, who are assets to any picture business, and now we want to consider Miss Stewart.

She got into the picture by mistake, almost, and she's so excited about the freedom of life in America that she's hopeful of remaining here indefinitely.

A Native of Scotland

Miss Stewart, native of Perthshire, Scotland, sister of a member of Parliament, and one of London's leading actresses, long has had an idea that she'd like to work a while in Hollywood.

"I'd heard such fantastic stories about the city," she said, "that I felt I must come here to see it for myself. I got some tentative offers from Metro and from R-K-O, where I'm working now, but my agents made a mess of them. I think they were too greedy.

"There were agents in London and there were agents in Hollywood and they didn't want to split their commissions and that left me in the middle. So I continued to work in England.

"Finally I got all my commitments caught up and I came over here on my own as a plain, garden-variety tourist. So I looked over the country and then I came to Hollywood for a visit with my old friend, Fay Holden, who plays in the Hardy Family series. So Miss Holden invited Mr. Wilcox and Miss Neagle over for an evening.

Meets Old Friends

"They were old friends of mine, too, and they were looking for an actress to take this part of Sister Watkins of the British Nursing Service and here I am. And I hope I can stay in other films after it is completed.

Miss Stewart rented herself an apartment near the studio, bought an automobile and discovered the super-colossal grocery stores of southern California. She doesn't yet know whether she is more excited over her apartment, or the scenery she has seen from her car, or the vegetables.

"But I am inclined to favor the vegetables," she said. "I never saw such beautiful vegetables before. Some of them I didn't even know existed."

Studied to Be Dancer

While attending school in London, she studied dancing under Cecchitti, master of the Russian ballet and did so well that by 1922 Pavlova invited her to join the last world tour the ballerina ever made.

"I was 13 years old," Miss Stewart said, "and I was thrilled beyond words. So I went home to Scotland to see my mother and father, and I'd hardly arrived before I was run down by a motor lorry.

"For two years I could not walk. The doctors told me I'd never dance again. I was broken hearted. One of the nurses said the next best thing was acting. So, after I recovered and finished my education I edged my way into the theater."

She toured Canada in 1931 in stock, starred in the stage production "Marigold" in London and New York and played leading roles in such British films as "The Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel," "Under the Red Robe" and "Things to Come."

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., June 11.—John Ford's done it again in "Young Mr. Lincoln." I can't remember when John hasn't done it. He doesn't care where he makes 'em, so long as they're good. He did "Stagecoach" for Walter Wanger and "The Informer" at RKO. A happier choice couldn't have been found than Henry Fonda. He never makes a false move. Ever since he was a little boy, Hank dreamed of playing Lincoln some day. But just knew he'd never be that lucky.

HOPPER

Alice Brady even tops her performance "In Old Chicago." Her's are scenes of inarticulate beauty. Who but John Ford would have picked Donald Meek for the opposing attorney? I'll be surprised if he doesn't cop the Academy Award for the supporting player this coming year. The performances of Marjory Weaver, Arleen Whalen and Constance Moore even surprised the girls who gave them. Hollywood is finally growing up.

In coming out of the theater I spied Constance Bennet and said, "Hello, Connie."

If looks could kill, I'd be dead now, for I got that kind when Connie answered, "Should I speak to you?"

Now, I'm one of the few columnists who haven't rowed with the lady. Frankly, I like her spit-fire manner. When she has anything to say, she says it—and how! I've known her since she was 10. I used to meet her mother, with the three girls in tow, when shopping for my son.

I played in "What's Wrong with Women," Connie's first picture. We were amused that our scenes were held up while Connie did hers, because she got off early to rehearse with Maurice, the dancer. They were opening at the old Knickerbocker Grill on Broadway.

I was doing a picture with her at the Yacht Club in San Pedro, when she sat in a booth with the door open. The entire company listened while she shouted to Darryl Zanuck about the coming picture she was to do for him at Warner Brothers, when they paid her $30,000 a week.

I marveled at her patience with son Peter, when he displayed a spit-fire temperament to match hers. Now I'll answer your question, Connie. No, you shouldn't speak to me. Because I won't answer you!

I hear that Mervyn Le Roy, who was at the sound controls for the out-of-town preview of "Wizard of Oz," drowned out Oz. The customers got the wizard of sound, which was colossal.

It will be interesting to see whom Madeleine Carroll picks now that she's divorcing. She's thought up something new for birthdays. Has one the twenty-sixth of each month. When the twenty-sixth happens on Friday, that's really gala. The other day on the set she got 26 gardenias and not from an Englishman. Yes, she's doing all right in our country.

About 200 followed the dots to Dottie Lamour's for cocktails. It started as a lawn party but guests shivered into the house. When Alex Temple dedicated a song to her, lyrics by Neville Fleeson, giving Dottie teeth like sea-foam (not Seabiscuit), hair smooth as a raven's wing, mouth like a budding hibiscus. It was lush.

Dottie was photoed with her current boy friends, Randy Scott, Howard Hughes, Edgar Bergen, Wynn Rocomoro and John Howard. Former-husband Herbie Kay was asked but couldn't make it.

Raoul Walsh told me he's directing Jimmy Cagney's next picture and our mutual friend Andy Lawler set the deal.

Dances Again

STEFFI DUNA,
one of Hollywood's most exotic dancing actresses, who will dance again, after a year, in Paramount's "The Magnificent Fraud," soon to be released.

Trans-Lux

The King and Queen of Great Britain, having taken Washington by storm, now are pictured at the Trans-Lux Theater in one of the finest newsreel presentations ever. There are views of Their Majesties at the Union Station, the White House, the Capitol, Mount Vernon and at the grave of the Unknown Soldier; then the mammoth turnout and reception in New York and the World's Fair.

Also in the news, are the first pictures of the English submarine disaster; impressive scenes at the unveiling of the huge bronze statue of the late Will Rogers, at the Capitol; and a number of Japanese-Chinese war pictures, and on the lighter side, Galento and Joe Louis, preparing for their coming bout. There is a Lew Lehr episode that is a howl.

For the sorts, there is a trip to Panama, all in natural color and completely covering this fascinating small country, winding up with a typical trip through the famous man-made canal. Both amateur and professional diving artists are seen in "Water Fun." There are kids in the city park fountains, and at the other end special shots of such professionals as Johnny Weismuller. The color cartoon is a classic, "Small Fry." Good laughs to round out a splendid program.

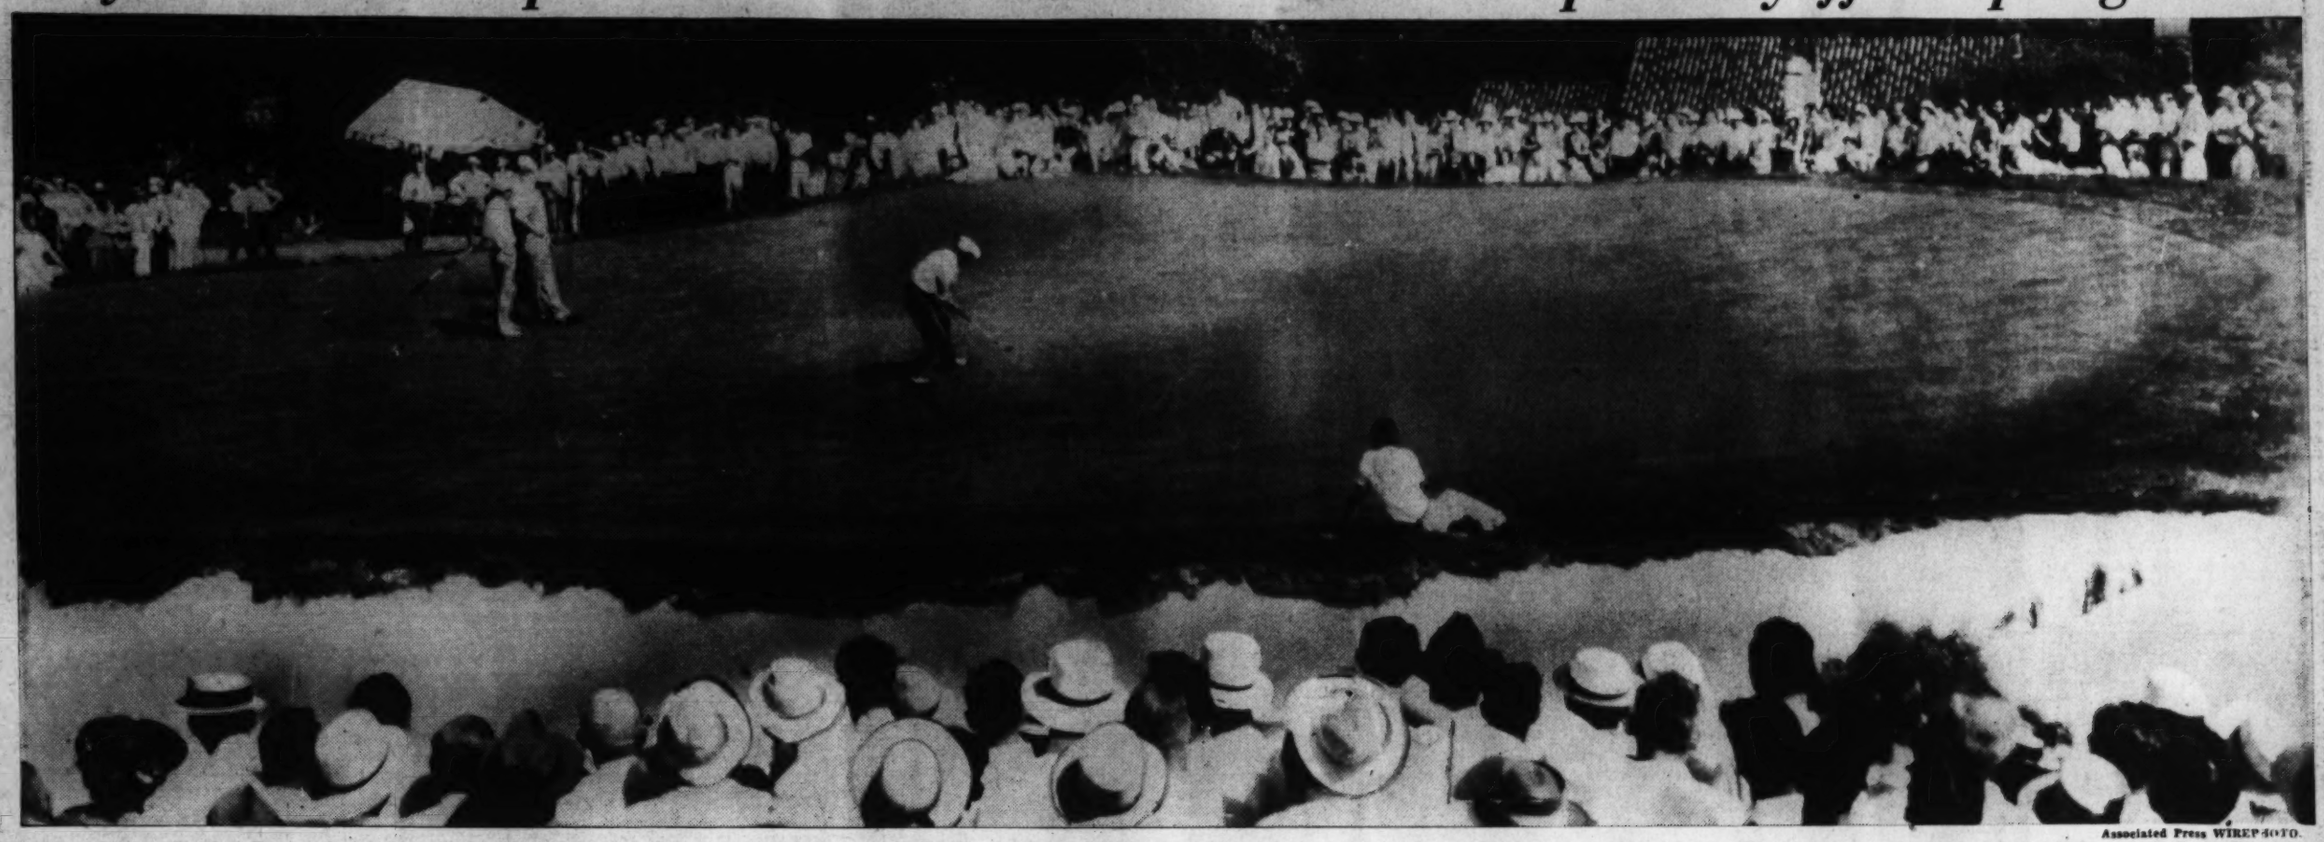
Byron Nelson Drops a Valuable Birdie Putt on Ninth in Open Playoff at Spring Mill



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Byron Nelson, Reading, Pa., pro, is bending with the ball as it nears the cup on the ninth green in the three-way playoff for the National Open title yesterday at Spring Mill, in Philadelphia. The 25-foot putt dropped and tied Nelson with Craig Wood at 33 at the halfway mark. They finished in a tie at 68, while Denny Shute was eight strokes back with a 76. Shute and Wood are on Nelson's left, watching the putt. The second playoff is set for this morning. (See story on Page 1, first section)

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Detroit, June 11.—The man they say was the greatest ball player who ever lived came back to the scene of his former triumphs today. He's en route to tomorrow's grand doings at Cooperstown, N. Y., where baseball celebrates its 100th anniversary. His name has to be, of course, Ty Cobb.

POVICH

He's 51 years old and you'd recognize him as Ty Cobb even if you knew him from no more than the picture you might have seen on those old cigarette cards. That fighting face is still very much unmistakable. He looks to be exactly what he is, a retired ball player and a prosperous one. Here in Detroit, where the fans of two generations gloried in his feats, he is the sort of person who causes a craning of necks and a gaping of mouths as he takes his seat in a field box.

He was the guest of Owner Walter O. Briggs, of the Tigers, today. Ty and three of his grown children. The Cobbs nowadays look like quality folks. Daddy is well on his way to his third million, accumulated mostly from the Coca Cola stocks he bought with his baseball earnings from indulgent fellow Georgians, who liked to let the famous Ty in on a good thing.

And up in the press box, as Cobb viewed the proceedings between the Nats and the Tigers, another famous baseball figure was talking about the man. Harry Heilmann, now Detroit's ace baseball broadcaster, but formerly a teammate of Cobb's on the Tigers for 10 years, was saying:

He Had a Right to Be Sore

"Unquestionably, the greatest ball player who ever lived—by far. And he would have been a great banker, an outstanding industrialist, a famous general, or a potent figure in any field he chose. No other man I've ever known had Ty Cobb's frenzy for excellence, his self-discipline of his tremendous application. It was no accident that he starred at baseball. Whatever he did was a passion with him.

"There were stories that he didn't get along with his teammates, that he was a sorehead. Well, you'd be a sorehead, too, if teammates, jealous of your batting average, broke your favorite bats. Cobb would sit for hours boning his bats with a marrow bone to fill the grain and the small chinks in the wood. He knew it would give him a better bat.

"He was not only an impulsive ball player, he was a great percentage player. You may have seen him violently kicking the bag when he was on first or third. It wasn't any idle expression with him. He knew he could kick that bag a few more inches into foul territory and get that edge the next time he came to bat.

"If there was a pitcher he didn't hit well—Walter Johnson was one of 'em—he'd try to beat 'em with bunts. Bunting was an art with him, but he wouldn't trust everything to his skill. He'd have the infield soaked in front of the plate to make his bunts roll slow, and he'd build up the sod on the third base line to keep his bunts from rolling foul.

"He tried to bulldose the opposition because he wanted to upset 'em. He'd tell infielders to get out of the way because he was going to slide with his spikes up. Any pitcher who tried to throw at Cobb did so at his own risk. Ty would drag the next ball toward first base to make the pitcher cover the bag, and when Ty was through sliding there'd be a wounded pitcher on the premises.

Grove Learned to Respect Ty

"One day in Philadelphia Lefty Grove threw what looked to be a bean ball at Ty. It hit the peak of his cap and turned it sideways on his head. The next time at bat Cobb said: 'Watch out, Grove, I'm gonna knock this ball back down your throat.' He almost did, too. He hit a line drive back at Grove and darned if it didn't hit Lefty on the peak of the cap, turning it sideways, even as Grove had done to Cobb.

"I call him the best friend I ever had in baseball. When he took over the management of the Tigers in 1921, I was puttering around .300 as a hitter. He showed me how to stand with my weight equally distributed, my feet planted flatly. That year I hit .390 and beat Cobb out of the championship. Late in the season when we were fighting for the lead he told me to go ahead and win it. Said the novelty had worn off for him.

"Joe DiMaggio will tell you that he got his batting stance from Ty Cobb, who had him in hand on the Coast before he joined the Yankees. Cobb taught Al Simmons and Mickey Cochrane how to hit when he went to the A's. Both of 'em will corroborate that.

"The best Ty Cobb I ever saw was the day in 1920 when we moved into the Polo Grounds for a series with the Yankees. Ray Chapman had just been killed by Carl Mays, and some newspapers had quoted Cobb as saying, 'Mays ought to be run out of the league.' Cobb denied he said it, but his denials were never printed.

The 55,000 Stayed to Cheer Cobb

"That day when he walked into the Polo Grounds, 55,000 fans booed him in the greatest mass booing I've ever heard. Cobb walked directly to the press box where the baseball writers were. 'You guys put these fans on me for something I didn't say,' said Ty. 'It was a dirty trick. Now I'll show that this bat I'm carrying is more powerful than your typewriters.' And it was, because after Cobb had finished hitting a home run, two doubles and a pair of singles in five times at bat, the 55,000 were cheering him.

"There was that day we were training down in Gulfport, Miss. We had with us Del Gainor, who was a first baseman until Jack Coombs broke his wrist with a pitch. Gainor was a college athlete from West Virginia. He had been some kind of a broad-jump champion and he was outjumping everybody on the club. He out-jumped Cobb, but by only a foot. Cobb jumped the only way he knew how, without training, and of course was beaten.

"Two weeks later Ty challenged Gainor to another jumping match. This time he beat Gainor. Why? Because for two weeks Ty had been taking secret broad jump lessons from a track coach. He was the kind of a guy who just wouldn't finish second."

Nats Lose Again, 6-3, To Detroit

Locals' Three Errors Make Ball Game Gift to Tiger Team; Newsom Is Winner

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Detroit, June 11.—The Nats stretched their losing streak to five straight games today with a ludicrous, error-filled performance against the Detroit Tigers. The Tigers won the game, 6 to 3, with almost complete if not hearty cooperation of the Nats.

Three Washington errors that reached the box score, and a couple that were generously unrecorded made the ball game a gift affair for the Tigers. For young Joe Haynes, it was a tragic defeat, because he was holding the Tigers to seven hits while the Nats were lambasting Buck Newsom for ten.

Four of the Tigers' six runs were tainted affairs. Buddy Lewis made two wild throws to bases and muffed a ball, and George Case and Taft Wright pursued a tame fly ball in the fifth inning like violently opposed schools of thought with the result that they collided and Case dropped the ball, paving the way for two Detroit runs.

The game reached the comic stage when the Tigers scored their seventh-inning run. With two out and McCosky on first, Wright waited for Fox's fly to short rightfield to descend, but he hit the ground before the ball did. Somehow, he lost his footing on the wet turf and the ball dropped for a cheap two-bagger.

Homer Nullified

Cecil Travis hit a homer and a double for the Nats but nullified these heroics by trying to take third on his double for no reason at all, and getting caught. In the ninth the Nats had two men on with one out, but Bobby Estalella poped up and Buddy Lewis grounded out.

The Nats closed their ill-starred Western tour with only four victories to show for 13 games.

Cecil Travis' third homer of the season—a line drive blast into the right center bleachers, established the Nats in a 1-0 lead in the second

Phils Beat St. Louis, 5-4, in 11th, Drop 2d on Three Hits

By International News Service.

Philadelphia, June 11.—The Phillies nearly won another double-header from the St. Louis Cardinals today, but with two out and the bases empty in the ninth inning of the second game, the Cards pushed over four runs to split the twin bill. The score was 4 to 1, with the Phillies winning the opener, 5 to 4, in 11 innings.

Lefty Al Hollingsworth went into the last inning of the second game leading, 1 to 0, thanks to Morrie Arnovich's fourth homer of the season in the seventh inning. After two out Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize singled and Mickey Owen walked. Enos Slaughter singled through Merrill May's legs to tie the score, then Don Padgett tripled for the winning runs.

Arnovich's single with the bases full and two out in the eleventh won the first game for the Phils

Cincinnati Scores 2 In 10th in Opener, Loses 2d in 11th

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 11.—The largest crowd of the season to crowd into Ebbets Field—35,893 fans—today watched the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Cincinnati Reds split two thrillers, the Reds winning the first game in the tenth inning, 3 to 1, and the Dodgers taking the nightcap, 9 to 8, in the eleventh.

Brooklyn ninth-inning rallies twice pushed the teams into overtime. Babe Phelps whacked a base-clearing double in the ninth of the second game to bring about a deadlock.

The Reds got a run off Whit Wyatt in the eleventh, but Brooklyn came back with two. Camilli opened with a double off Johnny Vander Meer. Koy singled to score Camilli but was out trying for second. Hudson walked, Phelps doubled again and pinch-hitter Hayworth walked, filling the bases. Batting for Wyatt, Manager Durocher fanned.

Hudson was trapped off third on the last strike and got home safely when Werber tossed wide and low to Lombardi on the rundown.

Two Major Chains Will Broadcast Game's Birthday

New York, June 11 (AP).—Two major networks plan to broadcast portions of baseball's 100th anniversary celebration at Cooperstown tomorrow.

The National Broadcasting Co. will cover the dedicatory services from 12:15 to 12:45 p. m. (E. S. T.), and the Columbia system will carry an hour's description of the event from 3 to 4 p. m. (E. D. T.) unless a description of the playoff of the national open golf championship interferes."

N. B. C. will broadcast over its blue network and the Columbia program will go over the full network.

Bees Split With Cubs; Dean Routed

Boston Chases Dizzy In Nightcap, but Lost, 5-3, After Taking Opener, 4-3

By International News Service.

National League Field, Boston, June 11.—The Boston Bees and the Chicago Cubs split a double-header this afternoon, the Cubs taking the abbreviated nightcap, 5 to 3, after the Bees had taken the opener, 4 to 3, before 25,000.

Dizzy Dean, who started the second game for the Cubs, was batted from the box in the second inning when the Bees scored there runs on three hits and three bases on balls. Jack Russell relieved Dean and was credited with the win.

The Bees threatened to take the lead in the seventh inning when they had two men on base and two runs across the plate. The score was reversed to the sixth inning due to the Sunday law.

Nats Get Prichard From Charlotte

The Washington club yesterday called in First Baseman Bob Prichard from their Charlotte farm in the Piedmont League. He will join the Nats here and will break into the lineup on Wednesday when the Nats open a long home stand.

Prichard, a 6-foot-1 inch 180-pounder, is recommended as a clever fielder. His batting average at Charlotte has been hovering about .370.

Hitchcock And Phipps Pace Victory

America's Twelfth Straight Triumph; Superiority of U. S. Horses Also Help

By Orlo Robertson,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Westbury, N. Y., June 11.—A great display of teamwork carried the United States hard-riding polo quartet to its second straight victory over Great Britain and retention of the coveted international trophy on Meadowbrook's International Field today.

While Tommy Hitchcock and Mike Phipps led the scoring, this was primarily a team triumph as the Americans pulled away in the last three chukkers to win, 9 to 4. For five periods the British stayed within striking distance, trailing by only one goal, 4-3, as they came out for the sixth chukker before the crowd of 21,000.

Then the superiority of the American horses told. Phipps broke away to score twice in the sixth, once on a pass from Hitchcock, and Tommy, "Mr. Polo" himself, registered three times in the seventh to put the Americans so far in front that Eric Tyrrell-Martin's 60-yard goal meant little in the final period.

Twelfth Straight Victory

The victory not only kept the $200 Westchester cup in America but marked the twelfth straight triumph scored by the defenders since they regained the cup in 1921. A third game will be played next Sunday but it will be merely an exhibition.

Hitchcock, a ball of fire all afternoon, led the American's attack with four goals. Phipps counted for three more while Stewart Iglehart and Winston Guest registered once each. Iglehart, star of the first game, and Guest teamed perfectly in checking the British attack, time and again breaking up the invaders' offensive to set the ball in play for either Hitchcock or Phipps, up front.

The brilliant playing of Gerald Balding, camtain of the Britons, held the Americans in check during the first half but he, like his teammates, Bob Skene, Aidan Roark and Tyr-

Dime Novel Claims Baseball Is 200 Years Old

Beadle's Book, Now In Library of Congress, Tells of Early Game

By Al Hailey

There will be a lot of noise made in Cooperstown, N. J., today in celberation of the 100th birthday of an old lady Americans call baseball.

Baseball can safely be called an old lady because like most of them about that age it admits to being only 100 years young, while there is an abundance of suspicion that this great American pastime is quite a bit older—a hundred years or so, in fact.

If you really want to call this old lady's hand, you can take a look around the rare book section of the Library of Congress, where there is plenty of indication that baseball has been played in England and America for almost 200 years.

If you want to make old lady baseball squirm uncomfortably on this, her 100th birthday celebration date, you might take a look at the

By the United Press

Mossman dropped, and was unconscious for nearly an hour. Wood, after tying Bob Nelson in the playoff of the U. S. Open, hurried to the hospital to visit his victim.

"Gosh, I'm sorry I hit you," Wood said as he leaned over the head of the bandaged spectator.

"Craig, ever since I saw you play for the first time, I knew you should open the face of your driver more. The way you hit that shot, you'll hook every time. When you play Nelson tomorrow open the face of that club."

Johnsen Wins Singles, Shares Doubles Title With Lynch

18-Year-Old G. W. Star Astounds Fans With Brilliant Play In City Tournament

By Jack Munhall.

Soft-spoken, 18-year-old David Johnsen, the most gifted member of a well-known local tennis family, yesterday became the youngest player ever to concurrently hold both titles of the annual City of Washington tournament when he blasted Lieut. Farrin to a straight set defeat in the singles and joined Hugh Lynch to beat Farrin and Lieut. Bill Howard in doubles.

Before a large and sweltering crowd at Edgemore Club the bronzed George Washington University freshman inscribed his name deeply into the niche reserved for the District's tennis greats with an exhibition that astounded veteran net followers.

Near-Perfect Tennis

Playing near-perfect tennis to overpower Farrin, 6—4, 6—1, 6—4, Johnsen succeeded Lynch as singles champion, and he and Lynch, by defeating Farrin and Howard in the fifth and deciding set of the doubles match, which was resumed from Saturday, displaced Dooly Mitchell and Ralph McElvenny as titleholders.

For Farrin, the personable and popular young naval officer, his double defeat was bitter to swallow, for it marked the second year in succession that he has lost both singles and doubles finals in this tournament. Tom Mangan, the veteran local player and tennis promoter, said when awarding prizes to the finalists after the last match, "Jim, you are the champion runner-up."

Farrin, however, was far from disgraced in his losing singles effort against the hard-hitting, incredibly calm Johnsen, for last year's junior champion was a devastating machine against which few players in this vicinity could have been successful. Whether driving, or chopping, or smashing or volleying, Johnsen was a great competitor and a great champion yesterday.

Old Tricks Fail

Farrin, a top-notcher before and since he graduated from the Naval Academy in 1927, tried every trick and lore he has gained in many years of campaigning, yet he could not even slow up this downy-cheeked kid who was winning the second most important District title in his second year in the senior ranks.

In the first set, which was close until Johnsen turned on the heat in the ninth and tenth games, Farrin tried to match baseline drives with his hard-driving opponent, but soon found he didn't have near enough power nor the accuracy of shot execution that enabled Johnsen to hit the corners with discouraging regularity. Later Farrin began to take the net in an effort to put Johnsen on the defensive and break up his smooth pace, but here again the lieutenant came off second best. For he was passed time and again at the net, or left flat-footed at the net by lobs of low trajectory.

As despairing as it must have been to see his best returns put away by Johnsen who scored 14 placements in the first set, 9 in the second, and the amazing total of 20 in the third, Farrin never ceased to fight back and do his best to make it an interesting match. But at the end nobody knew better than Farrin that he was badly outclassed and by the youngster whom he beat, 6—4, 8—6, in the semifinal round of the 1938 tournament.

Gallant Effort

Just before taking the court against Johnsen, Farrin had completed his semifinal match with Alphonso Smith by winning the third and deciding set, 6—3, after leading 5—0. Smith made a gallant attempt to comeback as Farrin eased up a little behind his commanding lead but the task was too difficult especially after Farrin warmed up to his work again.

The fifth set of doubles was as much of a rout for Farrin and Howard as the singles had been for Farrin. And again it was the clean-cut young Johnsen that proved the telling factor. His overheads and volleying completely broke down the lieutenants' defensive lobbing and led them to one of their most one-sided setbacks. The score of 6—3 hardly indicates the winners' superiority, for they built up a 5-1 advantage with remarkable ease before Howard and Farrin rallied to make the result more respectable.

The victory of Lynch and Johnsen climaxed a courageous uphill battle which was started Saturday when the teams divided four sets, Lynch and Johnsen winning the first, 6—4, and the fourth, 6—3, after Howard and Farrin took the second, 6—1, and the third, 7—5. In the fifth set Lynch and Johnsen trailed 4—0 and twice were within 1 point of elimination before they deadlocked the match at 5—5 as darkness forced postponement.

Singles

Final—Hugh Lynch and Davie Johnsen defeated Jim Farrin, 6—4, 6—1, 6—4.

Final—Hugh Lynch and Davie Johnsen defeated Lieuts. Bill Howard and Jimmy Farrin, 6—4, 1—6, 7—5, 6—3, 6—3.

Giants Beat Pirates Twice, 7-3 and 5-4

By International News Service.

New York, June 11.—The Giants today set back the Pittsburgh Pirates in a double-header, taking the first game, 7 to 3, and stopping the invaders in the nightcap, 5 to 4.

Cliff Melton, second of three New York pitchers, was credited with a victory in the second game when Alex Kampouris walloped a homer for the Giants in the eighth inning. Mel Ott homered for the Giants, too. It was Mel's tenth of the season.

Swift and Klinger hurled the nightcap for the Pirates, the latter being tagged with the defeat.

Gumbert scattered eight hits in the opener to stop the Buccaneers. The Giants scored five in the second and two in the eighth.

Yanks Trim Browns In Twin Bill, 8-5, 5-1

By International News Service.

St. Louis, June 11.—The New York Yankees captured both ends of a double-header with the St. Louis Browns here this afternoon, winning the first game, 8-5, and then copping the nightcap, 5-1.

Charley Ruffing garnered his ninth victory of the year in the opener while Bump Hadley won his sixth straight in the second, setting the Browns back with seven hits.

A walk and singles by George McQuinn and Harlond Clift in the first inning spoiled a shut-out for Hadley.

Howard Mills was the Yanks' victim in the nightcap with Tommy Henrich driving in a pair of runs with a single and a double. Joe Gordon and Buddy Rosar executed a double steal in the fourth inning to give the Yanks a run.

The Browns have now lost six straight games and have also dropped 17 of their last 19 games.

Motorcycle Race Captured By Don Smith

The spring racing season of the National Capital Motorcycle Club was brought to a spectacular and satisfying conclusion for about 3,500 sunburned spectators and 40 oily riders yesterday on the course outside Glenmont, Md., when Don Smith, fire-eating racer for the Indian people, took down top money and the handsome Tourist Trophy.

Smith's victory, his first major one since taking up racing three years ago, was achieved over 15 gruelling laps around the two-fifths-of-a-mile dirt track on the McIntyre Farm. He was off like a shot on his two-cylinder job, but was forced to take second on the all-important first turn to Bob McKeever, Maryland U. student. For four laps the pair raced wheel to wheel, until a disastrous motor trouble overtook McKeever on the straightaway, and the race was in the bag for Smith.

A hot race for second place developed bewteen Forrester Wilkerson, the eventual runnerup, and Dowd Rozzell on the twelfth and thirteenth laps, but the latter dropped back and finished out of the money.

The bad luck that hit McKeever in the finals brought to a tame end a family battle that started in the fifth and final set. Bill McKeever, Bob's younger brother who attends Montgomery Blair High, had raced his elder brother to a close finish after the pair had run one-two all the way.

Haynes Outpitches Newsom but Is Beaten By Chain of Errors

inning, but not for long. Hank Greenberg opened the Tigers' second with a two-base blow into left field and crossed the plate on a pair of infield outs.

With the help of the Tigers the Nats came up with a pair of runs in the fourth inning. Buck Newsom walked Wright and Travis with one out, and when Myer lined out to Cullenbine, Wright was trapped between bases only to avoid being put out because Cullenbine threw wild. On the error, Wright raced to third and Travis to second, and then West came along with a single that scored 'em both.

Case Muffs, Too

Rain halted the game for a half hour at the end of three and a half innings, and when play was resumed the Tigers tied the score, much to their surprise, in the fifth inning. Higgins singled to open the inning and then the Tigers were surprised to see George Case muff Cullenbine's fly after colliding with Taft Wright. Higgins reached third and Cullenbine second on the error.

Haynes fanned Croucher for what appeared to be an important out, but Tebbetts smashed a single to center to drive the two runs home. There was more trouble for Haynes when Lewis threw wild to Myer after Travis took Newsom's grounder and trapped Tebbetts between second and third, Tebbetts reaching second safely. Haynes finally got out of the inning by picking Tebbetts off second.

Lead Was Gift

The Tigers went into a 4-3 lead on a gift run in the sixth. Gehringer singled, and went to second when Lewis' wild throw on Higgins' grounder pulled West off the bag in a play that should have been the third out. Cullenbine followed with a single that scored Gehringer.

Totally unexpected also was the run the Tigers scored in the seventh after McCosky walked with two out. They got it because Taft Wright, waiting for Fox's short fly in rightfield, beat the ball to the ground with his tumble and allowed McCosky to score.

If Lewis had come up cleanly with Groucher's grounder in the eighth, the Tigers wouldn't have had their sixth run.

All of this time, the Nats were achieving nothing against Newsom in the last five innings.

Bucs Sell Jensen To N. Y. Giants

New York, June 11 (AP).—The New York Giants announced tonight they had purchased Outfielder Forrest Jensen from the Pittsburgh Pirates with the intention of shunting him to their Jersey City farm in the International League.

Prior to this year Jensen played six full seasons with the Pirates, two as a regular, and also played parts of two other seasons for Pittsburgh. His batting average for these eight years in the majors was .285 although in 1935 he hit .324.

Riggs and Cooke Take Net Match In Paris Tourney

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 11.—Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., downed the Yugoslav-Erie team of Josip Pallada and G. Lyttleton Rovers after a bitter battle in the French hard court tennis championships today. Given little chance against the Americans, Pallada and Rogers played brilliantly to prolong the match, losing 7—5, 7—5, 2—6, 6—4.

Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Boston, and Cooke had an easier time in their mixed doubles match, defeating Mrs. J. P. Claude, of France, and Emil Gabrory, of Hungary, 6—4, 7—5.

After defeating Jacqueline Horner, of France, 6—0, 6—3, Gracyn Wheeler, aof Santa Monica, Calif., was eliminated in the next round when Mary Hardwick, of England, beat her by the same score.

A second American doubles team had a hard fight when Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, and Charles Harris, of Palm Beach, Fla., conquered Christian Boussus and Antoine Gentien, veteran French pair, 6—3, 6—3, 4—6, 11—9.

Indians Win Two From A's, 4-3 and 3-2

By International News Service.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 11.—The Cleveland Indians won a double victory over the Philadelphia Athletics before 12,000 here today to move into third place in the American League. The first game was 4 to 3, and the nightcap, 4 to 2. It was the fifth straight for the Tribe. Willis Hudlin won his sixth of the season in the first game when his teammates rallied for two runs in the eighth and one off Pippen in the ninth.

Al Milnar out-pitched George Caster in the nightcap to gain his fourth victory, allowing seven hits, one a homer by Bob Johnson, who also hit one in the first game.

Joe Kuhel Homers With Man on Base To Capture Opener

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 11.—The Boston Red Sox slapped a 4-to-3 defeat on the White Sox today in the second game of a double-header after Chicago had taken the opener, 7-5, on Joe Kuhel's two-run circuit smash in the ninth inning.

After seeing his three-run homer wasted in the first game, Rookie Jim Tabor led the Boston team to victory in the nightcap with two triples, driving in two runs and scoring one himself.

The venerable Ted Lyons got credit for the first game, the defeat going to his veteran foe, Lefty Grove, it was Lyons' sixth straight decision of the season. Grove, working behind a two-run lead, allowed four singles and two bases on balls for four runs in the fourth. But Tabor's homer in the sixth put him ahead again, 5 to 4. The White Sox pushed across a single run in the eighth on three hits and then won out on Kuhel's long blow after Mike Tresh had lived on Joe Cronin's error.

Dr. Keilty Wins Smith Trophy Play

C. E. Hamill Leads Saito Memorial Play at Kenwood; Willmett Wins Lampson Trophy; Woodmont Beats Woodholme; Popham Wins

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Page Hufty regained his Chevy Chase Club championship and the Horstman Memorial Trophy yesterday when defending titleholder, Ralph Quinter, jr., needing only a 4 over par finish on the last five holes, ran into a pair of sevens and tied John Brawner for second place.

Quinter apparently read too much about Sam Snead's finish in the National Open. He, too, had the title within his grasp but got mixed up in the wrong fairway on the fourteenth and trap trouble on the seventeenth to play the last five holes in seven over par and miss a chance to retain his title.

Hufty had completed his four medal play rounds last Friday, and with rounds of 74-77-79-72 was leading with a 304 total. Quinter was 78-71-75 for three rounds and needed a 77 to win, or 78 to tie.

He was out in 39, five over par, but started back with a birdie on the tenth, was over with a five on 11 but parred 12 and 13 to move into a good position to clinch the title. He had trouble on 14, however, driving in the seventeenth fairway, playing his second shot on the seventeenth tee, taking three more to get on the green and two putts for a seven.

He missed par on the fifteenth but dropped a par four on 16 before he trapped his second shot on 17, stayed in the trap in three, went over the green in four, failed to get on in five and finally was down in seven. He finished with a par for the 80.

Meanwhile Brawner, his playing partner, who had 78—79—74 for three rounds, needed 71 to tie. He was out in 37 and went over par on 10 and 17 on the back nine for a 36, 73, and a 304 total that deadlocked Quinter. Reeve Lewis was fourth with 311.

KENWOOD

C. E. Hamill took a three-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the Saito Memorial Play at Kenwood, honoring the late Japanese Ambassador, one of the club's most ardent golfers.

Hamill scored 81—83 for a 164 gross total and subtracted a 36-hole handicap of 32 for a net 132 total. C. A. Dils was second with 95—90, 185—50, 135, while four tied for third. T. J. Mitchell, 194—56, 139; A. D. Kane, 178—40, 138; R. K. Richtmyer, 170—32, 138, and Lamar Campbell, 154—16, 138.

The tournament will be concluded with 36 holes next week-end.

CONGRESSIONAL

Dr. Robert A. Keilty, Middle Atlantic and Maryland State Golf Association official, is the new R. T. Smith Trophy champion at Congressional. The cup was donated by the former club president.

Dr. Keilty played the par 37 first nine in 38 and came back in 42 for an 80, minus a 14 handicap for a low net of 66. W. H. Wenzel had low gross with 77.

Mrs. R. L. Rose and P. J. Winkler won low gross in the mixed scotch foursome event, with 81, while net winners were Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Simmons, 85—12, 73, and Dr. and Mrs. Arnold McNitt, 94—20, 74.

MANOR

Harry Pitt added a 77 yesterday to an opening 69 for a 146 total and the top post on the club ladder at Manor. J. C. Putman gained the second rung in the annual qualifications with 73-75, 148, Herb Lacey, 78 and the lowest round of the second week's play, 71, for 149, and Dick Meyer, 74-76, 150.

George Messing put on a sub-par five hole and dropping another long putt for an eagle on the par five fifteenth hole and dropping another long putt for a deuce on the seventeenth, in a friendly round.

WOODMONT

Woodmont Club golfers scored over Woodholme's representatives, 19½ to 13½ in the first half of a home and home series with the Baltimoreans. Pro Gene Larkin and Milton Harris dropped three points to Carroll McMasters and Al London but the local was stronger throughout, scoring heavily in the latter brackets.

Leopold Freudberg and Al Steinem are completing arrangements for Woodmont's visit to Richmond next Saturday and Sunday, where the Lakeside golf and tennis players will be met in the renewal of long rivalry.

Woodmond, 19½; Woodholme, 13½

Gus Ring and Fulton Brylawski, Woodmont, scored 2 points to 1 for Joe Kolodney and Sam Cohen, Woodholme; E. Melniker and Charles Schulman, Woodmont, scored 1 point to 2 for M. Lewis and Al Goldberg; Ralph Goldsmith and Gilbert Hahn, Woodmont, scored 2 points to 1 for Ray Cohen and Joe Hoffberger; William Ilch and M. Simon, Woodmont, scored 2½ points to ½ for Jack Kartman and Charles Gaider; Gene Larkin and Milton Harris, Woodmont, won 0 points to 3 for Carroll McMasters and Al London; Howard Nordlinger and Al Schneider, Woodmont, scored 2½ points to ½ for John Leidy and Jerry Griffin.

Willard Goldheim and Julius Winkelman, Woodmont, scored ½ point to 2½ for Joe Wilner and M. Fleet; Victor Zeve and Lou Harris scored 0 points to 3 for Milton Edelson and Milton Caplan; Bob Phillipson and Ed Worsman, Woodmont, scored 3 points to 0 for B. Savage and Ned Halpert; Ed Edlowitz and Jerry Brode, Woodmont, scored 3 points to 0 for H. Lamb and H. Silesky; Ned Bord and Ed Dreyfuss, Woodmont, scored 3 points to 0 for Dr. L. Lavine and M. Rosew.

ARGYLE

A. E. "Tony" Willmett, who has been knocking at the door of Argyle's various club tourneys for years, came through with a fine 69, three under par, and deducted a five handicap for a net 64 and a year's possession of the Lawrence V. Lamson Trophy.

Willmett was out in 34, two under par, and back in 35. C. J. Babcock was second with 82-17, 65.

WASHINGTON

G. B. Heron and J. R. Murphy tied in the nine selective holes tournament at Washington Golf and Country Club, the former with a 36 total and minus half handicap 5 for a net 31, and Murphy with 41—10, 31. R. L. Nagle was second, with 40 for his nine best holes and an eight handicap for 32.

INDIAN SPRING

B. Manfield won the Points tourney at Indian Spring, with 21 for the round. One point was awarded for a par, two for a birdie, three for an eagle, and one deducted for a bogey. Handicaps were used in the scoring.

Manfield scored 75-10, 65 while H. F. Rhodes was second, 82-17, 67, for 20 points, and Arthur Myers, jr., 86-18, 68, tied with 20 points.

ARMY AND NAVY

Mrs. J. H. Chadwick and Commander J. S. Phillips won the mixed Scotch foursome at Army and Navy, with 82-12, 70, while Mrs. J. S. Phillips and G. M. Thompson were tied for second, 87-16, 71, with Mrs. Schaafer and Frank Dunham, jr., 85-14, 71. Mrs. Haugen and D. H. Pratt had 92-19, 73.

Commander W. S. Popham defeated J. P. Gregg, 1 up, in the spring match play handicap finals.

BEAVER DAM

Joe Balestri, R. Mills and A. G. Bodnar tied for first in the sweepstakes tourney at Beaver Dam, with net 70's, Balestti scoring 73, Mills 78 and Bodnar 80. R. K. Thompson was in the prize list with 77-6, 71.

E. Bunting, 88—18—70; D. Usilton, 90—16—74; R. Smith, 92—18—74, and G. P. Luce, 95—19—76, were second flight winners, while in the third flight C. L. Hill, 79—9—70; R. E. Green, 83—13—70; E. G. Wilbein, 89—19—70, and J. A. Woodside, 84—13—71, were winners. D. O. Jorg, 89—19—70, and D. P. Harrington, 90—20—70, were third flight winners.

Mrs. Albert Haas won the flag tourney, finishing on the ninteenth hole, while Mrs. W. L. O'Brien, in the eighteenth cup, Mrs. Peter Davie, two feet away, and Mrs. E. H. Bean, six feet from the cup, were other winners.

CAPITAL

Four tied with net 72's in the handicap play at Capital, Bill Pendergast, 72, playing from scratch, R. F. Hilton, 88—16—72; E. G. Calahan, 88—16—72, and B. H. Denhol, 86—14—72. Ken Spencer won gross honors with 72.

Ladies prizes went to T. P. Hayden, and F. J. Hanrahan, with 58's.

H. Shuff and J. Curtin defeated S. Roth and Dr. L. Salan, 1 up; E. J. Crill and George Molloy defeated George Borsari and T. G. Herbert, 1 up, 20 holes; W. C. Weizel and F. F. Rinaca defeated N. O. Lynchburg Beats 7-Up Nine, 9 to 8

Lynchburg, Va., June 11.—The 7-Up A. C. of Washington, was defeated today, 9 to 8, by the local team. Lanny Birch was the losing pitcher although he had a home run and a single in three tries. 7-Up outhit the home boys 13 to 12 but failed when hits meant runs. McIntire relieved in the seventh inning after pitching yesterday's game.

Middle Atlantic Entries to Close; Pro-Am. Today

Tommy Armour and his staff of golf pros, including Jimmy Demaret, Tony and Charles Penna, will play in the pro-amateur tournament at East Potomac today, with a majority of the Middle Atlantic pros also expected for the 18-hole affair. The host club is adding $50 to the pro sweepstakes purse.

The pros will play with one amateur partner, from scratch, with a $7.50 per team entrance fee.

Entries for the Middle Atlantic at Chevy Chase, starting Wednesday, close this afternoon at the club with W. R. McCallum. The qualifying round in the thirty-fifth annual event is set for Wednesday, with match play Thursday and Friday. Otto Greiner is defending champion.

Entries for tomorrow's pro-amateur partner entered in the Middle Atlantic event, close today with Bob Barnett in the Chevy Chase golf shop at 3 p. m. No post entries.

The Middle Atlantic amateur is expected to draw the finest field of the year, including a majority of the high school and college aces of this sector, in addition to the "veterans." The field is expected to hit the 100 mark.

Meanwhile notices have been received on the closing date for entries to the Maryland State amateur, June 23 to 25 at Rolling Road, with entries closing June 21. The District Junior is set for June 28-30 at Army and Navy, with entries closing June 24 with Dr. W. C. Barr.

P. G. A. qualifying rounds are set for Thursday, June 22, at Indian Spring, with three places open to the Middle Atlantic pros.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 11.—It's not a very nice feeling to watch a man lose the National Open. There's something different about it; something poignant. You get a depressing sense of personal loss, and you go away muttering "Cheest, I wonder how that poor guy feels?"

In any other sport it's different. When the champ is knocked cold in boxing your possible sorrow is tempered by your excitement over the new fellow. When Hank Greenberg looked like he was going to break Ruth's record, everybody was for him and no one felt particularly bad about the Babe. If Wooderson beats our Cunningham at Princeton on Saturday, that'll be all right. Everybody'll say, "Hooray for the new guy."

CONSIDINE

It isn't like that in golf. Maybe the reason is that it is about the only sport that has no physical, or semi-physical, contact. A man plays against a sinister wraith named Par. A man is prey to weird obstacles over which he has no control. A man, harassed by the hot scoring of another man, can't cool him off. He's separated from the hot guy by perhaps 3,000 yards of pasture. There's nothing he can do about it, except worry.

Snead Led All the Way—But——

We saw Sam Snead lose the Open last Saturday. The Open is a 72-hole event. Sam lead at the end of the 18th. He led at the end of the 36th. And at the end of the 70th hole he led again. Up to that point he had taken 273 whacks at the treacherous ball. The next hole was a comparatively simple par-4 and the following one—the last hole—was a par-5, and not a tough one for a buster like Sam. All Sam had to do was shoot the 17th in four knocks and the 18th in five. That would have given him 282 biffs for the full 72 holes; would have given him the title, and on him would have descended a blizzard of prizes, bonuses, indorsements, radio contracts, syndicate rights, personal appearance plums and other emoluments amounting eventually to $50,000. And Sam doesn't like a dollar any more than he likes his mother and his right arm.

With a calm unconcern that made you say, "That fellow's either a great campaigner or he's too dumb to have emotions," Sam hit a beautiful 300-yard drive off the 17th tee. The crowd, maybe 10,000, let loose a lusty yell. The money jingled in his pocket, as he walked down the fairway. Ahead of him he could see the battalions of newsreel men, newspaper photographers, the press tent that was caroling his name around the world, and the modernistic lawn-mower on which sat Ted Husing, himself, ready to tell the radio world about it as only Mr. H. can.

So it was there, on the brink of a lot of money and immortal fame, that slamming Sammy, whose golf had brought him up to affluence from the plight of a barefoot hill-billy caddy, blew to high heaven. His approach to the 17th green was too hard and his pill rolled into the heavy grass at the back. He must have sensed something sinister about this, for when a kid seated near where his ball was buried held up a tattered old ball, with a smile, and said, "Here's yours, Sam," Sam gave nim a wintry stare.

And Everything Went Wrong

In a few minutes it was all over. His chip toward the cup was so feeble and inept that he angrily hit himself in the head with his club. His drive off the 18th tee went in the rough. He used the wrong club trying to get out, and wound up in a trap. He used the wrong club there, too, and moved the ball only three feet. Then he hit one savagely, and so cock-eyed that spectators to the left of him ran for their lives. He 3-putted the 18th green, his last miss being from about three feet. When he staggered off the green, his dough gone and with the excruciating knowledge that there was no way of keeping Nelson, Wood and Shute from beating him, Bobby Jones said, "He looks like a fellow who has just been hit by Joe Louis."

The unforgettable thing about it all was the silence of the crowd. There is something intolerably eerie about 10,000 silent people, standing shoulder to shoulder, mutely experiencing the pang of it all—because they were golfers and knew of the gastric pangs that tortured Snead. There were no relieving yells for the victor, for there was no victor. Only a loser—his face green and white, billious with frustration. Even Ralph Guldahl, who doesn't like him, felt sorry. "I don't think he'll ever win an Open, after blowing that chance," the two-time winner said. "If this don't make him punch-drunk, nothing ever will."

Navy Crew Arrives At Poughkeepsie To Start Drills

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 11 (AP).—Navy was the last of seven crews to arrive today for the intensive training that marks the last week before the intercollegiate regatta to be held here Saturday.

Navy arrived after Cornell's three crews checked in late this afternoon. The two Navy boats—the Varsity and Jayvee—will not get a taste of rough work until tomorrow.

All of the crews took the day off today, and California U.'s Golden Bears took advantage of the respite to pay a visit to the Military Academy at West Point.

California held a workout of all three crews over the racing distances yesterday with no times announced. The Jayvees got off to a racing start at the mile mark and led the procession home. The varsity time was unofficially caught at 18:45.

Apostoli Offered $10,000 to Meet Garcia for 'Title'

San Francisco, June 11 (AP).—Benny Ford, matchmaker for the newly organized Treasure Island Sporting Club, reported today he had offered Fred Apostoli $10,000 to meet Ceferino Garcia in a middleweight "title" fight at the Golden Gate International Exposition in July or August.

Apostoli is recognized as champion by the New York and California State Boxing Commissions.

John Thorpe's Jeeno IV Wins 'Baby' Regatta

Miniature Powerboat Averages 40.18 Miles In 3-Lap Feature

Washington's miniature powerboat enthusiasts, who turned out en masse yesterday to witness their first race of the season, saw John Thorpe's Jeeno IV cop all honors in the annual spring meet of the local miniature powerboat association. His speed for the three laps was 40.18 miles per hour.

Thorpe found little competition in the class B race, as only two other entrants finished the required three laps. They were Joe Scholl's Mrs. Frequently, which, with a speed of 35.16 miles per hour, captured second place, and Deward Greer's Geep, which showed with a 25-mile-an-hour speed.

In the class A competition, Tuck Fuqua was the only entrant whose boat finished the course, and at that his craft only attained a speed of 16.71 miles per hour. Class C also only saw one boat pass the finish mark and that was Robert Graham's, whose 18.7 was unchallenged.

Of the 16 entrants in all classes to compete the five above mentioned were all that lasted the three-lap course. The reason's attributed to the poor showing of all the boats were the stiff sou'wester that churned the Lincoln Memorial reflecting pool all afternoon and the fact that the owners have not yet become accustomed to the alterations they have made in their boats during the winter.

Skinner Wins Sail Honors

A Staff Correspondent.

Galesville, Md., June 11.—Tumbling seas running before a fresh westerly wind kicked up such a fuss on the blue waters of the West River here today that only eight gallant little sailboats of a starting fleet of 15 managed to plunge across the finish of a 6-mile race which opened the summer season of the West River Sailing Club.

The list of nonfinishers was headed by Dr. Albert E. Pagan, of Washington, whose 20-foot sloop, Kan Doo, two weeks ago won the Washington Post trophy in the Gunston Cove—Alexandria race. The Kan Doo, according to reports, was forced to withdraw along with Kenneth Smith's Strutaway when the two boats all but tangled shrouds in a collision resulting from a battle for right-of-way.

Judge Prentice E. Edrington, also of Washington and a former international star class champion, failed to finish aboard the trim Lady Avon when an unexpected gust damaged his rigging.

It was in one of these puffs that Carrol Smith's 20-foot Wings and Bob Hartge's 16-foot capsized in the middle of the course. The crews of the two craft had not been in the water a few seconds when the sleek Aloha, piloted by Lawrence Hartge, snapped a mast two feet above the deck in the fury. The newly fledged Falcon, a neat Albatross type sloop, with Dick Cox at the tiller, withdrew a few minutes later when her new hull sprang a leak under the terrific pounding.

Top honors for the day went to the recently launched Aeolus II, owned and helmed by Carlton Skinner, U. S. Maritime Commission official, of Washington. Skinner's craft was the only chine-bottomed 20-footer to finish. He slammed around the course, averaging nearly 10 miles an hour to turn in the fast time of 1 hour and 4 seconds flat.

Ray Willett Scores First Hole in One

Raymond Willett, assistant to Gene Larkin at Woodmont, scored his first hole in one yesterday on the eighth hole of the Bethesda course. Playing with Dr. Milton Harris and Ray Burgess, Willett's eight-iron shot hit on the green and trickled in the cup.

Nelson and Wood Tie in Playoff; Second 18 Holes Scheduled Today

It was a thoroughly dramatic finish to a match that had been tight as a drumhead all the way. It also was the third time in the history of the Open that one round had not sufficed to decide a play-off. Willie MacFarlane had to go two 18-hole stretches to beat Bobby Jones in 1925, and Billy Burke had to play two sets of 36 holes each to edge out George von Elm for the title in 1931.

Two holes before the end, Nelson the slim former Texan from Reading, Pa., took the lead for the third time and seemed to have Wood on the ropes. Uppermost in the minds of the spectators was their recollection that Wood had lost a playoff for the North-South title to the late Johnny Golden in 1931, had been beaten in another by Shute for the 1933 British Open championship, and with the 1935 Augusta Masters Tournament apparently his, had lost it to Gene Sarazen's famous double eagle.

For on the sixteenth, a 328-yarder that is an easy birdie hole with trouble looming only for the long hitter who tries to cut the corners too fine on the left, Nelson had pitched up 6 feet from the flag and sunk the putt. Wood, even with him up to there, was trapped deeply on his drive in front of the green to the left.

Cautious Tactics

Instead of playing for the pin, cut in the narrowest part of the carpet, and thus taking a chance of going over the green into another trap, Craig played it safe. He came out on to the front edge, then got down in two for his 4.

Came the seventeenth, and Wood's cautious tactics served him well. For this time his second was 18 feet away and he rammed home the putt, while Nelson, 35 feet out, took three putts to get down for a 5, missing an 8-footer coming back. That put the advantage back into Wood's hands, but he didn't hold it long.

Nelson lost what turned out to be a good chance for victory on the thirteenth, a difficult par 3 with a heavily trapped green. He was safely on, within 20 feet of the cup. Wood was in a sand pit, a good 30 feet from the flag. But Craig exploded beautifully, 2 yards from the cup, ran down the putt, and Nelson, hardly taking time to study the line, poked his first putt a foot beyond the can and then, still acting as if he were too impatient to study it. Missed the little one.

Shute Falls Behind

Shute, after the third hole, never was in it. He fell one stroke behind there with a bogey 4, was four shots off the pace with a 37 to the others' 1 under par 33 at the turn, and finally finished with a 76. Last of the three to come in at 284 for the triple deadlock at the end of the regulation 72 holes yesterday, Denny, who had muffed a chance to take the title on the seventeenth and eighteenth, then finished 5—7, three over par, today for a big 76.

Shute thus takes down third money of $700. Wood and Nelson, who will charge much more for an 18-hole exhibition when either one of them wins the title, will play for $200 tomorrow—the difference between first prize of $1,000 and second of $800.

Klein Upset In Capitol City League

Perlo and Thrift Pace J. C. Flood to Startling Victory With Steals; Dick McHale Homers

The deadlock which has existed between Klein Tavern and D. G. S. in Section A of the Capitol City Baseball League since the start of the season was rudely shattered yesterday on the South Ellipse where the Tavernmen ran into a dark-horse and lost a 5-4 ball game. The winners, in the biggest upset the league has seen were the improving diamonders of J. C. Flood, headed by two Washington Post All-High stars, Hymie Perlo and Johnny Thrift.

With its defeat Klein dropped back to second place, only slightly ahead of the Flooders who won the game. D. G. S. remained at the top when it trampled the last-place Retail Clerks under a 21-to-1 count.

Perlo and Thrift were almost single-handedly responsible for Flood's triumph. They each had three hits in four times, but their brightest play came in the fifth inning when their team was floundering around in a 3-3 tie. Each singled and was advanced around the bases by teammates, and then each in turn stole home to give the Flooders a margin of 5-3. The single run turned in by Klein in the seventh was the last score of the game.

Bill Liggett, seeking his sixth straight win for Klein, was pounded for 10 safeties, while the best his mates could collect off Jack Burroughs and Jack Reddinger was seven. Burroughs struck out six before he was relieved after walking a man in the ninth. Outfielder McHale hit a homer for Flood in the third, and Liggett had the only other extra base knock of the day, a double.

Cards Win, 9 to 2

Errorless baseball on the part of the District Cardinals, plus a total of 11 hits, won a 9 to 2 Fraternal Softball League decision over B'nai B'rith yesterday on the Sixteenth street playground. Sammy Furash allowed but seven hits against the winners, only one man getting past first base after the first inning. J. Cohen, and Genderson had homers.

Man of the Month

(Following each game by The Washington Club, Walter Johnson distributes among the Nats ten points of merit, based on their performances for the day. At the end of each month, the Washington player boasting the greatest number of points is designated as the Nats' "Man of the Month" and receives a trophy from The Washington Post.)

By Walter Johnson.

(WJSV-General Mills Broadcaster.)

Joe Haynes and Cecil Travis were the Nats' outstanding performers at Detroit yesterday, and to them goes the bulk of the points awarded in the Man of the Month contest on the basis of that game.

To Haynes, five points because in holding the Tigers to seven hits, he outpitched Buck Newsom, and because four of the Tigers six runs were undeserved.

To Travis, three points, because he hit a homer and a double and played errorless ball in the field.

Steel Output Continues Rise To 53.5 Per Ct.

Demand for Finished Products Increases Rate 1½ Points

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, June 11.—The magazine Steel reports that an increase in the demand for finished steel lifted the ingot operations rate last week 1½ points to 53½ per cent, marking an 8-point rise in three weeks.

"But subsequent gains this month are likely to be small," says Steel's weekly review. "Some districts plan unchanged schedules at least until after July 4."

Production gains last week included: Pittsburgh, 1 point to 43 per cent; Youngstown, 3 to 51; Wheeling, 3 to 73; Birmingham, 7 to 67; New England, 5 to 40; Cincinnati, 8 to 68, and St. Louis, 9½ to 47.

Districts in which the rate was unchanged were Cleveland at 53 per cent, eastern Pennsylvania at 37, Buffalo at 44, and Detroit at 57.

Lower Auto Demand

A decrease in production in the automotive industry will be reflected in steel operations "for a number of weeks," says Steel, observing that "until the model change-over period has been bridged, other steel consumers must provide the principal support to production."

"Shipments of structural shapes and concrete reinforcing bars show further gains and new business continues fairly heavy despite a falling off in awards last week," the review continues. The magazine adds:

"Finished steel prices still are subject to concessions in certain instances. In addition to almost habitual weakness in reinforcing bars, plate quotations are being shaded, and official levels on sheets are not yet firmly established. Because of previous coverage new business in flat-rolled products is scant, but shipments are the heaviest since March."

Fifth District Store Sales 16% Above Year Ago

Richmond, Va., June 11 (AP).—May department store sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve District exceeded May, 1938, sales by 16 per cent, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reports. Cumulative sales for the first five months of this year showed a gain of 3 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

All but three of the 57 reporting stores showed increases in May sales. Two of the three stores reporting decreases were in Charleston, S. C., where an outbreak of infantile paralysis in May seriously affected retail trade.

May percentage increases reported by cities were: Baltimore, Md., 15.1; Charleston, W. Va., 12.0; Huntington, W. Va., 21.0; Lynchburg, Va., 20.7; Norfolk, Va., 18.6; Richmond, Va., 12.9; Washington, D. C., 18.8, and Winston-Salem, N. C., 12.0. The May percentage decrease in Charleston, S. C., was 1.7.

Gen. Motors Head Sees 'No Drastic Decline'

New York, June 11 (AP).—Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the General Motors Corporation, said today that "there did not appear to be economic justification for any drastic decline" in business unless sentiment was influenced adversely by a new foreign crisis.

He informed stockholders in a message accompanying a dividend distribution of 75 cents a share that the judgment on the business outlook was a repetition of that expressed in April when he pointed out to shareholders that there had been a slowly sagging trend for several months in the business curve.

Automobile sales to consumers, he said, have failed to "show a full seasonal improvement" over earlier months of the year.

Shift in U.S. Foreign Trade

New York, June 11.—America's exports of finished goods have increased fourfold since 1853, while exports of crude materials have been at 71 per cent, a compilation by the New York Journal of Commerce shows. At the same time imports of finished goods dropped 64 per cent, and imports of crude materials increased 4½ times.

Fuel Cheaper Than Taxes

Babson Picks Best Fields For New Crop of Graduates

Air-Conditioning, Chemicals, Alloys And Plastics, Automatic Machinery Among the Most Promising Openings

By Roger W. Babson

This month the supply of workers in the United States and Canada will be swelled by a huge wave of over 2,000,000 school and college graduates. Getting these young people employed is a serious task. However, I believe that if parents analyze their children and attack this problem intelligently, it can be solved. Certainly, conditions are much better today than a year ago.

Six Groups

Opportunities for today's graduates may be divided into six groups: (1) Agricultural, (2) professional, (3) building, (4) manufacturing, (5) selling, (6) finance. I have never seen a young person who was not fitted for one of these groups. It is much more important to ascertain whether a boy is best adapted to selling or to teaching, than it is to ascertain whether the chemical industry or transportation offers the best opportunities. For which of these six divisions is a child, by inheritance, training and environment, best fitted? That is the problem which parents and teachers must answer.

Many readers have written me asking my advice as to the best fields for their newly graduated children to enter at this time. In reply, I say it is easy to select an industry, such as air-conditioning, as offering the best opportunity at the moment. On the other hand, if this is generally recognized, air-conditioning will become overcrowded. Contrariwise, if the general feeling is that the investment business no longer has good opportunities, this very fact may cause it to offer excellent opportunities for the few who enter it. Therefore, I will name 12 industries all of which look good to me. I will endeavor, moreover, to list these in the order of their importance.

ROGER W. BABSON

(1) Air-Conditioning—I especially have in mind air-conditioning new small houses and selling individual air-conditioning units. Hotels, offices, restaurants and stores in the South and Central West must adopt air-conditioning to survive.

(2) Chemicals—Most chemical companies are already prosperous, while the future offers untold possibilities. Were I 18 years of age, I should go to a college where I could major in chemical engineering.

(3) Alloys and Plastics—Great developments are taking place in the sale and use of alloys, while the plastic industry offers tremendous opportunities. Most household articles will be made from plastics within a few years.

(4) Automac Machinery—The mistaken attitude of labor leaders, plus the new wage and hour act, is forcing manufacturers to purchase more automatic machinery. Yet, probably not more than 20 per cent of the manufacturers are using as much automatic machinery as they profitably could.

(5) Merchandising—This includes stores, mail-order, advertising and other features of selling. Wherever goods are made or whoever makes them, they must be sold, irrespective of the value of the dollar or the character of our Government. Trained merchandisers should always be in demand.

(6) Electrical Equipment—All divisions of the heavy industries, except building, are dull at the present time, but these industries must come back before the employment problem is finally solved. Manufacturers of heavy electrical equipment should be the first to prosper when this "comeback" develops.

(7) Household Equipment—There are many other new forms of household equipment which should come into general use. Ninety per cent of our homes may become obsolete within a few years. Homes will be purchased in the future, not for their appearance, but for their interior equipment.

(8) Investment banking—With the large amount of money now piling up, the floodgates some time must break through. "Idle money ultimately burns a hole in one's pocket." After the stock exchanges are reorganized and the SEC regulations modified, the investment business will again be prosperous.

(9) Gasoline and tires—Whether one has an old car or a new car, he must buy gasoline and tires. These are both basic and repeat industries. They are always worthy of consideration.

(10) Automobiles—Although the automobile has come to stay, the market may temporarily be oversaturated. It is a sound and fundamental industry, but it may not now offer the opportunities which it did 20 years ago.

(11) Automobile accessories—The above criticism does not apply to auto accessories—that is, manufacturers specializing in parts and gadgets for automobiles. These have a broad base to work upon. Their manufacture does not require great capital.

(12) Real estate and building—I am very bearish on old houses; but someday there will be a building boom of small modern houses. The current revival may well be the beginning of the boom. Prefabricated houses interest me greatly. I also believe there will be a great demand for small farms, especially in the vicinity of college towns.

Another Suggestion

Instead of waiting until war comes and then have your children used for cannon fodder, is it not much better for them to make a little sacrifice now and train for home-defense work? I have in mind that they become experts on gas masks, antiaircraft guns, nursing, and other protective lines. Finally, let me say that it is far more important for children to develop character, health, desire for babies and for land, than to select any definite industry!

N. Y. Bank Stocks Hit Year's High In Past Week

New York, June 11.—After reaching a new high for the year on the closing day of the past week, New York City bank stocks eased off slightly, but closed up for the week, according to records compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster, specialists in bank and insurance stocks. The aggregate market value of 16 leading issues at the high mark on June 9 was $1,544,998,000. At the close, the aggregate value stood at $1,499,651,000, which compared with $1,465,740,000 at the close of the previous week, a net increase of $33,911,000, or 2.31 per cent.

The current average yield of the 16 issues of 4.31 per cent compares with a yield of 4.41 per cent on June 2. The current market value equals 1.07 times the known book value against 1.04 times a week ago. Based upon current figures the 16 issues are now quoted at an average of 17.4 times their known earnings, compared with 16.9 times on June 2.

Insurance Stocks

Insurance stocks in the New York City market also continued to register gains during the past week. The aggregate market value of 20 leading fire and casualty insurance issues on June 9 was $602,206,000, compared with $594,596,000 at the close of the previous week, an increase of $7,608,000, or 1.28 per cent.

Loss $3,016,614

New York, June 11 (AP).—New York Central Railroad today reported a net deficit for April of $3,016,614, after fixed charges, compared with a net deficit of $2,940,357 in April last year.

Lumber Shipments 68 Per Cent of 1929

The lumber industry during the holiday week ended June 3 stood at 65 per cent of the 1929 weekly average of production and 68 per cent of average 1929 shipments.

Production was about 74 per cent of the corresponding (holiday) week of 1929; shipments about 63 per cent of that week's shipments; new orders about 77 per cent of that week's orders, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association from regional associations covering the operations of important softwood and hardwood mills.

Fastest Growing Port City

Miami, June 11.—A study of Census Bureau population statistics for America's 30 major port cities reveals the fastest rate of growth in Miami, Fla., with an increase of 274.14 per cent since 1920. Nearest competitor is Long Beach, Calif., with a population gain of 155.49 per cent, and third is Port Arthur, Tex., with a gain of 128.7 per cent.

Rukeyser Says: Constant Flow Of Goods Is Essential

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser,
International News Service Economic Commentator

New York, June 11.—Like the human body which thrives when the blood circulates normally, a national economy is healthy when there is an uninterrupted flow of goods and services. Any bottle-necks or maladjustments which thwart free circulation of goods and services leads to stagnation and economic disease.

Accordingly, in a highly specialized and complicated economic business system such as prevails in the United States, what is best for the country is best for business.

This identity of interest enables thoughtful and analytical executives to give broad-gauged, instead of narrowly selfish advice to public officials.

Specifically, removal of blockades to the free circulation of goods, such as the current disparity between farm and industrial incomes, will tend to promote an expansion in the gross income of business generally.

A pickup of gross would have an electric effect on the net profit position of business ventures, especially for the reason that fixed overhead, including rent, insurance, interest, depreciation, etc., does not rise with a corresponding expansion in volume.

All this is another way of saying that nowadays it is good business for executives to be intelligently altruistic. Raising the living standards of all the people, especially those in backward regions and in sweated occupations, is not only good sociology, but its effect will be to open new markets within our gates for goods and services. This can be accomplished not arbitrarily, but through the improvement of vocational training and technical methods so that the efficiency of underpaid workers will be raised in order to enable them to earn more.

A stoppage of activity in business spells economic disease, just as failure of the blood to circulate through any part of the human body means trouble. Thus, business men and public officials are in a fundamental position to cooperate.

Both should be guided by the concept of the greatest good to the greatest number. In business terms, that formula means enlarged sales and by implication better net profits.

The American idea of sound thrift is different from the French. The American plan is greatly to increase production and thus bring down the cost through the economies of mass output. It is to produce 100 units and save five. The French system is to produce 30 units and save three. Thus, the material well-being of the French, as measured by the consumption of comfort goods, is lower than that of the typical American. In addition, the thrifty French on the whole save less.

Moreover, the French, instead of using their savings primarily to acquire better tools and power equipment at home, dissipated them in foreign loans. Loans to Russia, Turkey and elsewhere turned sour and resulted in enormous losses.

On the other hand, with the exception of the war loans and the lending of the twenties, the United States has used savings primarily at home. The American concept is to convert the improved technology into more and better goods for all the people, whereas the French still think it is wasteful for the people to live abundantly.

Modernization Market

New York, June 11. — Already-built homes in America form a market for 3,500,000 new bath tubs or showers, 2,500,000 flush toilets, 5,000,000 furnaces, 2,250,000 modern stoves and 1,000,000 sinks, according to an estimate by the Building Reporter magazine based on a WPA survey.

Christians Asked To Help Eradicate Anti-Semitism

New York, June 11.—An appeal to Christian churches to co-operate in eradicating anti-Semitism in the church and the American community is contained in the current issue of "Information Service," publication of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, issued today.

Contained in a special report on anti-Semitism prepared by Dr. Benson Y. Landis, associate secretary of the council's department of research and education, the plea was intended as a contribution toward better understanding between Christians and Jews, according to Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the council.

Halliburton's Mother Gives Him Up to 'Adventure'

Memphis, Tenn., June 11 (U.P.).—The graying mother of Richard Halliburton, one of the greatest adventuers of the modern world, gave up her son for dead tonight and knew he was off on his biggest journey.

"Somewhere," said Mrs. Wesley Halliburton, brushing away a tear, "Richard is finding new worlds to conquer. I know he is thrilling to this new adventure."

It was 80 days ago the S. S. President Coolidge, riding out a storm in the Pacific, picked up from the Sea Dragon, Halliburton's 75-foot Chinese junk en route from Hong Kong to san Francisco, this message:

"Southerly gales, squalls, lee rail under, wet bunks, hard tack, bully beef, having wonderful time. Wish you were here instead of us."

Then the radio went dead.

40th Anniversary Of Dr. Abernethy's Ordination Feted

More than 1,400 parishioners of Calvary Baptist Church turned out yesterday morning to fete Dr. William S. Abernethy, the pastor, on the fortieth anniversary of his ordination to the ministry.

Led by the Rev. Frank Johnston, jr., assistant minister, and J. Barrett Carter, president of the board of trustees, they also gave the pastor and Mrs. Abernethy a rousing send-off on their vacation, which they will spend on the West Coast, meanwhile attending the Northern Baptist Convention in Los Angeles.

Another local pastor, the Rev. R. H. Stone, of Lincoln Road Methodist Church, yesterday marked the beginning of the fourth year of his local ministry.

5 Convicts Flee With Warden As Hostage

Buena Vista, Colo., June 11 (U.P.).—Five youths, armed with a rifle, escaped from the Colorado State Reformatory here today, taking as hostage Warden Walter H. Johnson. He was released unharmed 4 miles from the institution.

The break occurred as the warden was watching a ball game. He said the five youths approached him, threatened him with a knife and ordered him to demand that the guard in the watch tower throw them his rifle.

The guard, Charles Aicker, complied with the order.

"Then they shouted to Aicker to throw them the keys to his automobile, which was parked just outside the gates," Warden Johnson said. "When he hestitated, one of the youths fired a shot at the watchtower."

Post Want Ad Finds Wrist Watch 1st Day

WRIST WATCH. Lady's, white gold; lost Thursday; initials N. M. K. Reward. CAl. 2606.

Mrs. N. M. Kranz says, "I was so thrilled over the return of my wrist watch." We are glad Mrs. Kranz advertised her loss immediately in The Post, because results show the chances of recovering lost articles are much greater when advertised right away.

A Fitting Tribute

The cost of a funeral does not measure the family's affection. But the beauty secured even at minimum cost in a Birch directed funeral, expresses fully the tribute each family wishes to pay to a loved one's memory.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

More people get into trouble bidding strong hands than weak ones, which is only natural, since with an insignificant holding one can discreetly refrain from bidding, whereas with strong cards one must bid, even if incorrectly.

Freaks are also a problem and most players view them overoptimistically. Freaks, despite their luring long, short or void suits, can turn sharply against the bidder unless he realizes that what is long in his hand may be short in his partner's and possibly void in one of the adversaries'.

An unusual hand which seems to defy the deftest no-trump play is contributed by W. N. jr., from Berkeley College, Yale University.

W. N. jr., played the hand and was set one trick at three no-trump, which seems to be about the best that can be done, unless the adversaries are kindly disposed. Four spades can be made by conceding two trumps and a heart, but how to reach it asks our college friend. He writes:

"This hand was played a few nights ago and I would appreciate an answer to some of the questions which arose.

"I was sitting South, but not until I saw the dummy did I have any idea that I would be unable to make the hand. While there may be some doubt about the opening bid, I realize that my two no-trump response was very poor. Even with a spade response, however, three no-trump seems to be the most logical conclusion for the bidding.

"I have studied the hand quite carefully, and am convinced that it is almost impossible to make the hand at this bid. As you can see, by the time that any suit is set up, all re-entries to either hand are exhausted. As it finally turned out, I only went down one trick.

"It is possible to make four spades by losing one heart and two trump tricks. But here the problem arises of reaching this contract. If I jump to four spades after my partner's three-diamond bid, he is very likely to say four no-trump. With a hand as powerful as his and my positive responses, he will have high hopes for a slam.

"I am especially anxious to know what would be the bidding to reach a four-spade contract, as it seems too improbable that the bidding would stop at that point."

W. N. jr., is quite right. The bidding would probably get out of hand, with dire results. North's hand is no more worth a two-suit bid than South's is a negative response. Once South answers his partner's bid with a minor. North should be prepared for a misfit.

The only plausible way of reaching and stopping at four spades seems to depend upon South's refusing to play at three no-trump. The bidding might go like this:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	2 ♡	Pass

Jobs: The Civil Service Commission announces open competitive examinations for aircraft instrument mechanic at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, the salary ranging from .97 to 1.09 an hour in a 5-day, 40-hour week. Applications must be on file with the recorder of the labor board, Philadelphia Navy Yard, not later than June 19. Wharf builder at the Charleston Navy Yard, with salary ranging from $7.20 to $8.16 a day, 40-hour week. The deadline is June 15. Anglesmith, other fires, at the Charleston Navy Yard, with salary ranging from $6.62 to $7.58 a day, 40-hour week. The deadline on applications is June 22.

Other examinations announced are for junior communications operator (high-speed radio equipment) at $1,620 annually, in the War Department Signal Service. Applicants, who must have had some experience, may not be over 47 years old. Application deadline is June 20. Another examination is for aircraft instrument maker at the Pensacola (Fla.) Naval Air Station, with salary from $7.39 to $8.35 per diem. At least four years' experience is required for applicants between 20 and 47, inclusive. Deadline June 21.

Federal Employes Union, No. 2, has elected as delegates to the N. F. F. E. San Francisco convention Ulrey J. Biller and Henry G. Nolda, of the Veterans' Administration; John Deeds, Joseph Menehan and Jesse A. Moss, of the Interior Department, and Mrs. Mary Gardner, of the Navy Department.

Lee H. Shugar, of the G. A. O., was recommended to the national office as a candidate for the annual award for meritorious service in behalf of the union.

The public buildings branch, National Park Service, will increase the pay of a number of guards and foremen of laborers in the District at the pay day, June 15. The pay of laborers was boosted some time ago, but the pay of guards and foremen was not comparably raised. The impending increases are to equalize the situation, in part, at least.

St. Elizabeths Hospital Lodge 28, A. F. G. E., will hold a dance cruise down the Potomac, aboard the steamer City of Washington Thursday night, it is announced by Frank H. Maxey, the business secretary.

The office of personnel in the Agriculture Department soon will poll all Washington employes regarding a change in working hours from 8 to 3:30 or 8:30 to 4 p. m.

Open competitive examinations for junior communications operator at $1,620 a year, and aircraft instrument mechanic at a salary ranging from $7.39 to $8.35 a day, were announced yesterday by the Civil Service Commission.

The communications post is with the Signal Service at large in the War Department. Applicants must be able to work with high speed radio equipment and have had certain experience as radio operator in commercial or Government communications work. Applications must be on file not later than June 20 with the manager, Fourth U. S. Civil Service District, 916 G street northwest.

The opening for mechanic is with the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Fla. At least four years of progressive experience with the repair and overhaul of aircraft or similar instrument is required. Candidates must be between 20 and 48 years of age, and applications should reach the Recorder, Labor Board, U. S. Naval Station, Pensacola, Fla., by June 21.

Hackett to Speak

Douglas Hackett, retiring production supervisor of Good Will Industries of Washington, will be guest speaker at chapel services at 8:15 a. m. tomorrow in the auditorium at 1218 New Hampshire avenue northwest. The Rev. I. W. Ketchum, former pastor of Peck Memorial chapel, is to be guest speaker Thursday.

Bob Burns Says—

You can't change the habits of a lifetime overnight. One of the biggest strikes we ever had in the mines down home was when the bosses didn't let the dynamitin' squad get off on the Fourth of July to shoot off some little firecrackers.

Last time Grandpaw Snazzy was out here, I took him to the swankiest restaurant in town and said, "Snaz, I want you to do yourself proud. Now, here's the menu, just order anythin' you want-ta eat."

Well, he studied the fancy menu for about fifteen minutes. Then he said, "Robin, I reckon I've et more grits and gravy than any man livin'. They've always agreed with me up to now, so I guess I'll stow away a little more."

PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL

THE YEARLING

By Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

CHAPTER VI

Jody, Penny Baxter's 12-year old son, is excited because he and his father are going to take Julia and Rip the dogs, and go hunting for Old Slewfoot, the bear who has come out of winter quarters and killed Ma Baxter's brood sow. The scene is all in northern Florida, on an upper tributary of the St. Johns River. Continue from here this wonderful characterization of The Yearling, a lad who has been taught by Penny to recognize the ways of the wild creatures and who wanders happily in the woods and scrub beyond their isolated cabin.

AT SIGHT OF THE old muzzle-loading shotgun, Julia lifted her voice in a wail of delight. Rip shot from under the house to join her. Perk, the new feice, wagged his tail stupidly and without understanding. Penny patted the dogs in turn.

"You'll likely not be so merry, time the day be done," he told them. "Jody-boy, you best put on your shoes. Hit'll be rough goin', places."

It seemed to Jody that he would burst if there was further delay. He dashed into his room and routed out his heavy cow-hide brogans from under the bed. He slipped his feet into them and raced after his father as though the hunt would be done and over before he reached him. Old Julia was loping ahead, her long nose against the trail of the bear.

"The trail'll not be too cold, Pa? Reckon he won't be gone too fur yonder to ketch up with him?"

"He'll be fur yonder, but we got a heap better chance o' ketchin' up with him, do we let him take it easy and give him time to lay up. A bear that knows he's followed moves a sight faster'n one that figgers the world's his own, to prowl and feed in."

"He's got a foot like a Georgia nigger," Penny said.

The black-jacks ended as though they had been sown by hand and there had been no more seed in the sack. The land was lower and the growth was of large pines.

"Pa, how big you reckon he be?"

"He's big. He ain't full weight right now, account of his stomach bein' shrunk up from layin' up, and empty. But look at that track. Hit's sizable enough to prove him. And look at the way it's deeper at the back. A deer track'll prove the same. A deer or bear that's fat and heavy'll sink in that-a-way. A leetle ol' light doe or yearlin'll walk tippy-toed, and you'll not see more than the front of their hooves. Oh, he's big."

"You'll not be scairt when we come up with him, Pa?"

"I don't reckon you'll be scairt, son?"

"Not me." He thought a moment. "But if I was to be scairt, must I climb a tree?"

Penny chuckled.

"Yes, son. Even if you ain't scairt, hit's a good place to watch the ruckus."

THEY WALKED IN SILENCE. Old Julia movd certainly. Rip the bulldog was content to follow at her heels, snuffing where she snuffed, stopping when she hesitated. She blew through her soft nose when the grasses tickled it. The feice made dashes to one side or another and once tore wildly after a rabbit that bolted from under his nose. Jody whistled after him.

"Leave him go, son," Penny told him. "He'll join up agin when it comes to him he's lonesome."

"The wise old scaper's changin' his direction," Penny said. "Likely he's headin' for the saw-grass ponds. Iffen that's his notion, we kin mebbe slip around and surprise him."

Some understanding came to Jody of the secret of his father's hunting. The Forresters, he thought, would have plunged after old Slewfoot the moment they had found his kill. They would have shouted and bellowed, their pack of dogs would have bayed until the scrub echoed with it, for they encouraged them in it, and the wary old bear would have had full warning of their coming. His father got game, ten to their one. The little man was famous for it.

Jody said, "You shore kin figger what a creetur'll do."

"You belong to figger. A wild creetur's quicker'n a man and a heap stronger. What's a man got that a bear ain't got? A mite more sense. He cain't outrun a bear, but he's a sorry hunter if he cain't outstudy him."

THE PINES WERE BECOMING scattering. There was suddenly a strip of hammock land, and a place of live oaks and scrub palmettos. The undergrowth was thick, laced with cat-briers. Then hammock, too, ended, and to the south and west lay a broad open expanse that looked at first sight to be a meadow. This was the saw-grass. It grew knee-deep in water, its harsh saw-edged blades rising so thickly that it seemed a compact vegetation. Old Julia splashed into it. The rippling of the water showed the pond. A gust of air passed across the open area, the saw-grass ponds waved and parted, and the shallow water of a dozen ponds showed clearly. Penny watched the hound intently. The treeless expanse seemed to Jody more stirring than the shadowy forest. At any moment the great black form might rear itself high.

He whispered, "Will we cut around?"

The hound splashed in a zigzag trail where solid ground edged the saw-grass. Here and there the scent was lost in the water. Once she dipped her head to lap, not in thirst, but for the very taste of the trail. She moved confidently down the middle of the pond. Rip and Perk found their short legs too deep in much for comfort. They retreated to higher ground and shook themselves, watching Julia anxiously. Perk barked shortly, and Penny slapped him, for quiet. Jody stepped cautiously behind his father. A blue heron flew low over him without warning, and he started. The pond water was cold an instant against his legs, his breeches were clammy, the muck sucked at his shoes. Then the water was comfortable, and it was good to walk in the wet coolness, leaving sandy whirlpools behind.

He's feedin' on the fire-plant," Penny murmured.

He pointed to the flat arrow-shaped leaves. Edges showed jagged tooth-marks. Others were bitten clear of the stalk.

"Hit's his spring tonic. A bear'll make for it first thing, time he comes out in the spring." He leaned close and touched a leaf whose ragged edge was turning brown. "Dogged if he wa'n't here a night ago, too. That's how come him to have appetite for a nip o' pore old Betsy."

THE HOUND, TOO, PAUSED. The scent lay now, not underfoot, but on the reeds and grasses where the strong-smelling fur had brushed. She laid her long nose against a bulrush and stared into space, then, satisfied as to direction, splashed due south at a lively pace. Penny spoke now freely.

"He's done feedin'. Old Julia says he's clippin' it for home."

He moved to higher land, keeping the hound in sight. He walked briskly, chatting.

"Many's the time I've seed a bear feedin' on the fire-plant in the moonlight. He'll snort and shuffle, and splash and grunt. He'll rip them leaves offen the stems and cram 'em in his ugly ol' mouth like a person. Then he'll nose along and chaw, like a dog chawin' grass. And the night-birds cryin' over him, and the bull-frogs hollerin' like nigger-dogs, and the Mallards callin' 'Snake! Snake! Snake!' and the drops o' water on the leaves o' the fire-plant shinin' bright and red as a bull-bat's eyes——"

It was as good as seeing it, to hear Penny tell of it.

"Well, you live long as me, and you'll see that and a heap more things, is strange and curious."

"Did you shoot 'em, Pa, while they was feedin'?"

"Son, I've helt back my shot and contented myself with watchin' many a time when creeturs was feedin' harmless and innocent. It goes agin me to crack down at sich a time. Or when creeturs is matin'. Now and agin, when it was git meat or the Baxters go hongry, I've done what I've no likin' to do. And don't you grow up like the Forresters, killin' meat you got no use for, for the fun of it. That's evil as the bears. You hear me?"

"Yes, sir."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

FATHER'S DAY IS THIS SUNDAY, JUNE 18th

LO, these many years Dad has been giving. And giving with a free will, too . . . for those music lessons that didn't pan out so well . . . for that bicycle you wanted when you were in your teens . . . for your education . . . and for many other things.

NOW, IT'S YOUR TURN TO GIVE! But Dad is kind of funny about receiving gifts. You have to be careful what you give. His life is a practical one . . . in business . . . in money matters . . . in everything. That's why your gift should be a practical one, too.

IF he likes to read in bed, how about a pair or two of famous Manhattan Pajamas? And one of these Spotlight Bed Lamps (4th floor) will please him no end. Mother will like it, too, for the direct reading beam will not disturb her slumbers in the least.

WE'VE hundreds of other gifts to please Dad. A few are listed on this page. Come in this afternooon or tomorrow. Dad will appreciate gifts with nationally famous names from The Hecht Co.
